Wuxtry! Bogus German Marks Are Discovered

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—One of the features of Germany's recent financial crisis came to light today when newspapers accused the French command in the Ruhr of counterfeiting 20,000-mark notes, using paper with the wrong watermark.

A week ago the government authorities discovered millions of false notes, but it was at the time when the bank-note printers were on strike and Germany's labor was unable to get their wages. Hungry workingmen throughout the country were aiding the Communists' call for a revolution. Then came the fake money.

GREECE THREATENED BY REVOLUTIONARY STORM

Grave Situation Partly Concealed by Censorship; Election May Precipitate Violence

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 23.—Storm clouds, portending revolution, bloodshed and violence, are hovering over Greece, and developments can foretell if the country, shaken since 1914 with war and trouble, can avert the threatening precipitation.

Owing to censorship in Greece and the fact that cables from Constantinople passing through the Greek Islands are interrupted by prying eyes, intent upon preventing the news prejudicial to narrow personal interests from reaching Europe and America, the correspondent after a thorough survey of the political situation in Greece is writing his observations in Constantinople and sending these to Paris by mail.

During the week the writer was in Greece he interviewed Col. Plastiras, Col. Gouatas, chief of the revolution; M. Alexandris Minister of Foreign Affairs; Alexander Zaimis, who has been asked by the revolutionary government to form a government, Gen. Metaxis, leader of the anti-Venizelists, and who, if things are permitted to take their natural course, probably will be the next Prime Minister; numerous Venizelists, anti-Venizelists and army officers.

FRENCH ARE SHOCKED BY DRY YANKEE

Refuses to Pay for Wine Added to Bill; Teaches Needed Lesson

[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Following a general complaint that American tourists are not spending as freely as expected, it finally has been stated on the authority of a French newspaper that it has taken the French people six years—which is more than the average post-graduate course—to learn the essential cardinal fact that the Americans do not throw their money out the window.

An incident has just occurred in the South Brittany village of Pornichet, where the engaging proprietress of an establishment called Les Charmilles, protested against the action of an American tourist who "even dared to question the items on his bill." It seems this particular American was dry, not from respect toward the law, but from lifelong habit. Accordingly when his bill was augmented by the inclusion of several bottles of wine and mineral water the American read the list of liquors, amputated that part of the bill and paid the rest. But the shock came when the proprietress declared she was mortified by such treatment. "Americans never, never look at the bill," she said. "They always pay the total. This is the first time I ever had a bill questioned."

But this particular American explained he had been in France six years since the war, and that he hoped to teach French tavern-keepers that Americans at home wear overalls and work hard for money just like the French, and do not throw it out the window when they get it.

Captain, First Officer and Thirty-three Other Survivors of Trevess Land; Diary Tells of Hardships

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1923, New York Tribune, Inc.]

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The captain, first officer and thirty survivors from the steamship Trevess, who made the journey of 2000 miles to land in two small boats after their ship sank in the Indian Ocean on June 3 were given a civic welcome when they landed from the liner Goorkha at Gravesend today.

Capt. Foster and First Officer Smith refused to make a statement prior to an official inquiry into the loss. A board of trade official interviewed the survivors before they were allowed to land.

The adventures of the crew in the small boats, one of which was at sea twenty-three days, the other twenty-five days, before land was sighted at Rodriguez after a number of the crew had perished, are told however in the terse diary kept by Seaman Burke of Liverpool.

LAW GRIPS WOBBLIES

Injunction Hits Red Wave

Menacing Radicals Enjoined From Depredations in California

I.W.W. Plot to Get Revenge on Sacramento Has Been Unearthed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 23.—A temporary injunction declared by prosecuting attorneys to be in effect, permanent and enforcible throughout the State of California, against the activities of the Industrial Workers of the World, its officers and members, was granted in the Superior Court here today by Judge Busick.

By the terms of the injunction the defendants are restrained "from depredations against property by means of criminal syndicalism and sabotage as defined in the Criminal Syndicalism Act" of the State.

Austin H. Lewis, chief counsel for the I.W.W., beyond stating that an appeal would probably be taken, declined to say what the next step of the organization would be. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Cowan, who tried the case for the State, pointed out that the usual procedure would be for the defendants to appeal direct from the injunction granted today without any further trial.

UNDER ADVISEMENT

Judge Busick has had the case under advisement since arguments of counsel were completed last week.

The action was brought by Dist.-Atty. Henderson in the name of the people of the State of California, with the consent of Atty.-Gen. Webb, and was directed against the I.W.W., the general executive board of the I.W.W., its committees, officers, agents and members in California.

In an opinion granting the injunction, Judge Busick said:

"The facts set forth in the complaint, and the affidavits and literature offered in evidence by plaintiff, show that the acts of the organization are not for the purpose of committing a single crime, but that every act is a part of a system devised and intended to inflict unlawful injury and damage upon property of the citizens of the State of California and upon the property of the State of California and to overthrow the present industrial system and to bring about a political change in the government itself, by means of unlawful acts therein alleged.

LAW INTERPRETED

"It is undoubtedly the law, as contended for by defendants, that equitable jurisdiction will never be extended or exercised, to prevent the commission of a crime where there is a plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law; but it is also the law, as established by numerous decisions, that when a property right is involved, as is alleged in plaintiff's complaint, although the act may be a crime, also, a court of equity will interfere to protect the property rights, where there is no plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law.

"The complaint in the case and the affidavits filed by plaintiff in support thereof show that not only do the acts enumerated therein constitute a crime under the Criminal Syndicalism Act of the State of California, but it further shows that the acts threatened affect and injure both the real and personal property of the people of the State of California, and its citizens and municipalities, and that they have no plain, speedy and adequate remedy at law as against the defendants.

"The allegations of the complaint and the affidavits in support thereof describe a public nuisance, a nuisance dangerous to the citizens of the State of California, destructive of the property of the people of the State of California and the State o California, and one

BARON KATO, PREMIER OF JAPAN, CALLED BY DEATH

Noted Leader First Won Fame in Russo-Japanese War; Was Strong Supporter of Pacific Pact

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

TOKIO, Aug. 24.—It was unofficially reported here this afternoon that Baron Tomosaburo Kato, Premier of Japan, had died. It had been previously announced he was seriously ill.

Tomosaburo Kato

While Premier Kato had been ill for a number of months, it was announced only last Monday that his condition was not dangerous. It was added, however, that his health was extremely poor and that his retirement could be expected in the near future.

GENERALLY BELIEVED

Early this afternoon the announcement was made that the Premier was seriously ill. Following this came the unofficial report that he had died.

Owing to the not unusual custom in Japan of not officially announcing immediately the death of an important official, the report of the Premier's death was generally believed.

Physicians attending the Premier announced at midnight last night that his condition had taken a turn for the worse. Before morning he began to show signs of general exhaustion, his pulse became extremely weak and the doctors said their patient's heart was causing them the greatest anxiety.

While official confirmation of the Premier's death was not obtainable, it was reported that he died at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon.

BECAME ADMIRAL

Premier Kato attained his eminence among the noted men of Japan as the right-hand man of Admiral Togo and Kamimura in the Russo-Japanese War. He entered the war as a captain and emerged as a rear-admiral, chief of the staff of the first squadron of the Japanese navy, with the decoration of the second class Order of the Golden Kite.

Taking over the portfolio of the navy in 1915, Baron Kato became a strong partisan of the advancement of friendly relations between Japan and the United States. At the Washington Arms Conference, where he was a member of the Japanese delegation, he was credited with being one of the strongest proponents of the naval accord treaty.

Admiral Baron Kato was confirmed as Premier of Japan June 12, 1922, his Cabinet succeeding that of Viscount Takahashi which resigned June 6. In a statement following his appointment to the high office, Premier Kato said:

"In brief Japan's foreign policy from which this Cabinet will not depart, is to keep with the powers in the spirit as well as the letter of the covenant of the League of Nations and the treaties and resolutions signed at Washington with the view that concord and friendship may develop among the nations and that reductions of armaments may steadily progress to relieve the difficulties and burdens of mankind."

WAS MAN OF PEACE

That was the policy of the Kato government. He had also stated, following his appointment with the successful conclusion of the Washington conference a new era of peace dawned on the world. "It is the intention of this government to fulfill the terms agreed upon by the powers and to this end to take the appropriate steps in accord and in co-operation with them."

Premier Kato was born in Hiroshima prefecture in 1861. He entered the naval academy in 1873, and, after graduation, was attached to the warship Tsukuba for practical training. He was appointed sub-lieutenant in 1883. Promoted to the rank of lieutenant, he proceeded to San Francisco with a training squadron. He entered the naval staff college upon his return from America from which institution he was graduated in 1889.

In 1891 he was appointed a

DEFEAT FOR SPAIN SEEN IN MOROCCO

Gen. Weyler Returns to Madrid With Plea for Disorganized Army

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MADRID, Aug. 23.—Recent developments in Morocco have indicated the imminent defeat of the Spanish Army to such an extent that the old Spanish-American War figure, Gen. Weyler, has come hotfoot to Madrid to report to the government and again request a free hand in a military way in Morocco, which request was refused him by the government before his departure. Gen. Weyler states that the hours he spent in the protectorate were the most bitter of his entire life.

The old general is indignant over what is occurring in Africa. All army service branches are so disorganized, he says, that no one knows what is going on. Convoys to advance posts proceed without knowing their destinations or what forces are protecting them.

Although the strictest censorship is exercised over all communiques coming from the protectorate, it is known that in yesterday's battle along two fronts Spain lost hundreds of killed and wounded. Sultan Abd-El-Keim has sent one army against Afrau Tifruin and Sidi-Mesad while another Moorish offensive is being waged against Tafersit, in the Tizziasa sector.

Immigrant Lad Hurt by Truck First Day Here

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Auf. 23.—David Katz is 8 years of age. Early this morning, clinging tightly to his mother's hand he clambered down the gangplank of the ferry boat that brings immigrants from Ellis Island, and set foot on American soil for the first time. It was wonderful for David and in his Polish tongue he told his mother how splendid it was—this being in America, where people were happy and gay.

Tonight David is lying in a hospital. His leg is broken. His body is crushed and the doctors do not think he can live.

Soon after finding their new home, where David's brothers live, a truck ran over the lad.

David was run down after two hours of the first day in his life that he ever had gone out to play without being afraid of enemies of his race.

JOHNSON RAGING

Crooks! Thieves! He Shouts

Admits McClatchy Letter, but Says It Was Not Meant to Become Public

Attacks Lawrence, Who Says You Can't Argue Things With a Corpse

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Smarting under the uncomplimentary comments of newspapers throughout the United States on a letter sent from Europe to C. K. McClatchy, editor of the Sacramento Bee, and subsequently made public in the San Francisco Journal, Senator Hiram Johnson today issued a statement bitterly attacking Andrew Lawrence, editor of the Journal.

Senator Johnson admits the authenticity of the remarkable letter, in which he frankly concedes his loss of prestige and his fallen political fortunes in California, but confines his statement to a tirade against Lawrence and against the method by which Senator Johnson assumes Lawrence obtained possession of the letter.

THE STATEMENT

The statement by Senator Johnson follows:

"This statement is released and accepted on the express condition that it shall be published exactly as written, and fully as written, or not at all.

"The only importance of the publication of this letter is as illustrative of the kind of political opposition we have in California—an opposition without limitations of honor or decency. Last May, while I was in Europe, I wrote to a friend of mine, Charles K. McClatchy of Sacramento, an intimate personal letter. Mr. McClatchy sent excerpts, and excerpts only of this letter in a letter of his own to Albert E. Boynton of San Francisco, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of California.

"Andy Lawrence, formerly of Chicago, is publishing a small paper in San Francisco called the Journal. Lawrence is the chief supporter in Northern California of Herbert Hoover and devotes himself to mendacious abuse of me. Lawrence surreptitiously obtained letters from the files and private office of Mr. Boynton and among these found the letter of McClatchy to Boynton with the excerpts from my letter and published McClatchy's letter in his paper. This is the letter now being circulated by him in the East.

"There are some things that must not be done even in politics and that decent men and women cannot condone. One of those is burglarizing an opponent's rooms or stealing his private property or private correspondence or receiving things thus appropriated. This is exactly what was done in this particular instance. Fortunately, aside from little intimacies which occur in the correspondence of every man and woman, there is nothing in any correspondence of mine that could not be revealed or published. I do object, however, to grand larceny or petty thieving in politics or business.

"I may add that I hope this letter may be taken by the opposition, well exemplified in this instance, as an invitation to a contest in California. Progressive Republicans there, apart from any candidacies, are determined that the delegation to the Republican National Convention next year shall represent California as California is, a Progressive Republican State."

LAWRENCE REPLIES

Mr. Lawrence was apprised of

MEXICO WINS GOOD WILL

Recognition by United States Believed to be But Matter of Few Days or Weeks

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Resumption of friendly relations with Mexico is regarded here as virtually a certainty, and it is expected that official announcement of such a step will be made shortly by the Washington government.

The attitude of the administration on the question, it became known today, has been revealed to diplomatic representatives here of several foreign governments, which it is believed will extend recognition to Mexico once the United States has done so.

Announcement was made today that Charles B. Warren, one of the American commissioners to the recent Mexico City conference, had concluded his work, for the time being at least. Mr. Warren said he was fully confident as to the results of the negotiations and this assertion was taken as an additional indication that a recognition announcement was not far off.

"When I returned to the United States from Mexico City," Mr. Warren said, "I announced that the report of the proceedings there was satisfactory to the Mexican government and I hope would be found satisfactory to our government. Now I can say that I have no doubt on this point and I am going home entirely satisfied as to the outcome."

It was authoritatively stated that the record of the Mexico City conference contained signed agreements between the representatives of the two governments which fully protected their mutual interests, and it was indicated that relations would be resumed on the basis of these agreements.

Stipulations insuring the protection of American lives and property in Mexico, it is understood, were obtained by the United States commissioners and recorded in their report to President Coolidge and the State Department.

AWAIT AMERICAN REACTION ON POINCARE STATEMENT

Assertion That France Can't Pay Until Germany Does Meant for Washington's Ears

BY HENRY WALES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, Aug. 23.—Europe is anxiously awaiting cable dispatches from America telling what is the United States' reaction to Premier Poincare's note and what Washington thinks of the French point blank statement that it cannot pay war debts until Germany delivers the wherewithal to settle them.

American editorial opinion, reflecting the mass of the people's ideas, has come to be regarded as a just and fair umpire in the various conflicting aims and ambitions of Europe, so Quai d'Orsay is keenly interested in the United States' appraisal of Premier Poincare's policy.

UP TO BRITAIN

While the French note leaves the initiative in future developments squarely up to Downing street with Premier Poincare's proposal that Great Britain and France get together on an accord to obtain a minimum of 26,000,000,000 gold marks ($6,500,000,000) from Germany to defray the cost of reconstructing the devastations, leaving the arrangements of the balance of reparations and inter-Allied debts to a future date, it is not expected that further pourparlers will be held immediately.

Premier Poincare probably will confer personally with Prime Minister Baldwin when the Prime Minister traverses Paris en route to Aix-les-Bains next week to take the cure, and again when Baldwin returns to London. There is little hope, however, that the British will seriously modify their policy before the imperial Cabinet council in October, when the dominions, including Ireland, are entitled to voice their opinions and make suggestions.

HINT TO WASHINTON

Premier Poincare's statement that France is unable to pay Great Britain anything on the principal or interest until it obtains the same from Germany, is taken as a direct hint that Washington need not expect payments in the immediate future, either.

Although Italy is vitally interested in France's claims, because the Rome government also owes Great Britain and the United States, Premier Mussolini thus far has avoided being drawn into the argument, preferring to let Premier Poincare prepare the ground alone.

News from Berlin that Chancellor Stresemann is determined to locate all German capital in foreign banks has aroused hopes here that it is the Reich's first step toward seriously reorganizing finance and controlling the flight of the mark and hidden resources of Teuton financial magnates.

TENSION WEARING OFF

Meanwhile, the tension of the French troops and German civilians in the Ruhr is steadily wearing off, with fewer outbreaks and less sabotage reported daily.

Today comes news that two French military aviators forced to land in unoccupied Germany while returning from the Gottenberg aviation contests are being well treated by the Green police and their machine permitted to be shipped from Germany to Metz despite the German official proclamation prohibiting French airplanes from flying over Germany.

The French officers state they received the kindest attention from German officials and all the possible aid from civilians during their five-day stay trying to repair the motor.

NO FURTHER ACTION

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Aug. 23.—No further action will be taken by the British to settle the Anglo-French controversy for two or three weeks. Prime Minister Baldwin returned to town last night and spent today studying Premier Poincare's note and conferring with the Cabinet ministers and experts, but his plan to go to Aix-Les-Bains Saturday for a holiday is still unchanged. He purposes to remain there two weeks, and he may meet Lord Curzon, who is also on a holiday in France. On his way back through Paris he is willing to meet Premier Poincare for an informal talk if the French Premier expresses a desire for a meeting.

A full Cabinet meeting will be held on his return at which the British policy will be decided and if separate action is decided on Parliament will be called into special session to approve the government policy, in accordance with a promise made by Baldwin before the house rose for the summer recess.

Twenty-four hours of consideration of the French note has not changed the British first impression that it represents little if any advance. The financial proposals are regarded as wholly inacceptable and the statement that France has no intention of annexing the Ruhr amounts to little, in the British view, in light of her declared intention to remain until the last centime of the impossible indemnity is paid.

WOBBLIES FEEL INJUNCTION GRIP

designed to overthrow the government itself, and, by our statute, a nuisance may be abated by injunction."

PURPOSE OF ACTION

The action was brought, it was explained, by prosecuting attorneys during the course of the argument, to eliminate the lengthy trials of members of the I.W.W. under the State criminal syndicalism law. It was pointed out that the Supreme Court has held that the I.W.W. is an unlawful organization, and that prosecutions now brought under the criminal syndicalism law means long trials to again prove that fact.

Prosecuting attorneys declare that the granting of the injunction will eliminate these long trials, make membership in the I.W.W. a violation of the injunction and as such contempt of court. A trial on the contempt charge may be held before the court without a jury in any Superior Court in the State, according to the District Attorney. A person found guilty of contempt can be fined $500 and sentenced to six months in jail.

Inside details of the plan of the I.W.W. to get revenge on Sacramento for prosecution of its members under the Criminal Syndicalism Act were obtained by the investigators during a meeting of the organization in a near-by city a week ago. A complete report of the results of the investigation which has been carried on for some time, has been filed with State authorities.

The time set for the drive on this city is the early fall, according to one of the officials of the I.W.W., who told at the meeting of plans to "teach Sacramento a lesson." The arrest of this official is expected within the next few days.

This leader was the principal speaker at the meeting, according to the investigators, and began revealing the intended invasion of Sacramento by referring to the suit for an injunction against the I.W.W.

NEW AIR-MAIL SERVICE PROVES WORTH

Photos of Brooklyn Fire Tuesday Reach Coast Quickly

First Pictures Delivered in History-Making Flight

PICTURES of the disastrous dance hall fire in Brooklyn last Tuesday morning were brought to Los Angeles on the morning train from San Francisco yesterday as the first demonstration of what the new air mail service means to the Pacific Coast in annihilating the distance across the continent.

The photographs show what havoc was created when the roof and three walls of the New Plaza dance hall unexpectedly crumbled while several fire companies were at work, killing six firemen and injuring many others. Fire trucks standing near the building were wrecked.

The pictures were taken by the Pacific and Atlantic Photo Service, which serves The Times exclusively in Los Angeles, and were rushed to the air mail field. They were carried across the continent to San Francisco in thirty-four hours and twenty-three minutes, reaching the Bay City at 6:24 p.m. Wednesday, in plenty of time to catch the evening train for Los Angeles.

and those of laying out a modern airway, complete with terminals, radio, signal lights and ground equipment. It was learned from Postoffice Department officials tonight that $500,000 was the approximate cost of the permanent terminals and the special night route equipment. Railway officials stated that a double track railway over the same 1000-mile stretch from Chicago to Cheyenne, exclusive of terminals, probably could not be built for less than $75,000 or $100,000 a mile. This double-track system, in addition to requiring constant expenditure for surface upkeep, also would have a definite maximum capacity. In the air, due to the possibility of establishing various levels for fast, slow, through or local service, there is virtually no limit to the traffic which can be accommodated.

HELD ON GIRL CHARGE; TRIES TO END OWN LIFE

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

STOCKTON, Aug. 23.—George N. Nance, Lodi merchant, and reputed wealthy property owner of that city, attempted to blow his brains out with a shotgun last evening when he was being placed under arrest on a statutory charge. Deputy Sheriff Neal knocked the gun away just as he fired. The charge tore away part of Nance's jaw and he is in a hospital at Lodi, under guard. The wound is not serious. Nance was arrested yesterday in connection with a charge of an attack against an 11-year-old girl. He was released on $2000 bail furnished by his wife. Asst. Dist.-Atty. Woodward brought the more serious charge against him and the court fixed his bail at $8000. It was while being arrested on the latter charge that he attempted suicide. According to Woodward, ten or twelve girls have told stories implicating Nance.

THREE DROWN SAVING BABY

Mother, Sister and Boy Lost in Lake; Tot Only Seven Months Old Rescued by Youngster

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 23.—A young mother, a girl, 12 years of age, and a heroic boy lost their lives in Mocking Bird Lake, on the outskirts of the city, late this afternoon in an attempt to save a 7-month-old baby from drowning. The baby was rescued and is none the worse for his experience.

The three victims are Mrs. Robert Burton, 17 years of age, mother of the baby, her sister, Mary Roberts, 12, and Ronald Huber, also 12. Mrs. Burton and her sister are the daughters of Clark Roberts, wealthy Orange grower of Rialto.

The tragedy came as the climax of a happy picnic party organized by a number of Riverside women this morning. Many of the picknickers saw Mrs. Burton, her sister and the lad plunge to their death in the lake powerless to render assistance.

SWEPT INTO LAKE

Mrs. Burton and her sister had separated from the main party in the afternoon and had gone wading in a flume leading into the lake. They left the baby at the edge of the flume. A sudden rush of irrigating water swept unexpectedly down the flume, carrying the baby into the lake.

Mrs. Burton unhesitatingly jumped in after the infant. Unable to swim and hampered by her clothing, she went down calling for help. Her young sister then leaped into the lake to aid Mrs. Burton, but she also was unable to swim and went down, screaming to the stupefied onlookers to come to her assistance.

Little Ronald heard the screams of the two sisters and ran to the edge of the lake. He was the only person in the party who could swim. Hurriedly taking off his clothes he dived into the lake and reached the baby, dragging him to shore.

DEATH STRUGGLE

This accomplished the gallant lad again swam out to the spot, where the two sisters had gone down. He managed to grasp Mrs. Burton by her clothing. A death struggle ensued between the two, ending finally in the drowning of both under the eyes of many members of the party.

Police were notified and dragged the lake. The bodies of Mrs. Burton and her sister were recovered, but the boy's body has not yet been brought to the surface, although the lake is still being dragged.

staff officer, being subsequently despatched to London as superintendent of naval construction. He returned to Japan in 1894 as an officer on the new warship Yoshino.

SAW ACTIVE SERVICE

Upon the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war Kato went on active service as a captain and six months later was promoted to the rank of rear admiral. In 1905 he participated in the famous battle of the Japan sea as chief of staff for the first squadron. Upon the restoration of peace he was decorated.

In 1906, when the Saionji ministry was established, Admiral Kato was appointed vice-minister of the navy and later promoted to vice-admiral, which post he held until 1909, when he was appointed commander of the Kure naval port. While vice-minister of the navy he was appointed councillor to the board of the Anglo-Japanese exhibition and also chief of the reception committee appointed in connection with the visit of the American squadron to Japan. In 1913 he was appointed commander of the First Squadron, and upon the outbreak of the World War, participated in the hostilities as commander of the battleship Settsu.

MINISTER OF NAVY

When the Okuma ministry was partially reconstructed in 1915, Admiral Kato was appointed minister of the navy in succession to Admiral Yashiro and was promoted to the rank of full admiral the same year. This portfolio he retained in the subsequently established Terauchi and Hara ministries. He was raised to the peerage in 1920.

Kato was generally recognized as one of the most able statesmen among the naval officers of the empire, and also was known for his peculiar calmness and boldness as a naval strategist. He was the holder of many foreign decorations.

POLAND IS REPORTED PLANNING BIG LOAN

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WARSAW, Aug. 23.—According to reports, which the Ministry of Finance neither confirms nor denies, the Polish government is entering a preliminary agreement with the Morgan Company in Paris for a loan of $100,000,000 in order to enable Poland to establish a bank of emission and issue new currency based on this gold reserve.

Poland guarantees the loan by customs receipts and also by premiums payable on raw materials exported. The gold is to remain deposited at Morgans.

A Cabinet meeting Thursday will discuss the plans for organizing the bank of emission and appoint a special commission for the expected speedy preparation of the charter. It is understood the loan will be presented to Parliament in September for ratification.

REVOLUTIONARY GROUP FEARFUL

which less than a year ago shocked the world by shooting the former minister and won the undying hatred of powerful political groups and the population, who are waiting for an opportunity for revenge, is now, with peace signed, confronted with the necessity of ratifying the treaty and re-establishing diplomatic relations with the world, which is impossible until the elections are held. To use a metaphor, the government finds itself in the position of a man holding a bear by the tail, trembling with fear of holding on any longer, and yet aware of the possible fatal consequences of letting go.

Two feeble attempts at a republican revolution on Crete and Saloniki were abandoned when only half begun. Their failure was foredoomed, and M. Hangelos, one of the leaders of the original revolution, was the leader of the republican movement of the country. His departure is regarded by many as an intimation of his intention to make other attempts.

So precarious is the position of the revolutionary government that even M. Zaimis has undertaken a reconciliation movement. He will probably be satisfied if the new constitution assembly does nothing more serious than to repudiate the execution of the former ministers and officially declare them martyrs to the country, and make whatever restitution is possible to their families. It is regarded as virtually certain in Greece that M. Gounaris and others who died deaths of traitors will be resurrected from their graves of ignominy and be subjected to national honors, mourning and ceremonies, with the crowning feature of the erection of monuments to their memory.

M. Metaxis, who outlined a program to the correspondent which even M. Zaimis regarded as sound, mentioned that the first act of the Assembly, if he has anything to do with the directing, will be to annul the courtsmartial of the executed ministers. While not mentioning whether he would demand reprisals, he admits the Assembly will be asked to decide this question also.

TURMOIL FEARED

It is generally conceded, even by the Venizelists, that if the elections are as free as the revolution, they will make Greece, even during the elections, unsafe for the leaders. The anti-Venizelists charge that if the government fails in the elections, which probability is universally admitted, they will refuse to turn over the reigns of the government to M. Metaxis, which is certain to precipitate bloodshed. The government wholly denies this accusation, but at the same time boasts that the people are overwhelming behind the revolution. The predictions of the leaders are based on nothing sounder than the ovations they receive when appearing in public and the fact that they are able to go about without bodyguards.

While Col. Plastiras and Col. Gonatas publicly denied reports that the army and navy, the stay of the revolution, are there is considerable reason to lieve the freedom of the which is by no means due as much to a realization further oppression might civil war as well as the of giving the appearance of the gality of the elections to recognition of the new ment by the great powers.

OPPRESSION

Outside of the prohibiting M. Metaxis pressing his views or the official government here, there is no more pression in Greece now ordinary circumstances. Balkan custom to jail ize the opposition leaders ago when the correspondent in Greece the Constantine terrorized the Venizelists zelist editor was shot doorstep and the Constantine ernment permitted the escape. At that time ist supporters were menacing them with fate.

There is less of this before, and it is with the breaking away from of political reprisals mis is considering reconciliation. The program is presaged of either the Venizelists Venizelists to have the

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PUEBLO (Colo.) Aug. 23.—Colorado's Arkansas River valley tonight is recovering from the havoc wrought by flood waters of the Apishapa River Wednesday night and early today. The last ripples of the eighty-six-foot wall of water which burst through the Apishapa irrigation reservoir dam thirty-six miles south of Fowler, late Wednesday, are rolling themselves out in the lower stretches of the Arkansas River valley near Los Animas and Lamar, leaving behind property damage estimated at ,000 and several hundred persons homeless along the lowlands inundated by the torrent.

No loss of life has been reported. As early as 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, flood warnings were sent out through the valley and hundreds fled from their homes, taking household goods and livestock with them. Most of them returned to their homes today, as the waters subsided almost as suddenly as they came.

CROPS ARE DAMAGED

The greatest damage was done to crops, homes and railroad tracks between Fowler and Manzanola, where the wall of water, sweeping down the Apishapa River, after breaking the dam and bursting through, had joined with the already swollen waters of the Arkansas River.

The river overflowed its banks and spread over acres of farm land, washing out growing grain, gardens and small orchards. At one point, it was estimated that destruction covered an area mile in width.

Twelve hundred feet of the Santa Fe Railway tracks were torn away by the flood, virtually every bridge on the Apishapa River was swept away and automobile highways obliterated by the rushing

Telephone and telegraphic traffic was interrupted for hours when lines were torn down and for a protracted period Wednesday night the flood covered area was isolated.

FLOOD SPENDS FURY

As the flood waters progressed, however, they spent their fury, the river flowed back within its banks, though still running high and the torrent rolled down through flood waters progressed, they spent their fury, the back within its banks, still running high and rolled down through the long valley to the southeast, steadily diminishing as it went, and hourly becoming less dangerous.

At Manzanola, Rocky Ford and La Junta, the flood damage was comparatively slight, although residents had encamped on high ground for hours in fear of the inundation. At La Junta between 800 and 1000 persons living along the lowlands beside the river, gathered together such belongings as they could hastily gather together and departed late Wednesday, although the crest of the flood did not reach the city until 8 o'clock Thursday.

At Rocky Ford and Manzanola, the waters spread over the river bottoms and washed out growing grain, although the cantaloupe crop at Rocky Ford was untouched. Approaches to bridges were washed away in both towns, although the structures themselves remained intact.

Several hours after dawn today the first reports of a drop in the river were received and as the flood waters passed towns along the course of the river, they immediately began to recede and it was apparent that the flood danger had passed.

FILM STAR'S BROTHER DOES NOT COMPLAIN TO GRAND JURY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WHITE PLAINS (N. Y.) Aug. 23.—There was a session of the West Chester county grand jury here today, but no action was taken regarding the fist fight between Ralph W. Ince, motion-picture director, and George Stewart, brother of Anita Stewart, the film star, which resulted in Stewart being sent to a Manhattan Hospital.

It had been reported that Stewart would make a complaint to the grand jury, charging assault as the result of the fistic encounter near the Pepperday Inn at New Rochelle several weeks ago. Dist.-Atty. Arthur Rowland put to rest all the reports of a grand jury investigation when he said today that no complaint had been made to him.

"Young Stewart has made no complaint for a grand jury inquiry," he said, "and for that reason, so far as I am concerned, there will be no county investigation of the Stewart-Ince fistic encounter. I cannot bring any matter before the grand jury until some one makes a complaint. So far as I have been able to learn, no such action will be taken.

JOHNSON RAGES ABOUT LETTER

"Crooks! Thieves!" He Shouts in Anger

Says McClatchy Missive Not for Publication

"Can't Argue With Corpse," Lawrence Retorts

this statement and issued the following reply:

"It's always unprofitable to discuss matters with a corpse. If the late lamented Senator had paid more attention to the new friends that he made and less to his enemies that he so frequently discusses, he would be alive today.

"I don't want to pronounce his funeral oration.

"The letters were obtained in the regular course of business. The Senator is probably more disturbed over those that have not been published than over those that have."

During the past week Senator Johnson has freely indicated to friends his rising choler over the frank and frequently uncomplimentary comment of Eastern and Middle West newspapers in connection with publication of his letter to McClatchy, but he refrained from public utterance until today, when the Washington Post, a strong Republican paper and a power in the capital, gave on its front page a complete reproduction of the letter.

The letter of McClatchy to Boynton, in which excerpts of Johnson's letter admit Johnson's chagrin over his waning political strength in California and indicate that he is convinced the Presidency is out of his reach, was first published in the San Francisco Journal. At the time of publication the Journal announced, editorially, that "the document came to the Journal by no dishonorable means, but in the regular course of gathering news."

THE LETTER

McClatchy wrote:

The following, of course, will be personal and confidential. I have received a couple of letters from the Chief. Following are some quotations:

"I feel that Harding will be able to renominate himself, although some very good people, like Senator Moses and George Henry Payne, believe otherwise and want to commence an active campaign. As I have said to you often, I would like to be President. I think any American in political life who pretends otherwise is wholly hypocritical. I realize, however, political realities, and I cannot see success in an active campaign. A sort of passive attitude never brought me anywhere, and my natural inclination is to fight. This, though, is a kind of valor of ignorance, or bringing one's self to actualities; and hardly wise. The next few months possibly will clarify the political atmosphere, and any personal declaration I am leaving entirely to the future.

"The delegates from California, however, is a different matter. It ought to be composed of our friends—not a compromise of some of our friends and some of our enemies, and this whether we have a candidate or not. If Progressives are going to continue in politics in California it seems obvious to me they must get ready to redeem themselves and the State. If they permit Chandler, Dickson, Andy Lawrence and the Hoover crowd to control the national delegation and again elect a national committeeman, they might just as well resign themselves to the role of outsiders with the mere capacity for criticism and none for doing.

"Since last year I have endeavored to impress this on all our friends. We lost California principally because we compromised with those who only compromised because they feared we would whip them and who remained as conservative and reactionary as ever, but bided their time to strike. We destroyed the morale of progress, and convinced the ordinary individual that we are no different from our opponents, that both sought political success only.

"My strength while I was Governor was in never yielding for one instant to the old rotten crew, standing always the same. My weakness today is that I have yielded and given power, position and policital strength to the very men I so often formerly denounced. The past is past, and I have only referred to it as instructive for the future. I am under no illusions now about California. Really, C. K., I doubt if I could carry it against Hoover, Harding or any other candidate. The old crew are in the saddle. For the first time since 1910 they have the State, all its offices and an active militant organization both in publicity and otherwise in the large counties.

"Chandler has been in Washington lately. He is to have charge of the President's itinerary in California. He boasted, so my letters say, after the city's election and Fredericks's victory in Los Angeles, that he now has California in his pocket. He spoke of national delegates next year, with a ticket to be led by Hoover and Richardson, and made all arrangements to bring a Harding delegation from California.

"What friends we have in Los Angeles are discouraged, and, not only that, but they do not command the confidence of the general public. No newspapers can be counted on there, as we have learned to our cost. So you see we have our difficulties ahead of us. Now, singular enough, though my stock is so low in my own State, it has very great possibilities in other States. If I were a candidate I would fear California more than New York. This is no idle statement and please do not ascribe it to my pessimism."

GOING HOME

Senator Johnson is going back to California. Outwardly more depressed and apparently more pessimistic over the outlook for his own political fortunes than at any time since he entered national politics, the Senator from California will leave here Monday or Tuesday for his home State where, if present indications are a criterion, he intends to offset any warm reception his followers may plan for him by making it exceedingly hot for some of his own lieutenants. He has canceled his speaking dates en route and will make a fast trip.

The Senator has made no secret of the fact that he is deeply chagrined over the publication of the World Court speech of the late President Harding, and to friends here he has been frank in expressing some bitterness for what he seems to believe was the ineffective work of Johnson followers in San Francisco, whose efforts to suppress the last important public utterance of President Harding have added no prestige to the Senator's Presidential aspirations.

This, coupled with the great and increasing damage done to his ambitions by his own confession of political weakness, has done much, apparently, to depress his spirits. It is, in fact, in no happy mood that Senator Johnson, following his one appearance in New York as the guest of Hearst and Hylan, is preparing to return in silence to California.

For more than a week Senator Johnson has been receiving voluminous correspondence from California, much of it, his friends say, being explanations from San Francisco as to why the Johnson leaders there were unable to override the instructions of President Harding that, despite his illness, his speech advocating the World Court and showing the great accomplishments of the Harding administration be published.

The Senator has insisted to friends in Washington that had his San Francisco lieutenants manifested sufficient enterprise the speech, admittedly embarrassing to his political hopes, would have been recalled. Those who profess to know the Senator's state of mind are predicting several stormy sessions as soon as Johnson arrives on home soil.

MOSES DESERTS

Another troublesome fly in the Senator's political ointment is the defection from the Johnson camp of Senator George Moser, who will be in California early in September as one of the members of the reforestation committee of the Senate. Senator Moses, now an active leader of those demanding that President Coolidge be the Republican standard-bearer in 1924, was, prior to the death of President Harding, expected to be manager of Johnson's Presidential campaign.

It had been generally accepted as a foregone conclusion that Senator Moses would make the occasion of his tour with the reforestation committee an opportunity for urging the nomination of Johnson. Now, however, all of his energies will be for Coolidge and against Johnson.

There is considerable speculation as to whether, in view of the many political reverses that have overtaken him, Senator Johnson may not decide to forego another Presidential attempt. He has cancelled several engagements to speak at various places on his way to the Pacific Coast and it is understood that he will make no public utterance until he has had opportunity to personally go over the muddled situation in California.

LUCKY STRIKE "IT'S TOASTED"

HOPE TO AVERT COAL STRIKE

Hammond Confident Despite Flood of Rumors

Talk of Bituminous Miners' Walkout Discounted

Plan to Distribute Fuel Taking Shape

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—While rumors were flying thick and fast of the menace of a sympathetic bituminous strike the administration today sought to increase pressure on the anthracite miners and operators to settle their differences.

An unexplained air of confidence that this increased pressure would succeed prevailed among high officials dealing with the threatened anthracite strike. After half an hour's conference with President Coolidge, John Hays Hammond, chairman of the coal commission, left the White House indicating that he had high hopes of a settlement being reached before September 1, the date set for the cessation of work in the anthracite mines.

ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY

He said he would have an important announcement to make tomorrow. He explained that the coal commisison would issue no statement fixing the responsibility for the threatened strike before the 31st inst., for the reason that such a statement might destroy what chance there yet remains for a settlement before the strike order becomes effective.

"Then you still have hope that there will be a settlement?"

"I will tell you tomorrow why I think there will be," was Hammond's reply.

Efforts to learn whether the optimism was based on some new conciliation plan just devised or whether it rested on the belief that the warring factions would come to a realization to the folly of their remaining in deadlock were unsuccessful.

All through the day reports kept drifting into the capital that the soft-coal miners, despite their contract would walk out in sympathy with the anthracite workers. Such reports were discounted by officials, including Hammond who expressed confidence that they would live up to their contract, but they nevertheless furnished some cause for worry.

WOULD UPSET PLANS

It was conceded that such a sympathetic strike would knock out all the plans which have been set up for relieving the needs of anthracite consumers with substitutes.

Meanwhile the government is proceeding with plans to distribute substitutes in the event of an anthracite coal strike. A plan to educate hard coal consumers to the use of soft coal and other substitutes is being prepared by the Bureau of Mines and Department of Interior. Federal Fuel Administrator F. R. Wadleigh announced that the governors of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New Jersey and the commissioners of the District of Columbia had accepted the invitation he sent out to attend the meeting in New York next Tuesday to discuss plans for expeditious supply and distribution of substitutes. Other acceptances are expected.

It also is intended by the government to have in attendance engineers from the Bureau of Mines, representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission and of the railroads. The engineers will explain the best kinds of coal for given uses, while the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railroads will work out detailed plans of distribution of substitutes to the best advantage and according to respective requirements of the various sections of the country, particularly New York and New England. The railroads are to select their own representatives to attend the meeting.

KEEP FUEL DISTRIBUTOR

President Coolidge is prepared to continue the Federal Fuel Distributor in office after the expiration of the latter's term on September 21. He is authorized to do this under the law creating the office.

Work of distributing substitutes for hard coal will be in charge of Wadleigh, acting with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

President John C. Brydon of the National Coal Association who also is chairman of the special committee of bituminous operators announced that the association is ready to volunteer to the government its services in distributing soft coal to sections now using hard coal.

The coal commission, in a report made public today, stated that the cost of labor in the production of a ton of anthracite coal had increased from $1.62 in 1913 to $3.97 in 1923 but added that while labor costs formed 61.6 per cent of the sales realization price in 1913, they had dropped to 59.5 per cent in 1923.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Still without a definite clew after six days of feverish search for 3-months-old Lillian McKenzie, who was kidnaped from her carriage in front of a store last Saturday, Detective Captain Funston today issued an order for the detention of every woman who is seen with a small infant and who acts at all suspiciously. One of the most promising clews—recovery by Washington police of an abandoned infant—failed today when Inspector Lahey, after communicating with the Washington authorities, said the baby held there was not the McKenzie child.

JAPAN'S YOUTH ANTI-MILITARY

Overthrow of Autocracies in War First Cause

Students Jeer War Office Recruiting Efforts

Meager Pay Offered Cadet Increases Aversion

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TOKIO, Aug. 23.—A few students of Waseda University, an educational institution in Tokio with more than 10,000 students, are today in barracks learning the art of fighting. The group numbers about thirty. Nearly all the other students are against any attempt to use their school hours or their leisure time in undergoing training of a military sort.

When the scheme was first propounded there was a memorable scene in the campus of the university, hundreds of the boys openly ridiculing and jeering the military men and the professors of the university that have backed up the project. The matter has more than a local significance. Militarism is on the wane in Japan and the open flouting of schemes carefully laid by a portion of the University faculty in collusion with the General Staff only showed clearly the strength of that recent growth—anti-militarism.

LIBERALS GAINING

There is a very real, though not as yet powerful, Liberal body of thought in Japan. The guns of the Allies that blew the autocracies of the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns sky-high ushered it in and it has reached the point at which even military officers are ashamed to travel in uniform. The attempt to introduce military training into the curriculum of Waseda University—and then into other educational institutions—is really a desperate plunge that losing causes often take.

Militarism is not dead, but there are ample signs that the militarists will soon be unhorsed and the Waseda incident is one of them. The War Office realizes this and is really growing afraid of its own shadow.

Young Japan no longer aspires to a naval or a military career and the authorities of both the army and the navy are racking their brains for a method to induce young men to offer themselves as cadets. Even the frequent presence of members of the Royal Family, mostly in uniform, at public functions is not making any great impression on the young man.

CATCH PHRASES FAIL

Distribution of posters and pamphlets have been found useless, while even such slogans as "travel in foreign lands with the navy" and "seeing the world with the navy" are not proving tempting enough.

Seeing that their efforts to induce Young Japan to tread the "path of fame and glory," as the posters term careers in the army and the navy—and which young Japan talks of in terms that verge on the sacrilegious—are destined to failure, the unbending military authorities are now pleading with teachers, parents, governors of provinces and employers to instill "more courage and patriotism" into the young men. So long, however, as the present aversion to military and naval careers lasts—and this aversion is in no small manner due to the shameful pittances that a cadet receives, a pittance that is hardly sufficient to keep him with a decent brand of cigarettes for a month—all the admonition of a third party at the behest of the War Office or the navy department is not likely to prove of much avail.

TO WITHHOLD COUNTY TRAFFIC MEN'S WAGES

CONTROLLER RILEY SEES NO WAY OF LOOSENING UP BUDGET STRINGS

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 23.—Salary claims for county traffic officers appointed under the new Breed Motor Vehicle Law which becomes effective September 1 will not honored by State Controller Ray L. Riley because he claims the Legislature failed to make a valid appropriation for the payment of salaries of such officers.

In making this announcement today, Riley said the new act provides for the payment of the traffic officers out of motor vehicle license funds due to the counties from the State, but that it set aside no definite amount as an appropriation.

Under the law, Riley explained, the State Controller can draw warrants only in cases where the Legislature has made specific appropriations to meet expenditures. The law also makes the Controller personally liable for the payment of any illegal claims.

The Supreme Court held in its decision on State appropriations, Riley declared, that whenever the Controller is in doubt regarding the expenditure of public funds his duty is to apply to the courts.

Will H. Marsh, director of the State Motor Vehicle division, said that in view of Riley's position he would endeavor to work out a plan to have the traffic officers paid through county auditors. This could be done, he explained, by the division failing to deduct from the money due to counties from license collection, the portion needed to pay the traffic officers.

The new Motor Vehicle Act provides that the motor vehicle division shall appoint county traffic officers from lists certified by county boards of supervisors.

McKELLAR HAS PLANS FOR LABOR

Senator on Way to Russia Interests Germany With Farm Scheme

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Aug. 23. — Senator Kenneth D. McKellar of Tennessee, who is en route to Russia, approached and interested the German authorities with a scheme for obtaining German farm labor for America, thereby relieving the shortage in the West and Southwest. According to Senator McKellar, American farmers have been seriously hurt by the immigration law, which limits all immigration and almost stops farm labor entirely. Senator McKellar, who is unable to find a solution of the problem under the present law or the proposed changes, devised a plan for American farmers to pay the passage of German farmers coming to settle in America for a term of years.

The contract-labor law would not be violated, Senator McKellar informed the authorities, because he proposed that the American farmer take the would-be immigrant into partnership, giving the latter tracts of land to work cooperatively. The Senator found thousands of young German peasants willing to go to America on any terms.

Before going to Russia, Senator McKellar, unlike other Senators now touring that country, expressed no opinions or prejudices regarding recognition of the soviet, but spoke to relief workers, diplomatic officials and business men, obtaining the viewpoint from every Russian angle.

Asylum Patient Enters Race for Buffalo Council

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BUFFALO, Aug. 23.—Henry Hoffsteter, an inmate of the Buffalo State Hospital for the Insane, is a candidate for Councilman, an important position, inasmuch as the city of Buffalo has but five Councilmen.

Hoffsteter yesterday filed his entry petition, which bore six hundred signatures, and his name will go on the primaries ballot.

Hoffsteter's name is a familiar one in the Buffalo newspapers. He was committed to the asylum last October because of too much letter-writing to policemen and officials, criticising their actions and conditions. Since becoming an occupant of Ward 11 he has carried on an active letter-writing campaign for his Council candidacy.

Reach Finals of National Tournament by Victory

Tilden and Norton to Meet Alonso and Johnson

BY FRED HAWTHORNE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHESTNUT HILLS (Mass.) Aug. 23.—Lawn tennis was shaken to its foundation once more today in the playing off of the semifinal rounds of the men's annual national championship doubles tournament on the turf courts of the Longwood Cricket Club, when R. Norris Williams II of Philadelphia and Watson M. Washburn of New York defeated James O. Anderson and John B. Hawkes of Australia by a score of 7-5, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. This places Williams and Washburn in the final round, where they will meet the winners of tomorrow's other semifinal match between William T. Tilden II of Philadelphia and Brian I. C. Norton, the British star, and Manuel Alonso of Spain and Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia.

The defeat of Anderson and Hawkes, the pair who will represent Australia in the challenge round matches of the annual Davis Cup series at Forest Hills came as a stunning surprise to the great majority of those in the big gallery. Less than a week ago, in the Newport Casino's invitation tournament Williams and Washburn were defeated by Phil Neer and James M. Davies, the California collegians, in straight sets, while only yesterday Anderson and Hawkes vanquished William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin of California, former holders of the national doubles honors.

VICTOR FAVORED

Tennis fans are now inclined to believe that Williams and Washburn will win the title on Saturday afternoon when the final round match will be played. Tilden and Norton, however, are regarded as most dangerous contenders, for Tilden is playing at the top of his game this week and Norton has shown steady improvement.

The story of the match between Williams and Washburn and Anderson and Hawkes might be briefly summed up by saying that Hawkes was completly off in his play today; that Anderson "broke" badly half way through the third set and only regained his form in the latter stages of the fourth set; that Washburn was playing better than at any time this season, and that Williams was in superb form, playing super tennis throughout the first, third and fourth sets.

That was the gist of things as

CHAMP AND CHALLENGER WORK HARD FOR BATTLE

Dempsey Swaps Punches With Two Partners

BY HARRY NEWMAN

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS (N. Y.) Aug. 23.—George Godfrey and Jack Burke had to don armor plate again this afternoon after a brief lay-off, and serve as sparring partners for Jack Dempsey, who is kicking himself into shape for that fifteen-round engagement with Luis Firpo at the Polo Grounds on September 14.

Something drastic had to be done to provide punch-receivers for the champion, and so Godfrey and Burke were hustled back into line.

Jack Kearns left here late last night for New York, ostensibly for the purpose of filing Dempsey's license application with the boxing bosses, but it is a cinch that Kearns will bring back with him a new corps of sparring mates for the Utah mauler to go to work on.

The weather here was still very cold this afternoon, but Dempsey thoroughly warmed up on the large Godfrey. George, however, is so used to taking them from Jack that he would be disappointed if the champion should ease up on him for a minute.

Jack Burke, looking somewhat refreshed from a two-day lay-off, eased in for a spiel with Dempsey when the latter finished with Godfrey, and Burke's exhibition with the big champion was a real treat. Burke gives Jack a merry time of it with a right hand that carries dynamite in it. Several times this afternoon Burke nailed Dempsey with rocking blows to the head which provoked him to cut loose in earnest. Disposing of the report that Jack Renault, recognized Canadian heavyweight champion, was soon to be matched with Dempsey, announcement was made today that he will soon join the champion's staff as a sparring partner.

Early-to-Bed, Early-to-Rise Firpo's Motto

BY JACK FANELL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 23.—Senor Angel Firpo will adhere strictly to the orthodox American method of training while tuning up here for his $100,000 jam with Jack Dempsey. All this talk about Senor Horatio Lavelle, his millionaire trainer and adviser, introducing new ideas and foreign methods into Firpo's daily routine is the bunk.

Lavelle is strong for the early to bed early to rise stuff. He had Luis under the blankets at 9 o'clock last night and up at 6 this morning. The entire Firpo party took a jaunt along the eight-mile boardwalk but that was the extent of the roadwork, for today at least. Lavelle announced that Firpo may get his first real roadwork along the dusty ocean boulevard tomorrow.

Today was moving day for the Firpo camp. They shifted from the Hotel Edison to an eight-room cottage in the Chelsea section. The cottage fronts on a small lake about a quarter of a mile from the ocean front. The new Firpo abode will be known as "La Casa de Los Angeles," the American interpretation of which is "The House of Angels." Can't go wrong with that name.

With the Dempsey fight three weeks off, Firpo will have to do some tall hustling to be fit. Lavelle, his chief trainer, is no Jimmy De Forest. Firpo has an incompetent staff of sparring partners. Two more dubs are coming tomorrow, Joe McCann, one of the early victims on the Firpo sucker list, and Jeff Clark, the "Joplin Ghost," who never could fight a lick. Al Reich, the diving Adonis, was slated to join this group but he sent

JACK DOYLE TO OPEN NEW COLISEUM TUESDAY

A record crowd is expected Tuesday night when Jack Doyle opens his new Vernon coliseum with an all-star fistic program. The new lay-out is without doubt the finest exclusive fight shed in the country, and with the class of fights Doyle plans to offer the fans, the 10,000 seats will be none too many.

The birds are to be trapped in the White Mountains for transfer here. Governor Hunt promises that some elk and wild pheasant also will be transferred from other Arizona sections.

FORT M'ARTHUR POSSIBLE SITE

Syndicate Guises Match as Benefit Affair

Idea Appears Little Other Than Happy Dream

BY OLIVER B. GARVER

It will be remembered that some time ago A. E. Santwier, heading a syndicate of Hollywood sportsmen, announced the underwriting of a $500,000 purse in this city by the syndicate for a title bout between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons to be staged somewhere in Southern California during the month of November. The idea perhaps was all right, but the possibility of holding such a match seemed indeed remote.

Santwier, fully aware that California's laws controlling boxing would not tolerate such a match, recently appealed through the Disabled Veterans of the World War for permission to hold the affair on Ft. McArthur military reservation at the harbor. In so doing he guised the match as a benefit affair, and true enough, his plan does provide for certain benefits to be derived from the gate by the veterans. Even so, his offer is none too generous as a careful survey of his proposition will disclose.

GENEROUS OFFER

By the terms of the offer made by Santwier, the Los Angeles Post No. 1 of the Disabled Veterans is to receive $40,000 cash immediately following the receipt of a permit to hold the bout. A stadium to be erected at a cost of $70,000 in which the fight would be staged would also be turned over to the post after the fight. The offer also turns over to the ex-soldiers all of the concessions in connection with the affair.

On the face of the thing it would appear that the Veterans would receive something over $100,000 in benefits, but would they in truth be ahead this figure? The arena one would naturally suppose would be charged by the promoters as a part of the expense of staging the affair. At the best they could salvage it for very little over $15,000, and since the arena would be worthless to the promoters after the fight, they have shown wisdom in including it in their offer to the vets. In its immensity and location of what benefit would it be to the ex-soldiers?

WHITE ELEPHANT

The whole thing simmers down to an offer of $40,000, a "white elephant," and the concessions for permission to advertise the bout as a benefit in hopes of putting the match across. Surely this figure is indeed small as compared with the lion's share which would be derived by the syndicate from the successful promotion of a Dempsey-Gibbons bout in Southern California.

Word was recently received from Washington by Santwier through Post No. 1, stating that the matter of the granting of a permit was under consideration, and that the War Department's actions would be forwarded within a few days.

Santwier leaves for San Francisco next week, where he will confer with Kane, Tommy Gibbons's manager, with regard to the match. He will then go from there directly to New York for a conference with Jack Kearns, Dempsey's boss.

Little Bear Surprises at Turf Meeting

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STOCKTON (Cal.) Aug. 23.—Little Bear of the Sacramento stable of Charles F. Silva, surprised race followers today with a victory in the 2:16 class pace which opened the 1923 speed program of professional horse racing under the auspices of the San Joaquin County Fair. Little Bear was beaten by Billie H., owned by A. A. Heater, San Francisco, in the first heat, but after that, was not seriously pressed, turning the mile in 2:07 1-4 in the second heat. Bobby O., the highly-touted eastern bred favorite, fell down in his first California race, not even finishing in the money.

Mary Miles (L. C. Moore, Riverside;) Janet McKiyo (L. H. Todhunter, Sacramento;) Golden West, (Charles Chick, Los Angeles;) and Sleepy Mac. (Allen and Kohrs, Newman) finished in the order named in each heat in the 2:15 class trot.

Mary Miles's best time was 2:12½ made in each of the last two heats.

FOOTWORK IN BACKHAND

What are the commonest faults in the average player's footwork?

Answered by

MANUEL ALONSO

Famous Spanish player, easily the sensation of the 1923 tennis season. "Best European player today, possible world champion in 1924," says Tilden. Defeated Tilden in Illinois State championship match in July. Runner-up to Tilden in numerous 1923 matches, including national clay court championship.

The commonest faults of the average player's foot work are an improper position of the feet in forehand and backhand strokes, and not keeping always up on the toes.

In the first place, always keep up on your toes with your knees slightly bent. Then, in making a return, have your feet in line with the stroke. In making, say, a forehand drive, my feet are in a line at right angles to the net, and when I start the stroke my weight is on my right foot. As I make the stroke, the weight shifts to the forward foot, while in the backhand stroke just the opposite is the case. Never play a backhand with your left foot forward, unless you are left handed. Start with the weight on the left foot and shift it onto the front foot. Beginners should practice footwork as it is most vital—later on it will come instinctively.

SEALS CAPTURE FROM OAKS IN THIRD GAME

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OAKLAND (Cal.) Aug. 23.—Wild pitching by Kremer, combined with poor fielding by his team-mates, gave San Francisco a 7-to-6 victory over Oakland here today. In the second inning Kremer made two costly errors which netted the Seals two runs. They then made two runs in the third by poor fielding.

In the first, fourth and fifth innings, they scored one run each on hits.

In the latter half of the game, the Oaks staged a strong rally and, for several minutes during the ninth, it appeared as though they would put over the tieing run. Shea was pulled from the mound and Hodge retired the Oaks without surrendering a hit. The score:

WOULD CHANGE NAME

Change of the name of Crenshaw Boulevard to California Boulevard was urged upon the City Council yesterday by property owners along the thoroughfare. It was pointed out that the street is known by three different names in different parts of the city, Mesa Drive, Irving avenue and Crenshaw Boulevard. The petitioners asked that the name be the same along the entire length.

WILLIAMS AND WASHBURN WIN

they were today, but there are certain details of the play that should not be overlooked. For one thing Anderson ruined whatever chances he and Hawkes might have had by "blowing up" in the fifth game of the third set, when the score was at 2-all and both teams were fighting with the utmost keenness for the lead, a lead that was to prove the turning point of the match, as it turned out later.

There was reason for Anderson's discomfiture, for a linesman made what appeared to almost the entire gallery as a badly miscalled decision on a drive of Washburn's to the base line.

Anderson stood still in his tracks shocked, it seemed, by the decision that had cost his side a point that had been hard fought for and one of those concerted "groans" sounded from the gallery, by those in a position to see the ball as it struck the ground. There was nothing for the umpire to do however, but call the point against the Australians.

Anderson, still flustered, slammed the next ball into the net viciously giving the game to Williams and Washburn, and a lead they held tenaciously for the remainder of the match. The Americans lost the next three games for the set at 6-2 with both Anderson and Hawkes playing wildly and getting only five points during that period.

AMERICANS LEAD

In the fourth set the games went to 2-1 for Williams and Washburn following a break through Hawkes's service. Then Washburn dropped his and Anderson made good on his service. Williams then came through with a wonderful exhibition of service, taking the game on four forced errors, three by Hawkes, into the net and one "out" by Anderson.

Hawkes made it 4-3 by using his erratic alley bounding service to advantage and Anderson smothering two weak returns at the net for dazzling placements and then Hawkes, for the third point, scored a perfect service ace and followed this up by making one of the most brilliant recoveries of the match. Williams had slipped over one of his remarkable angled volleying shots almost parallel to the net, the ball landing close to the outside line of the side alley. Hawkes by a prodigious effort got his back hand on it and returned the ball to the opposite side of the court, down Williams's alley, scoring a placement and winning the game. That was the last victory for the Australians, however, Williams and Washburn taking the last three games after some dazzling exchanges. In the ninth game of this set Anderson dropped his service game for the second time in the match. The final point came when Anderson returned to the net off his backhand, as he tried to dig up a ball that Williams had struck squarely to his feet inside the service court lines.

Hawkes lost his service not less than five times in the four sets, Washburn four times, Anderson twice and Williams once and those figures form quite accurate gauge of the power of the various services today. Williams was bringing off every imaginable variety of shot throughout the match from half volleys to scorching drives through deep court and his backhand slashes across forecourt at unplayable angles were a delight to the eye of the tennis enthusiast. The former national champion's service as has been pointed out was a deadly weapon in his hands and Anderson and Hawkes were almost placed squarely on the defensive when receiving from Williams.

BEAVERS ANNEX PAIR AND EVEN UP SERIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 23.—Portland took both ends of a double-header staged at Moreing Field before a record week-day crowd this afternoon, collecting for the first combat by punching Yellowhorse hard in the sixth and seventh periods for a 5-to-4 triumph and pummeling Thompson, Shea and Canfield for a second victory, score 9 to 1. In the first tilt the Solons had sixteen men left on the bags, Crumpler fanning both McNeely and Kopp with two down and the sacks loaded, respectively, in the fourth and fifth periods. The Beavers cinched the second encounter in the third by finding Lefty Thompson for three singles, a double and Poole's home run over the right barrier. The Beavers double win evens the series at two games each with five games yet to play. Score:

Los Angeles has been showing flashes of that form which was so optomistically predicted for it last spring. Behind good pitching it takes on the aspect of a championship club.

True, the entire onus does not rest with the moundmen, although the staff, through injuries and reversals, failed to deliver in the manner anticipated. There have been occasions when the team failed to bat in a winning number of runs behind almost air-tight pitching. So the blame for the club's present standing must be distributed, although it has been attributed in a large measure to them, and they are in a measure responsible.

Present plans call for the addition of at least two additional boxmen for next season, and if the right sort are obtained the prospects will be encouraging. Indications are that Doc Crandall will be just as good a year hence as at present, and he is one of the best in the minors. Elmer Ponder shows signs of rounding into form, and if this presages a good year in 1924 it means about twenty-five wins for the wiry right-hander.

George Lyons has finally reached what appears to be about the top form of his career after being handicapped the first two months with an arm so painful that he sometimes imagined there was a ripe boil on his elbow.

Percy Lee Jones is a 50 per cent better pitcher than when he joined the club. This change for the better came with a change in his style. Almost useless the first half of the season, Jones started on the upgrade and should be valuable from the start next year.

Bobby Wallace, still little beyond his teens, seems finally to have arrived. He has height and a quiet, unassuming courage which it seems difficult to disturb. Bobby needs more weight, and figures to take this on by the process of natural growth and squaring out. He seems destined to be a great pitcher, and the coming season may see a partial realization of these prospects. He will at least be a regular. Hanna and Robertson are good prospects, and should do something next year, although they will hardly be ready for a steady job.

Tom Hughes has pitched some wonderfully fine ball, being a bit unfortunate at times when the club neglected to do any batting behind very good pitching. It is claimed that two games a week tends to dull his effectiveness. Every team should have one pitcher for relief purposes only, and Hughes with his experience and cunning, would be a good candidate for a job.

Were the present staff merely kept intact, illogical as it may seem, the heaving would figure to be of a higher order in 1924 than this year on the basis of the season's play. This is predicated on the improvement in Jones, and the probable recovery of Ponder. True, the veterans will be a year older. So will the youngsters, and that helps. However, as stated, it is planned to add from one to three fresh pitchers, preferably fairly young, but not inexperienced, the sort who can stand the grind of a long season.

What other change will be made is problematical. Joe Patrick, president of the club, is frankly puzzled.

Recently he looked over the club as it took the field.

"Candidly, I hardly would know in what positions to make changes in order to strengthen the team," he said. "Every position in the field looks strong. In short, it strikes me as a good ball club, and hardly belongs this low in the race. But we will make a number of shifts next winter if for no other reason than that the fans expect it."

That Patrick doesn't blame Manager Krug is apparent from the fact that he will retain him for another season.

Joe's pride is deeply wounded, so to speak, particularly as the Los Angeles club heretofore has at least been in the race. He doesn't know exactly where to start, but he's going somewhere for better or worse.

And there will be a batch of new hired help next spring, with the number of casualties among the present boarders governed by the team's showing between now and October.

FIRPO SCOFFS AT PALMIST'S PLEAS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) Aug. 23.—A mysterious dark woman accosted Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight pugilist, as he returned from his training camp last night.

"Let me read your palm," she said. "I will tell your future."

"No," replied Firpo, as he passed along. "My future is not in my palm. It's in my fist and the strength behind it."

AXWORTHY OFFSPRING CLEAN UP

Lee Worthy and Traux Win Big Grand Circuit Purses at North Randall

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NORTH RANDALL CLEVELAND (O.) Aug. 23.—It was decidedly a Guy Axworthy day here today. Lee Worthy, a grandson of the famous sire, won the "first ever" purse $10,000, for trotters that have never acquired a record ofbetter than two minutes, and his own son, Truax, had no trouble in annexing the main division of the Rainy Day Sweepstakes for two year old trotters, with a value of $10,950.

Lee Worthy, owned and driven by Ben F. White, Lexington, Ky., was forced to go three heats to win his event. He came from behind to take the first heat by half a length from the fast coming Periscope, but in the third and deciding mile he led practically the entire distance, again defeating the entry of J. L. Dodge, Lexington. Lee Worthy was unequal to the task in the second mile, Periscope trotting the last quarter in 29 4-5 seconds.

The first four horses finished noses apart in this heat.

Truax caused an upset when he took the sweepstakes. Driven by Dick McMahon, the W. M. Wright, Chicago, colt won as he pleased.

Walter Cox's Athalie had no trouble winning the Rainy Day Sweepstakes consolation division with a value of $2000. The filly took both heats pulled up, with Miriam Harvester second.

Fred Edman, the Memphis horseman, who was injured yesterday, was discharged from the hospital today. He and Vic Fleming, the Canadian reinsman, also injured, will be able to drive before the season ends, they said.

BERKELEY GIVES NEW NET CHAMP OVATION

BERKELEY (Cal.) Aug. 23.—Miss Helen Wills, the youthful national women's tennis champion, arrived at her home here today, and was uproariously greeted. A delegation of the Chamber of Commerce and scores of her young friends met the train and overwhelmed the smiling young player with their congratulations.

Although stating that she was "scared to death" at the reception, Miss Wills was unusually lively when she arrived at her home in company with her father, Dr. C. A. Wills, an Oakland physician, announced that she might go out and practice a bit later in the day.

Cleveland Stops Senators in Tenth Frame

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Aug. 23.—The New York Yankees lost its first series in the west this season when they lost today's game to Detroit, 2 to 1. The best the Yankees can do is to win tomorrow's remaining game, which will make the series stand two losses and one victory. Heilmann hit his fifteenth homer of the season in the last half of the second after Pipp had cracked out one in the first half.

More than 1500 school lads were guests of the Elks to help celebrate "Babe Ruth Day." The Bambino, however, failed to clout out what all the lads wished for. The Yankee slugger was presented with a full size silver baseball and bat by the Young Men's Order of Detroit. Heilmann and Pillette of the Tigers received a diamond ring and a pair of diamond cuff links, respectively, from the order. Score:

MOLLA, TILDEN IN SEMIFINALS

Miss Goss and Vincent Richards lost the first set of their match against Mrs. A. F. Reis of Saginaw, Mich., and Walter Wesbrook, western champion, at 10-12, but then broke through and won the next two sets, 6-2, 6-2.

They had little difficulty in defeating Mrs. Geraldine Beamish and Samuel Hardy in the third round, winning 6-1, 6-3.

BENGALS AGAIN SMEARED

Tom Hughes Puts Down Vernon Rally in Eleventh; Babe Twombly is Hitting Star

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS

Sandow Griggs shouldered a home run over the scoreboard in the eleventh inning, ending considerable agony, and giving Los Angeles its fourth straight win over Vernon, 5 to 4.

Griggs, who had expected to enjoy a day of leisure, was in the game largely by accident, his presence becoming necessary when Billy McCabe was bounced by Umpire Casey in the seventh, creating a situation which required the services of Walter Golvin in left.

Vernon made so strong a bid in the final frame that Tom Hughes was called in to relieve Lefty Thomas with the bases filled and two out. Tom pitched just one ball. That was to Bodie, who banged it to McAuley for a force-out. Elmer Ponder started for Krug's men, but was deleted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

CRUZE LOOKS GOOD

Cecil Cruze, late of San Fernando, started on the firing line for Vernon and stuck there in fine style until the ninth, when in the extremity of the situation he was taken out at the plate for Zanic, who with a double started what developed into the tieing run. Frank Shellenback took to the slab at start of tenth, and was the unfortunate party jarred by Griggs.

Both sides displayed an eager desire for action early, which is to be commended. Take Babe Twombly as an example. Two had been retired in the first inning, when Babe up and crashed a triple off Cruze, scoring on Hood's single.

Vernon should have scored in a procession in the second, but contended itself with merely retaliating in kind. Ponder walked Bodie, and then punctured Hannah and Warner. This made three batters bowled over by Ponder in two frames, and it began to take on the aspect of a game of nine pins. The casualities loaded the bases with none down, and when the batters had been set up again the game proceeded with Rader driving to Ponder. Bodie was safe when Byler spilled the toss to the plate. Bott then forced Hannah at the pan, Krug to Byler. Ponder fanned Cruze and Chadbourne grounded to Lindimore.

ANGELS TAKE LEAD

Los Angeles went two out in front in the third when McAuley and Twombly singled and Hood cracked a double off his favorite spot on the scoreboard.

Vernon picked up one in fifth, which was a freak inning of extremes. Six were up. Three of these singled and three struck out. The whiffees were Bott, Rod Murphy and Bodie. Those connecting were, reading from left to right, Cruze, Chadbourne and Hyatt. This resulted in one synthetic run.

Carroll was sent in to bat for Ponder in the sixth and Lefty Thomas then took hold. It was in this round that Vernon knotted the going. Hannah and Warner cocked singles, and Rader drew a pass. The front runner scored when Denny Murphy, batting for Bott, bumped into a double play. Slade, a stranger, then went in at second for Vernon.

McCABE IS BOUNCED

In next inning there was slight change in Los Angeles's line-up. McCabe drove to Slade and protested the decision at first. Umpire Casey won the short, snappy argument which followed. One jerk of Mr. Casey's best thumb, and Billy was riding the rollers. Golvin shifted from first to left, and Sandow Griggs assumed the lead-off position, as well as playing first base. Looks strange to see a natural anchor man at the head of the class. But he can hit there as well as elsewhere.

Situation remained stuck 3 to 3 until ninth when score was loosened momentarily and then tightened up again. Each scored one. Cruze had disposed of Thomas in ninth when he changed his tactics and walked Griggs. Sandow took second on McAuley's out and scored when Twombly singled to center. This was Babe's fourth shot.

Bengals made the most of what might have been their last chance. Essick sent Zanic in to bat for Cruze, and Mr. Zanic delivered fully with a double. High was substituted for him on the bases. Thomas pepped wide trying to trap Hughie off second, and the latter took third. Schneider was passed. Looked like playing politics. Bodie came through with a heavy double to right. The ball sailed over Twombly, and rebounded from the bleacher base into his hands. Schneider was sweeping around toward the plate. Babe's shot came in true to McAuley, and Jimmy snapped to the plate. The ball pinged into Byler's mitt, and Schneider, with what would have been the winning run, was nailed a yard from the plate.

Clubs then settled for a couple of extra rounds with Shellenback on slab for Vernon. There were only a few skyrockets in tenth. But eleventh was all awash with action. Two batters had taken count from Shellenback, when Griggs jolted a gigantic homer into Main street. McAuley flied, leaving Angels one to good. But the Bengals were not to expire without a throe of dissolution. Slade lead off in tenth with single, and Shellenback flied. Quick safeties by Chadbourne and Rod Murphy filled the bases. With Tom Hughes frantically warming up in bull pen, Thomas offered up prayer, and pitched to Schneider. This was answered, P. Samson popping to Lindimore. By this time Hughes was ready, and we find him facing Bodie. Ping swung on the first ball pitched. The result was a grounder which McAuley shovelled to Linimore, forcing R. Murphy. Score:

A GREAT TIRE'S PARAMOUNT ADVANTAGE

The new Goodyear Cord Tire embodies many important advantages, such as long-staple cotton, patented group-ply construction, heavier and tougher sidewalls, stronger ply-unions and so on.

But its paramount advantage remains the celebrated All-Weather Tread, now made even more efficient and longer-wearing than before.

Thicker than other treads, its big sharp-edged self-cleaning blocks clutch and cling on any surface, digging through to solid footing and a safe stop.

Against skidding, slipping or loss of traction they set up a powerful wedge-like resistance, applying in full the power of your engine or brakes.

For your own and your family's sake you ought to have under your car the security that only Goodyear Tires with the All-Weather Tread can give.

FISHING SCHOONER IS DAMAGED BY FLOE

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SEATTLE Aug. 23.—The halibut schooner Radio, one of the newest and largest vessels of Seattle's fishing fleet, struck a submerged iceberg near Cape Spencer, northern entrance of the Alaskan inside passage, and was forced to put into Prince Rupert, B. C., with a smashed stem and bow planking, according to word received here. Exceptionally hot weather has caused hundreds of icebergs to break from the glaciers in the vicinity of Cape Spencer, fishermen have reported, and Icy Strait and adjacent waters are filled with huge blocks of ice, an exceptional occurrence at this time of the year.

Disinfect the MOUTH

We have long known how necessary it is to keep receptacles and utensils which come in contact with food in a sanitary condition.

Health authorities have recently come to the conclusion that the human mouth, through which all food must pass, should also be disinfected at frequent intervals.

Zonite, the new non-poisonous yet highly germicidal antiseptic, is especially effective for this purpose. Its daily use as a mouth wash is recommended by physicians and dentists as a preventive measure against pyorrhea and other germ diseases.

Flavored, pleasant tasting mouth washes have little germicidal power and will not destroy the bacteria which develop and multiply in the fluids of the oral cavity.

Until you have used Zonite, you will never be properly protected from disease, and you will never know the feeling of a clean, odorless, germ-free mouth.

ARIZONA TROOPS BREAK UP CAMP

Garden Canyon Quarters Are Left Behind

Gov. Hunt Has Experience in Rainstorm

Tucson Men Capture Honors With Rifles

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FORT HUACHUCA (Ariz.) Aug. 23.—"Camp Hanigan" is deserted by the battalion of Arizona National Guardsmen who have been occupying the Garden Canyon site since August 4. The name was given in honor of Lieut.-Col. H. A. Hanigan, senior instructor in infantry tactics who soon is to leave Arizona for assignment to the Twentieth infantry at San Antonio.

The guardsmen mainly were from Phoenix, with additional companies from Tucson and Casa Grande. Honors in rifle competition were taken by the Tucson men.

Maj. Jerry Croaff, senior officer of the Arizona troops, declares the camp one of the best ever known, with notably good conditions of housing and subsistence. Surgeon F. H. Redewill and the hospital corps had little to do, as only four men were on the sick report. Lieut. Redewill was in charge of the band, recently organized in Phoenix, yet constituting one of the enjoyable features of the encampment.

Gov. Hunt, who was a visitor from Phoenix for a day, was caught in a windy rain storm that blew a tent down over him and compelled resort to an automobile for shelter. In an address here, the Governor stated that he has had to reform his ideas with reference to war. He now believes that the best way to avoid war is "to keep our country so well prepared that no other nation will dare to attack or provoke us."

Col. A. J. MacNab, Jr., commanding the Twenty-fourth Infantry, was a visitor to the camp, with unofficial inspection of the rifle range work. He will bring his entire regiment here September 10 for field maneuvers in conjunction with the Tenth Cavalry, which has headquarters at the local post.

RUSSIA IS GRATEFUL FOR AMERICAN RELIEF

ADMINISTRATOR SAYS THERE IS NO FOOD SHORTAGE IN COUNTRY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—America's aid to Russia through the American Relief Administration is called by the Soviet government "the greatest single service rendered in the history of the world by one nation to another," according to Col. William N. Haskell, director of the Administration, who returned on the steamship Homeric, today.

Col. Haskell's first act on arriving was to convey to the American people the "undying gratitude of millions of Russians."

There is no longer a food shortage in Russia, he said, and if the crop yield this year is as great as it promises, the farmers will be able to export 2,000,000 tons of grain. The present crop is from 60 to 70 per cent of the normal crop before the war.

Russian leaders are anxious to reestablish diplomatic relations with other countries, according to Col. Haskell. He said this could not come about until the political situation in Russia changes, which might be ten or twenty years away.

Nine hundred thousand tons of supplies were transported to Russia by the Administration at a cost of $60,000,000 to America, he said.

HELD ON CHARGE OF WITNESS-TAMPERING

GOVERNMENT'S AIDE SAYS HE TALKED TO OTHERS ABOUT CASE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—William H. Deighton, chief government witness in the trial of Fred N. Littleton, former chief naturalization examiner here, on a charge of violating the naturalization laws, was taken into custody during the trial in the United States District Court today in connection with an investigation of witness-tampering. He was ordered held until he appears to testify.

Deighton is said in the prosecution's evidence to have acted as a "go between" in the supposedly illegal negotiations of Littleton and certain foreigners who were seeking naturalization. Deighton admitted on the stand today that he had approached two witnesses in regard to the case, and two others, prospective witnesses, testified that they had been approached by Deighton also.

The jury was excused while the court inquiry into the alleged tampering was going on.

SURGEONS PERFORM MANY OPERATIONS

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—Although the average surgical crew should perform no more than four or five major operations a day, some crews are performing many more than that number, Rev. P. J. Mahan, vice-president of the Catholic Hospital Association, said today at the California-Arizona-Nevada conference of the association. "Many surgeons for reasons best known to themselves undertake as many as fourteen operations in one day," Rev. Mahan said.

BOOZE IN LOBSTER POTS

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Aug. 23.—Lobster pots are being used for liquor caches along the Connecticut shore of Long Island Sound, according to officials. A seizure of $4000 worth of alcohol on a truck near here last night is said to have been accumulated from lobster pots.

Cae un Auto desde un Terraplén de Veinticinco Pies

Seis personas que viajaban en un gran auto de turismo se escaparon milagrosamente de la muerte o de graves lesiones esta mañana. Cayó su coche desde la parte superior de un terraplén de veinticinco pies de altura, en el cañón de Topanga, cerca del rancho de Cooper. Dió dos vueltas el auto en su caída, habiendo arrojado de sus asientos a los viajeros.

Padecen lesiones relativamente ligeras, Earl Williams, de la calle Tercera, 2721, Santa Monica, que conducía el coche, y la Srita. G. E. Barnett, domiciliada en la misma ciudad, Avenida Fraser, 138. A Williams se le luxó la espalda, y a la Srita. Barnett se le fracturaron una muñeca y un tobillo. Se les condujo al Sanatorio de Martin. Los otros cuatro viajeros salieron magullados y algo sacudidos.

Inventor Detenido Otra Vez por Molestar a una Joven con sus Atenciones

Eloise Clement, de 26 años, que da conferencias sobre vibraciones, recurrió ayer de nuevo a la ley para que se le ayude a resistir la tenaz y ardiente corte que le hace Michael Degnen, inventor que cuenta 53 años de edad. A petición de la quejosa, Degnen ha sido encartado por el Gran Jurado, que le hace cargos de haber cometido asalto con intentos de asesinar y de violar. El 9 de julio próximo pasado, la Srita. Clement hizo que arrestaran a Degnen, habiéndolo denunciado por ultrajes. Diósele libre bajo caución de $5000. Ayer comunicó la querellante al Teniente Fiscal Becker que las molestas atenciones de Degnen persistían. Después de haber sido inculpado por el Gran Jurado, Degnen compareció ante el Juez Avery, quien le fijó fianza por $10,000, y aplazó la audiencia para mañana.

Dice la Srita. Clement que conoció a Degnen en marzo último, con motivo de que éste asistió a una de las conferencias que ella da en su casa, sita en el 1855, North Kingsley Drive. Demostró él gran interés en ella y la invitó a que usara su laboratorio. Agrega ella que trabajó durante tres semanas en el laboratorio de él, y al terminar ese tiempo le pidió Degnen su mano, iniciándose allí, según refiere ella, una corte tenaz y violenta.

DEPORTES

Tennis

BROOKLINE (Mass.) agosto 23. Mañana se disputarán aquí, el Oeste y el Oeste Central, el campeonato menor de tennis, y van a encontrarse en la tanda final del torneo de campeonato nacional, Edward G. Chandler, de Berkeley, y George Lott, Jr., de Chicago. Chandler había eliminado a Allen Harrington, de Los Angeles, en la tanda semifinal. En la división de muchachos, Malcolm T. Hill y H. L. Johnson, ambos de Waban, se disputarán el título nacional de muchachos.

Dick Williams y "Watty" Washburn, última esperanza de América en el torneo nacional de parejas de tennis, justificaron hoy noblemente la confianza en ellos depositada, deteniendo en su carrera de triunfo al sensacional equipo de Australia, compuesto de J. O. Anderson y J. B. Hawkes y venciéndolo en las semifinales por 7-5, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. Resultó una gran victoria para un equipo que había sido batido ignominiosamente hace dos semanas, en series seguidas, por los mozos de la Universidad de Stanford, Neer y Davis.

Baseball

Sandow Griggs logró un home run en el undécimo turno, aliviando la agonía que reinaba, y dando a Los Angeles su cuarta victoria consecutiva sobre Vernon, por 5 a 4.

Pugilato

Espérase nutrida muchedumbre la noche del próximo martes en la inauguración del nuevo tablado de Jack Doyle, en Vernon. Habrá puros ases en el programa. Joe Benjamin, uno de los primeros pesoligeros del país, contenderá en el número principal con Phil Salvadore, en tanto que Midget Smith, peso bantam de Nueva York, se las verá en la final con Frankie Farrell.

NUMERO 29

Pláticas Diarias en Español por el Prof. R. Guerrero, del Departamento Español de The Times

Continúa la lista de frases empezada en mi plática anterior: 14. Le ruego que acepte mis más sinceras condolencias por la pérdida que ha padecido Ud. 15. Por más que le pregunté, no conseguí contesta suya. 16. El crece del río inundó algunos de nuestros campos. 17. Haga Ud. de cuenta que nada hemos dicho. 18. El carretero azotó a las bestias con el chicote. 19. Consiguió que le dieran aquel destino a punta de dinero. 20. No está aún completo el elenco de la usina que acabamos de abrir. 21. El muchacho se empelotó para echarse al río. 22. No quiso prolongar su estadía en aquella población. 23. Es de fuerza que venzamos cuanto antes a nuestros enemigos. 24. Te aseguro que no le arriesgo la ganancia al que se meta conmigo. 25. Espero que tu amigo vendrá a visitarnos la otra semana. 26. Esperábamos por momentos la llegada de aquel mensaje. 27. A cada ocasión tendré que dar mi opinión en este asunto. 28. Conduéleme mucho la noticia que me das. 29. Es premioso que cuanto antes le avisemos de nuestra determinación. 30. Hacen cuatro años que vino su padre a esta ciudad. 31. Su caballería perdió el herraje antes de haber caminado cuatro leguas. 32. Este manjar empieza ya a hostigarme. 33. Hubieron veinte hombres que se quedaron en la calle. 34. No creo que tenga la intemerata de presentarse aquí después de lo sucedido. 35. No puedo soportar la malcriadez de ese individuo que me presentaste. 36. Hay que cuidar de la mantención de esta casa.

Correcciones: 1. Acaban de traerme las pruebas para la CARATULA de mi próxima novela. Dígase "portada" o "frontis," por cuanto "carátula" significa "careta," "antifaz." 2. En la CARATULA del reloj del edificio de The Times, no están marcadas las horas con números romanos. El americanismo "carátula," en el sentido de "esfera" de reloj, se usa mucho en Méjico. Hay que evitarlo. 3. Se plancha toda clase de ropa, como SER camisas, cuellos, calzoncillos, etc. Suprímase "ser." 4. El gobierno ha decidido CONSULTAR los fondos necesarios para esta empresa. En algunos sitios de América se "consultan" fondos para cualquier cosa, y como "consultar" quiere decir "pedir dictamen o consejo," salta a los ojos la impropiedad de su uso en la frase anterior. Dígase "destinar," "votar," "solicitar," según los casos. 5. Ayer fuimos a DONDE Martinez, y esta tarde pensamos ir a LO de Antonio. Son los apuntados, feos americanismos que no se oyen nunca en Méjico, pero que son de uso muy general en Sudamérica.

Continuaremos este ejercicio en la siguiente plática. En la plática 28, frase 6, me pusieron "partuda," en vez de "parvada."

ZINC INDUSTRY FOUNDER DEAD

D. B. Jones Passes Away at Lake Forest

Magnate Became Ill Here Last May

Was Rushed East on Train That Cost $11,000

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—David Benton Jones, one of the founders of the zinc industry in America, died at his home in Lake Forest last night after a long illness. He was 75 years old and was one of the wealthiest men in the country.

Mr. Jones was taken ill last May at his winter home near Los Angeles, and was rushed back to the care of his physicians here by a special train over the Santa Fe. The train, which cost more than $11,000, made the trip twenty-four hours faster than regular scheduled time.

HERMIT MILLIONAIRE

As president and chairman of the board of directors of the Mineral Point Zinc Company, Mr. Jones was one of the leading capitalists of the Middle West. He was known by some of his acquaintances as "the hermit millionaire." He had lived lately in almost complete seclusion either in his magnificent home in Lake Forest, his California estate, his winter home in Florida, or his Chicago town house at 1435 Astor street.

He was born in Pembrokeshire, North Wales, in 1848. He came to this country as a boy and received his education here, graduating from Princeton University in 1876. He was a close friend of ex-President Wilson in his undergraduate days.

THOSE WHO SURVIVE

Thomas D. Jones, a brother, who was his classmate at Princeton, was his lifelong associate in the zinc business. Beside his brother, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. E. H. Bennett, 1316 Ritchie Court, and Miss Gwenthalyn Jones, to whom, in 1918, he made a gift of his Astor-street property, valued at $300,000. Two sons also survive him, Owen P. Jones, who is associated with him in the zinc business, and Herbert Jones, a poet, who is living in London.

Funeral services are to be conducted in the Lake Forest Presbyterian Church on Saturday afternoon.

The Little Warrior

BY P. G. WODEHOUSE

Jill took the letter, and glanced at the writing. It was from Uncle Chris. She placed it on the axe over the firebuckets for perusal later.

"The man at the box-office gave it to me," said Wally, "when I looked in there to find out how much money there was in the house tonight. The sum was so small that he had to whisper it."

"I'm afraid the piece isn't a success."

"Nonsense! Of course it is! We're doing fine. That brings me to section (b) of my discourse. I met poor old Pilkington in the lobby, and he said exactly what you have just said, only at greater length."

"Is Mr. Pilkington here?" asked Jill.

"He appears to have run down on the afternoon train to have a look at the show. He is catching the next train back to New York. Whenever I meet him, he always seems to be dashing off to catch the next train back to New York. Poor chap! Have you ever done a murder? If you haven't don't! I know exactly what it feels like, and it feels rotten! After two minutes conversation with Pilkington, I could sympathize with Macbeth when he chatted with Banquo. He said I had killed his play. He nearly wept, and he drew such a moving picture of a poor helpless musical fantasy being lured into a dark alley by thugs and there slaughtered that he almost had me in tears too. I felt like a beetle-browed brute with a dripping knife and hands inbrued with innocent gore."

"Poor Mr. Pilkington!"

"Once more you say exactly what he said, only more crisply. I comforted him as well as I could, told him all was for the best and so on, and he flung the box-office receipts in my face and said that the piece was as bad a failure commercially as it was artistically. I couldn't say anything to that, seeing what a house we've got tonight, except to bid him look out to the horizon where the sun will shortly shine. In other words, I told him that business was about to buck up and that later on he would be going about the place with a sprained wrist from clipping coupons. But he refused to be cheered, cursed me some more for ruining his piece, and ended by begging me to buy his share of it cheap."

"You aren't going to?"

"No, I am not—but simply and solely for the reason that, after that fiasco in London, I raised my right hand—thus—and swore an oath that never, as long as I lived, would I again put up a cent for a production, were it the most obvious cinch on earth. I'm gun-shy. But if he does happen to get hold of any one with a sporting disposition and a few thousands to invest, that person will make a fortune. This piece is going to be a gold-mine."

Jill looked at him in surprise. With anybody else but Wally she would have attributed this confidence to author's vanity. But with Wally, she felt, the fact that the piece, as played now, was almost entirely his own work did not count. He viewed it dispassionately, and she could not understand why, in the face of half-empty houses, he should have such faith in it.

"But what makes you think so? We've been doing awfully badly so far."

Wally nodded.

"And we shall do awfully badly in Syracuse the last half of this week. And why? For one thing, because the show isn't a show at all at present. That's what you can't get these fatheads like Goble to understand. All they go by is the box-office. Why should people flock to pay for seats for what are practically dress rehearsals of an unknown play? Half the principals have had to get up in their parts in two weeks, and they have not had time to get anything out of them. They are groping for their lines all the time. The girls can't let themselves go in the numbers, because they are wondering if they are going to remember the steps. The show hasn't had time to click together yet. It's just ragged. Take a look at it in another two weeks! I know! I don't say musical comedy is a very lofty form of art, but still there's a certain amount of science about it. If you go in for it long enough, you learn the tricks, and take it from me that, if you have a good cast and some catchy numbers, it is almost impossible not to have a success. We've got an excellent cast now, and the numbers are fine. The thing can't help being a hit.

There's another thing to think of. It so happens that we shall go into New York with practically nothing against us. Usually you have half a dozen musical successes to compete with, but just at the moment there's nothing. But the chief reason for not being discouraged by bad houses so far is that we've been playing bad towns. Every town on the road has its special character. Some are good show-towns, others are bad. Nobody knows why. Detroit will take anything. So will Washington. Whereas Cincinnati wants something very special. Where have we been? Atlantic City, Baltimore, and here. Atlantic city is a great place to play in the summer and for a couple of weeks round about Easter. Also at Christmas. But for the rest of the year, no. Too many new shows are tried out there. It makes the inhabitants wary. Baltimore is good for a piece with a New York reputation, but they don't want new pieces. Rochester and Syracuse are always bad. 'Follow the Girl' died a hideous death in Rochester, and it went on and played two years in New York and one in London. I tell you—as I tried to tell Pilkington, only he wouldn't listen—that this show is all right. There is a fortunate in it for somebody. But I suppose Pilkington is now sitting in the smoking car of an eastbound train, trying to get the porter to accept his share in the piece instead of a tip!"

If Otis Pilkington was not actually doing that, he was doing something like it. Sunk in gloom, he bumped up and down on an uncomfortable seat, wondering why he had ever taken the trouble to make the trip to Rochester. He had found exactly what he had expected to find, a mangled caricature of his brain-child playing to a house half empty and wholly indifferent. The only redeeming feature, he thought vindictively, as he remembered what Roland Trevis had said about the cost of musical productions, was the fact that the new numbers were undoubtedly better than those which his collaborator had originally supplied.

And "The Rose of America," after a disheartening Wednesday matinee and a not much better reception on the Wednesday night, packed its baggage and moved to Syracuse, where it failed just as badly. Then for another two weeks it wandered on from one small town to another, up and down New York State and through the doldrums of Connecticut, tacking to and fro like a storm-battered ship, till finally the astute and discerning citizens of Hartford welcomed it with such a reception that hardened principals stared at each other in a wild surmise, wondering if these things could really be; and a weary chorus forgot its weariness and gave encore after encore with a snap and vim which even Mr. Johnson Miller was obliged to own approximated to something like it. Nothing to touch the work of his choruses of the old days, of course, but nevertheless fair, quite fair.

The spirits of the company revived. Optimism reigned. Principals smiled happily and said they had believed in the thing all along. The ladies and gentlemen of the ensemble chattered contentedly of a year's run in New York. And the citizens of Hartford fought for seats, and, if they could not get seats, stood up at the back.

Of these things Otis Pilkington was not aware. He had sold his interest in the piece two weeks ago for $10,000 to a lawyer acting for some client unknown, and was glad to feel that he had saved something out of the wreck.

Chapter XVIII

The violins soared to one last high note; the bassoon uttered a final moan; the pensive person at the end of the orchestra pit, just under Mrs. Waddesleigh Peagrim's box, whose duty it was to slam the drum at stated intervals, gave that much-enduring instrument a concluding wallop; and, laying aside his weapons, allowed his thoughts to stray in the direction of cooling drinks. Mr. Saltzburg lowered the baton which he had stretched quivering toward the roof and sat down and mopped his forehead. The curtain fell on the first act of "The Rose of America," and simultaneously tremendous applause broke out from all over the Gotham Theater, which was crammed from floor to roof with that heterogeneous collection of humanity which makes up the audience of a New York opening performance. The applause continued like the breaking of waves on a stony beach. The curtain rose and fell, rose and fell, rose and fell again. An usher, stealing down the central aisle, gave to Mr. Saltzburg an enormous bouquet of American Beauty roses, which he handed to the prima donna, who took it with a brilliant smile and a bow nicely combining humility with joyful surprise. The applause, which had begun to slacken, gathered strength again. It was a superb bouquet, nearly as big as Mr. Saltzburg himself. It had cost the prima dona close on to $100 that morning at Thorley's, but it was worth every cent of the money.

The house-lights went up. The audience began to move up the aisles to stretch its legs and discuss the piece during the intermission. There was a general babble of conversation. Here, a composer who had not got an interpolated number in the show was explaining to another composer who had not got an interpolated number in the show the exact source from which a third composer who had got an interpolated number in the show had stolen the number which he had got interpolated. There, two musical comedy artists who were temporarily resting were agreeing that the prima donna was a dear thing but that, contrary as it was to their life-long policy to knock anybody, they must say that she was beginning to show the passage of the years a trifle and ought to be warned by some friend that her career as an ingenue was a thing of the past. Dramatic critics, slinking in twos and threes into dark corners, were telling each other that "The Rose of America" was just another of those things but it had apparently got over. The general public was of the opinion that it was a knock-out.

AMERICAN-JAPANESE TREATY IS RENEWED

DOCUMENT GOES INTO FORCE AGAIN FOR FIVE YEARS WITHOUT CHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The treaty of arbitration between the United States and Japan, which had expired by limitation, was renewed today for a period of five years without change.

The renewal was announced by the State Department after a conference between Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Hanihara at which notes confirming the new agreement were exchanged.

The treaty was signed originally in Washington in 1908 and was renewed in 1913 and in 1918. The notes exchanged today contained a provision that in case the Senate gives its assent to President Harding's proposal for participation by the United States in the permanent court of international justice, the two governments will consider the making of an agreement under which the disputes, of the nature described in the treaty, could be referred to the permanent court of international justice. A similar understanding was reached between the United States and Great Britain and the United States and France when arbitration treaties between them recently were renewed.

Col. Purcell and Skinner soon will come here to plead.

TORN BEDROOM SHADE ATTRACTS MANY EYES

CHICAGO WOMAN'S DRESSING NEAR WINDOW LEADS TO DAMAGE SUIT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—News that a shade on her bedroom window was torn and that it kept several men neighbors in the vicinity of Mrs. Elsie Kroger's flat busy in their back yards and on imaginary errands in the alley on which the window faced, came out here today.

Mrs. Kroger, who is not hard to look at, tried undressing and dressing without a light, but the moon peeked and as the night went on, the number of interested spectators increased. She complained to Sam Goldstein, her landlord, but he suggested she repair the shade at her own expense.

"He got fresh," said Mrs. Kroger, who began a $5000 damage suit against him today. "He said maybe if I let them look long enough, the neighbors would buy a new shade. Then I tried to hit him with a milk bottle, but he wrenched it from me and beat me on the head with it, as a result of which I became ill."

MELLON FAVORS CUT IN SURTAX

Will Renew Recommendation at Next Congress

Secretary Also Will Oppose Soldier Bonus

General Tax Revisions Are Not Expected

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—While present indications are that there will not be any essential revision of taxes at the next session of Congress, it was learned that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will renew his recommendation for paring down surtaxes. This is one of the suggestions made by a committee from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to President Coolidge on Monday, last. It is also understood that the Secretary again will go on record in opposition to the enactment of soldiers' bonus legislation, which the chamber also is protesting against as it may be applied to wounded and sick veterans of the World War.

SMOOT FOR BONUS

Despite the opposition from these sources, however, legislation for a soldier bonus will be actively pushed and Senator Smoot, who will be chairman of the Committee on Finance, on his recent return from Europe and after an interview with the President, predicted that bonus legislation will be enacted and that business need expect no reduction in taxes.

It is understood to be his plan to raise the requirements for a general bonus to apply to all soldiers who served in the war by a sales tax. But he does not think that the surtaxes or any of the other taxes on business will be reduced. It is known that some of the forces in the next Congress, which will be of a radical turn, will urge increased surtaxes, and restoration of the excess profits tax, although it is not thought such a program will have the slightest chance of being enacted.

SURPLUS NOT LARGE

The hope that taxes might be reduced was based by many on the fact that the treasury has shown a surplus for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, instead of a previously anticipated deficit. However, it was pointed out that this surplus is not great, and only has succeeded in wiping out the deficit, and, therefore, offers no great arguments for reducing taxes. The arguments for lowering them has been based by Secretary Mellon and others on the fact that the present heavy taxes are a burden to business, destroy investment and cause restriction of industrial activity and the purchase of tax-exempt securities, such as municipal bonds.

It was declared today the present high income from customs receipts is expected to continue, and will be a strong force in improving further the condition of the treasury.

POLICE CHIEF TURNS TO BANDITRY FOR CHANGE

OLD-TIME COACH HOLD-UP IN BAY CITY ADVERTISES PONY EXPRESS

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—A gang of forty bandits led by Chief of Police O'Brien, held up and attempted to rob a Concord coach which was bringing in the United States mails and certain dusty citizens from Slippery Gulch and other points along the San Joaquin to the hotel here today. "The O'Brien gang," as it is called, lay in wait for the coach behind some of the ten-story shacks on lower Geary street, and opened fire just as soon as the coach rounded the turn from Market street.

O'Brien personally leaped upon the driver's seat and tried to grab the strongbox, but the Wells-Fargo Express messenger and the driver had the bead on him and shook him off. Others of the bandits tried to reach the doors of the coach to line up the passengers, but "Two-gun" Jim Rolph, Mayor of this camp, let fly from the holster and two of the bandits hit the ashphaltum.

The coach was enabled to draw up in front of the hotel, where the passengers alighted and joined a luncheon of the Downtown Club, where it was explained that the whole happening was a "stunt" to advertise the forthcoming Pony Express race between St. Joseph, Mo., and San Francisco. The "O'Brien gang" dropped in later, none the worse for wear, and the entire assembly, sombrero topped and wearing bandannas and other apparel of the old plains days, heard of the plans that the city is making to greet the Pony Express riders.

BEAUTY OBJECTS TO HER PROPOSED SALE

ASSERTS COUSIN PLANNED TO DISPOSE OF HER FOR SUM OF MONEY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Arpenek Karibidian, 14 years of age, a beautiful Armenian girl, does not believe her cousin, Mrs. Mary Bedrasian, has the right to sell her for $600, or any other sum. She admits that would be all right in the Orient, but she has been told it is not being done in these more or less free United States.

She appealed to the police today, saying Mrs. Bedrasian, was trying to sell her to her cousin. The police admitted they would know what to do in a case of selling the lake front or a load of gold bricks, but the sale of a girl was too deep for them and they passed the case up to the Juvenile Court authorities.

The girl came to America two years ago, following a Turkish raid in Armenia in which her father was killed. With a score of others she landed in Mexico and Jerome Baba, her uncle, paid her way to Chicago, but she does not believe this gives him and Mrs. Bedrasian the right to sell her. Joseph Karibian, a Philadelphia admirer of the girl, who is a World War veteran, says the girl wrote him that she was to be sold to another and he hastened here to prevent the transfer.

AMERICA LOOKS OUT FOR CHINA

Square Deal Given to New Oriental Republic

Won Many Rights for It at Naval Parley

Wilson and Harding Wanted Justice Done

BY JOHN B. POWELL

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

[Copyright, 1923, by the Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, July 4.—The Washington conference, with delegations from nine of the leading nations of the world, exclusive of Germany and Russia, was in session in Washington from November 11, 1921, to February 5, 1922, or nearly three months. The official report in the English and French languages recently issued by the United States government printing office contains about 1800 pages of small type.

It is a remarkable fact that, with the exception of a part of one session which was devoted to the situation in Siberia, the entire work of the conference at Washington, so far as it deals with political questions in the Pacific and the Far East, was concerned with the affairs of China.

As the Balkan states have provided the causes for most of the disastrous wars of Europe of modern times, so China may likewise provide the fires for world conflagrations of the future. Our army and navy experts knew that it would be dangerous to attempt the limitation of armament unless at the same time something was done to improve the situation in the Pacific, and most of the trouble threatening in the Pacific had to do with China.

In spite of the fact that China has been the principal field for American missionary enterprises (we are now spending practically $1,000,000 a month in this work) for nearly a century, the American people were largely unprepared from the standpoint of educational background for a serious consideration of the China problem in respect to our own national safety.

In spite of our meager knowledge of China, there does not exist in the United States a tremendous sentiment of good will for China. This was exemplified in the almost national demand for justice to China when it became known that the Paris Peace Conference had confirmed Japan's possession of Shantung province, which Germany had controlled for a quarter of a century before the European war.

President Wilson, while upholding the Paris treaty and the League of Nations covenant, frankly stated that the Shantung decision contained therein "had no merits," and styled it "an ugly, hopeless business," and said further that "it was upon the instance of the government of the United States that Japan promised to return all rights of sovereignty that China had granted Germany over any portion of the province of Shantung."

President Harding in a campaign speech delivered at Marion on September 21, 1920, in referring to the Shantung clause of the Paris peace treaty, styled it the "rape of the first great democracy of the orient," and the United States Senate, when it was considered the Treaty of Versailles, adopted the following resolution:

"(7.) The United States withholds its assent to Articles 156, 157 and 158, and reserves full liberty of action with respect to any controversy which may arise under said articles between the republic of China and the empire of Japan."

These instances are given to show the American attitude toward China in the years preceding the Washington conference. And there is nothing new in this attitude, for it goes clear back to the landing of the first American clipper ship, the Empress of China, at Canton in 1784, the landing of the first missionary in 1830, early American opposition to the opium trade, the refusal of the United States to accept jurisdiction over Chinese territory as expressed by President Buchanan after the American flag had been hoisted over the Island of Formosa, and clear on down to the open door policy of Secretary of State John Hay in 1900, and finally through the American return of the indemnity levied upon China by the powers at the close of the Boxer rebellion in 1901.

The Washington conference, while of great educational value to the American people, did not bring out anything new in American policy or sentiment toward China.

The point is that the American people and the United States government are committed to certain policies in Asia, chief of which is the encouragement of democratic government among the 400,000,000 people who live on the eastern coast of Asia.

The trouble has always been that we have contented ourselves with lip service and an occasional donation of small change. Only in rare instances have we ever attempted real leadership.

We usually play at the job and at the first sign of trouble withdraw within our shell and let the other fellow who is not in sympathy with our ideals undo all of our work or step in and reap the benefits.

COOLIDGE MAY RULE IN NAVAL FUND ROW

Department Unable To Agree With Budget Bureau On Appropriation

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The disagreement between the Navy Department and the budget bureau as to the amount Congress should be asked to appropriate for the naval estimate during the next fiscal year probably will have to be settled by President Coolidge.

It was indicated today by navy officials that there was no disposition to follow the budget directions for a cut of $70,000,000 in the estimate recently made up by the department on the basis of its expected needs. Such a cut, it was said, would make it impossible for the United States to maintain the navy prescribed for it under the arms treaty. Some minor reductions in the total were said to be possible but the impression was given that the estimate would be re-submitted to the budget bureau without much change.

TO ALLAY FEARS OF SUN ECLIPSE

School Teachers in Mexico Get Instructions

Ignorant Are Made Victims of Soothsayers

Message of Science Will be Taught Poor

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Aug. 23. In order to destroy superstition and allay fear growing out of the total eclipse of the sun September 10, the Indian Cultural Department of the Ministry of Education of Mexico has sent an order to all rural school teachers instructing them to explain carefully the nature of the phenomenon.

In Mexico the average of illiteracy is appallingly high, being estimated at almost 90 per cent. Popular fancy adheres to the ancient lore which held that any unusual conditions pertaining to the solar system fortell future events. Being unable to read, the message of modern science forecasting with exactitude to the minute such a phenomenon as the eclipse of the sun and moon and the appearance of comets means nothing to the average Mexican.

TROUBLE FORETOLD

On the other hand, soothsayers and fortune tellers, profiting by this ignorance, foretell direful happenings to be brought about when the sun or moon shall be hidden from view, and public panic ensues.

The steps taken by the Indian Cultural Department are said to have been dictated by memory of the panic which engulfed Mexico when Halley's comet was traversing the skies a little more than a decade ago. At that time the end of the world was predicted and the prediction believed by a majority of the people in Mexico, as well as by not a few of the negroes of the South in the United States.

Churches throughout Mexico were crowded with men, women and children, anxious, in view of what they believed was to be the end of the world, to make their peace. Mines, factories, stores and all sorts of industry stood neglected. Farm workers left their plows in the fields. Animals went untended on the farms.

HERDS UNATTENDED

Great herds grazed unattended as the vaqueros hastened from their posts of duty in order that they might attend church and prepare for the end of all things.

Thus public demoralization reigned during the period when the comet was approaching the world. Certain soothsayers were reported to have made fortunes selling magic amulets to the ignorant, supposedly possessing the virtue of saving their lives in the final crash that was to mean oblivion for the rest of the world's inhabitants.

With the memory of this period before it, the Indian Cultural Department in its circular instructs all rural school teachers not only to make plain to the ignorant classes the nature of the total eclipse, but hereafter, whenever reliable reports of any phenomenon affecting the solar system is reported, to make haste to explain this, without waiting for special instructions from the department.

GIVEN CLEAN NAME, BUT MUST RESIGN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 23.—Following an agreement that he would tender his resignation, Dr. H. E. Morrison, superintendent of the county hospital, was today exonerated by the board of supervisors of charges against him brought before the county grand jury which recommended his dismissal.

The board declining to accept the recommendation of the grand jury, held a hearing of the charges against Dr. Morrison, which ranged from mistreatment of patients to asserted insulting of nurses at the institution and met this morning to determine their action in the matter. Two of the five members of the board voted in favor of the superintendent's dismissal and two voted for his retention. John Russi, the fifth supervisor declined to vote at the morning session and the meeting adjourned until afternoon. During the adjournment, Dr. Morrison agreed to resign, and Russi voted in favor of exoneration.

RAIL WORKERS LAY-OFF REPORTS ARE DENIED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Though reports that a general curtailment of forces on large railroads operating through the Northwest is in immediate prospect, plans to the effect are not premeditated by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, according to statements from high officials of that road today. "Only seasonal and unnecessary workers where work has been completed, are being let go," declared E. P. Bracken, vice-president in charge of operation. "Freight and passenger business for August is expected to exceed July records."

WORKER ACCUSED OF SETTING FOREST FIRE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

QUINCY (Cal.) Aug. 23.—Daniel Cota, who recently joined the woods crew of the Mutual Lumber Corporation, was arrested here today and charged with arson after a fire had been discovered at a spot where he had visited. He admitted having started the fire, officers said, but declared it had been done to destroy a nest of yellow-jackets. Officers declared that had the fire not been gotten under control immediately, it would have resulted in a heavy loss of timber.

NEW WATERMELLON SUCCESS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SWEDESBORO (N. J.) Aug. 23. Farmers in this vicinity are producing a new variety of watermelon, called the ice-cream watermelon. The pulp has the color of orange ice cream with a pink seed. The local trade is taking all offerings at 75 cents each, with demand unsatisfied.

MAN FOUND SHOT DIES IN HOSPITAL

WIFE NOTIFIES POLICE AND LEAVES TOWN IN AUTOMOBILE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

JACKSON, Aug. 23.—An inquest will be held here late today over the body of a man believed to be David Armnasco, found shot in the head near Twin Lakes, Alpine county, and who died in a hospital here yesterday.

A small caliber rifle was found beside the body of the fatally wounded man. There were no powder marks near the wound in his head, and investigating officers declare that the course of the bullet is such that self-infliction is a remote possibility.

The Sheriff's office here has requested officers in surrounding counties to apprehend Mrs. David Armnasco, believed to be the wife of the dead man. According to officers, Mrs. Armnasco was the first to report to Twin Lakes authorities the finding of the wounded man. Shortly following she left Twin Lakes with her two children, in an automobile.

WOMAN ARRESTED

OROVILLE, Aug. 23.—Mrs. David Armnasco was arrested here today by deputy sheriffs on request of Amador county, officials where she is said to be wanted in connection with a murder. She told the officers she came here alone, but it is understood that a man left Twin Lakes with her yesterday. A search for the man is being conducted here.

STEEPLE DECORATED BY FLAPPER ARTIST

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Clad in paint-smeared smock, white linen trousers, white shoes and stockings, Miss Wilhelmina Schmidt of Denmark, climbed the steeple on St. Mark's church today to do cement fresco work on the structure. Her titian hair, unbobbed, was restrained by a broad band of silk. From her lips dangled a cork-tipped cigarette, which she had paused in her ascent of the towering scaffold to light from a match scratched man-fashion.

"I never was dizzy in my life," she remarked.

California's Wonder Places

The Cliffs—The Coves—The Sunsets of LAGUNA BEACH

An Entire Colony of America's Foremost Painters Make Laguna Beach their Permanent Home. Why?

AT LAGUNA BEACH it is as though a low wide mountain had run like a pier out over the sea—hung there for centuries—then suddenly snapped off and sunk to the depths below.

When from off shore you see the splintered coastline that remains—the friendly little coves and low, crawling reefs, reaching out from jagged cliffs—you begin to understand the fascination of this wonder place.

But there is no one thing that makes the charm of Laguna Beach. Her picturesque shore is matched by turquoise skies—her towering hills by sun-tinted horizons. Nature permitted a terrific cataclysm—then softened the effect with a wondrous beauty.

Two or three hours motoring through a beautiful California countryside is all you need to cover the 54 miles which stretch southward from Los Angeles to Laguna Beach.

[A comparison suggests itself: The strength of Laguna's rugged cliffs and the strength of the Union Bank & Trust Co.; still further, the friendly welcome of her coves and the friendly welcome of our open door.]

Question: Does President Coolidge belong to a college fraternity? K. L. C.

Answer: He is a Phi Gamma Delta.

Q.: Is there an animal that never drinks water? C. C. H.

A.: It is said that the gemsbok, a large South African antelope, never drinks water, the moisture which it requires being obtained from the succulent bulbous plants on which it feeds.

Q.: What States produce the most lumber? J. R. M.

A.: The five greatest lumber-producing States in 1922 were Washington, Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi and California, according to figures compiled by the Forest Service.

Q.: How large is Plymouth Rock? J. L. J.

A.: Plymouth Rock is six feet long, three feet wide and three feet high. On its face the figures 1620 are cut, showing the date on which "the feet of outcasts pressed this symbol of religious freedom." The rock was moved in 1775 by patriots who placed it in Liberty Pole Square, that it might "be near the guardhouse, the church and the Liberty Pole." While being loaded on an ox cart the rock fell and was broken. Some said this was an omen of the break that was to come between Great Britain and her colonies in America. Pieces of the rock were cemented together and it was later moved back to its original resting place.

Q.: What is a "dearest" ring? L. B. H.

A.: This name is given in England to a narrow ring set with a diamond, emerald, amethyst, ruby, emerald, sapphire and topaz—the initial letters of which words spell "dearest."

Q.: Does a Chinaman have to have his queue cut off to get into the United States? W. F. C.

A.: Careful examination of the Chinese exclusion acts does not show that any statute requires a Chinese person to cut off his queue in order to enter this country.

Q.: What words are inscribed over the Alamo? A. G. L.

A.: "Thermopylae had its messenger of defeat. The Alamo had none." This has reference to the little band of 188 men who were massacred by the horde of the Mexicans numbering about 2500. Although death was inevitable, the little band refused to surrender. For ten days they held the Mexicans back, but were finally overcome in a hand-to-hand battle.

Q.: Do many actors and actresses of the stage succeed on the screen? M. L. J.

A.: A few screen successes come from the stage and vice versa. Clayton Hamilton says that film and stage technique are separate and distinct. The tempo of acting for the camera is much slower and more deliberate than acting for an actual audience; every movement, gesture and detail of facial expression must be proportioned more delicately and reticently. The cold, searching eye of the camera magnifies what it sees and a human face in a "close-up" may measure fifteen feet from top to bottom. The casual batting of an eyelid may sweep through two or three feet of film. Pictures also place a high valuation on youth. Few women learn to act on the stage until they are over 30, but on the screen, where every line is greatly magnified, most women look old after they are 25. Devotees of the spoken drama will go to hear a Sarah Bernhardt at eight-and-seventy, but the clientele of the movies demands fresh faces.

Q.: Are garlic and onions closely related? W. J. C.

A.: Garlic is a species of onion long in cultivation.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES

Relatively Speaking

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Wilbur Glenn Voliva, we are informed, declares that sunrise and sunset are hallucinations or optical delusions, not actualities. This is not, as it might seem at first glance, a novel and startling notion, but is merely a slightly inaccurate statement of simple scientific fact well known to all even moderately educated persons.

It is not strictly true to say that these things are hallucinations or optical delusions, for our senses report correctly the appearance, which is all that they can do. This appearance is corrected by the superior knowledge of the mind which, through processes of reason, based on a multitude of observed facts, has established the larger truth that the sun is fixed, as regards its relation to this earth; that the earth revolves around the sun in an elliptical orbit, of which the sun is one of the focal points, and that the earth rotates on its own axis, thus producing the effect—contrary to actuality—of a rising and setting sun. It is the first letter of the alphabet of relativity to understand that this appearance exists only for us who are on this planet, but would not exist for an observer on another planet or for one who could look on our solar system as a whole.

This applies still more forcefully to Voliva's statement that the sun is always at the same height above the earth. This again is simply a novel statement of a well-known fact—or near-fact—and is only another way of saying that the earth is always at the same, or nearly the same, distance from the sun. It would be quite true if the earth's orbit were circular instead of being, as it is, elliptical. Looked at from a sufficiently remote point of view the sun would be always "above" the earth; it is only because the earth is spinning on its axis that to us who are on it the sun appears sometimes as "above" and sometimes "below" our globe. This is very elementary astronomy. The colors seen in the clouds at "sunrise" and "sunset" are, of course, real—as are the colors of a rainbow, or those produced by breaking up white light by passing it through a prism.

If Voliva says that the earth is flat (does he say this?) such a statement is, of course, unscientific; but we must not let that fact delude us into supposing that there is no truth in any part of his statement. It would appear to me from his remarks as above that he was well aware of the earth's shape and motions and was simply trying to state these facts in a somewhat novel and striking form so as to make more impression on his hearers—though I may be wrong in this as I do not know his exact words.

Time to Kick

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your editorial entitled "Unwarranted Interference" in the last Sunday Times is much to the point. Writing as an American who has lived some ten years in England, permit me to say that on reading in the papers Sir Auckland Geddes reported to his government on the condition at Ellis Island, I was given the impression that its publication was due to a mistake on the part of some official or else made with some ulterior motive. There is considerable sentiment in Great Britain against having their surplus population emigrate to these shores, as the view is often expressed that such emigrants, and especially their children, become "lost to the Empire" which is no doubt to a large extent true. And the average Briton never seems to have realized that this country is a separate and distinct unit, entirely free of all dictation from the "Mother Country." Even the late war, with its revelation of the huge foreign element here, a fact never before appreciated by the British public, has not been able to do away with the view that England has a sort of inherent right to "butt in" on the private affairs of this country. Perhaps these reasons may have had some influence on the publication of the report. But I can imagine the hue and cry that would be raised in the British press if the conditions were reversed and a similar document given publicity by our government. It is to be hoped that views similar to those expressed in your editorial will appear in the papers of this country. American news is given considerable prominence in British newspapers of today and if adverse sentiment is aroused here over the publication of the report, it will receive due attention on the other side.

Keep It English

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The movement under way, as reported in The Times, having for its object the teaching of German in our public schools, should meet with vigorous protest on the part of every citizen and taxpayer who has best interests of this community and the welfare of the nation generally at heart. We want no German ideals and characteristics of latter days, which we all know too well as disclosed by the record that will remain forever a dark shadow on the pages of history, to be again taught in our public schools at the taxpayers' expense.

Let it be said in truth and justice that Germany at one time had much in art, science, invention and literature that was worthy and commendable. Those were the days of Albert Dures, master painter; Gutenberg, inventor of printing; Goethe, poet and critic, who enriched German life, giving her an honored and respected place in the sun.

Injecting the teaching of the German language into the public schools of this country by German-born and their descendants, who claim American citizenship, should never have been permitted. There never was a time when it should have been countenancd, nor that of any other foreign language in public schools. Parents ambitious to broaden the education of their children, with a knowledge of German, French, Italian or other languages, should pay for same but not at the taxpayers' expense.

The mastery of the English language, written and spoken, should be amply sufficient for every aspiring youth, native or foreign-born. Let there be only one flag, Old Glory, and one language, old pure and undefiled English, taught in public schools. The honorable Board of Education should be watchful and not permit any foreign language to be engrafted into our public school system.

CAMPBELL HARDY.

The Vital Thing

ALHAMBRA, Aug. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The Times of Sunday, August 19, carried a very fine sentiment in the editorial, "The Nation Prays." I do not know who the author is, but, whoever he may be, I feel that I would like to personally thank him. When a man writes something worthwhile it is no more than right that the recipient of the message express appreciation; in other words, when a man does his job good, the beneficiary shoul dsay so.

The editorial page of every news sheet seems to have been neglected by the public, and the policy of the papers themselves. Personally, I have noticed the space and effort put forth by the greater papers of the country to "put on the map" some new idea of a feature in cartoon, dialect or personal opinion on "how to live a hundred years," and yet, very little space or effort is used to persuade the reader that the editorial is the vital thing of the paper. Without it the sheet is nothing more than "a scandalous handbill;" seems rather uncouth, but a fact always skins a fellow's shins worse than a hoop in the dark.

When I read articles such as you run on your editorial page, I simply scoot down on the back of my neck in my chair and read it all over again. I enjoy the cartoons, the features and advertising very much, but they should be treated as the passing things of the day and not as the eternal whole of the paper. That eternal whole of the paper is in the good things which really belong to the editorial.

The article, "The Nation Prays," is one of those good things which always finds fertile soil some place. Our Secretary of Labor a few months ago wrote me and in his letter he said, "You should be glad for the turmoil which seems to have come up; it is your opportunity to prove that you are greater than the turmoil; this is your new start." Mr. Davis in his short, terse statement put forth the same good thing which was so finely expressed in your article, and for that reason I wish to thank you.

It is to be hoped that the editorial page on every news sheet will be featured by the same effort put forth to make every reader personally acquainted with "Andy Gump" and the rest of the features.

PARKE VAWTER.

Alas, Too True

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] We are subscribers to your valuable paper and I read a letter in yesterday's paper signed "Mother" and every word she says about the landlords are true. My daughter has looked for a house to rent for several weeks, but because she has three children, she can not rent one. What are your beautiful schools for if no children are wanted. Of course there are some parents who allow their children to destroy and deface homes but why should all the children suffer? I am going to suggest that the mothers get a recommendation from the last place they resided, and if satisfactory, the landlord should welcome the coming generation.

It sure is a sad thing to see a mother tramp all over this beautiful Los Angeles looking for a place to live and be turned down because she has children. How much more honorable it is to bear children and raise them respectiable citizens than to carry a little poodle around in their arms? I for one would ten times rather have a family of children in my house than one dog.

I hope you will find space for these protests against refusing to rent to children in your editorials.

Thanking you in advance.

A GRANDMOTHER.

Gun Powder and the Law

ALTADENA, Aug. 23.—[To the Editor of the Times:] There is a law on our statute books prohibiting carrying concealed deadly weapons on the person.

Also a law governing the sale of firearms.

So far, so good.

What is needed now to make these laws effective is one permitting search and seizure of any deadly weapon upon the person.

The proper officers should be permitted to search everybody and take such weapons, if found, if said party has not lawful permission to carry them.

Such weapons should be confiscated and forfeited to the city or State and additional monetary fine or imprisonment added or both according to the gravity of the offense. Such a precaution would give the police and other authorized peace officers a fifty-fifty chance with the intended criminal. As the law now is the bad man has the drop on the officer most all the time.

Wiggins Wig-wags

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Four months ago today I arrived in Los Angeles; my life since that day has been an unbroken chain of amazing discoveries and rigid devotion to a small but imperative book christened "Traffic Regulations." How God could be so inconsistent as to give Southern California its incomparable climate, sea and mountains, and add to these its promiscuously-chosen populace, is more than this late resident of "Way Down East" can fathom, conjure or comprehend.

I know nothing of the past life of Mr. Wiggins, your local Chamber of Commerce fullback, but if one can judge by present performances his training has been of the carnival-ballyhoo variety. Mildly speaking, Mr. Wiggins and his brother ballyhooers are not discreet in the broadcasting of Los Angeles literature. If the face of Los Angeles is to be molded by the influx of citizenry in the next few years it is not at all improbable that its character lines will resemble those of an Iowa farmer.

ANDREW TUBLE.

Wants More Reverence

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I write to express my surprise at some of the people of Los Angeles.

On the day we buried our beloved President—one who has befriended us and fought for our advantage as best he could for two long years.

In respect for the solemn occasion, business was avowedly to be suspended, but was it?

Many business houses closed their doors, it is true. They were mostly those which are conducted in a serious manner always. But the theaters and places of amusement were doing a very large and flourishing business. I ask if this is just or consistent. Was it even good taste?

Long lines of patrons waited gaily before the playhouses, and if I may say it, doubtless many dollars, refused, as it were, by our more respectful business men for the sake of decency, were eagerly gathered in by the theaters. And yet a grand display of patriotic talk is made by some managers.

Respectfully yours,
HELEN I. MONTROSE,
538 South Fremont street.

On the Right Side

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In today's issue of your valuable paper I read with much surprise and no little contempt the letter of A. J. Clark.

I have lived in this fair city for over three years and all of that time have wondered why people persist so in walking to the left of the city's sidewalks. It really never occurred to me to blame people from British Columbia and other parts of Canada since I am a Canadian myself and never witnessed anywhere such jaywalking as there is in Los Angeles.

A. J. Clark shows a great lack of knowledge when he makes such a statement and I could direct him to Canadian cities where "jaywalkers" are fined for so doing.

Let A. J. Clark remember that Canadians "keep to the right." Yes! even in B. C. as he should have known had he been posted up-to-date.

GEORGINA M. LANGS.

Who Will Do It?

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] And so Charlie, the tame elephant at Hollywood, is to be killed! This in return for his having done his best. For having amused the public—for having put money into the pockets of his owners—for having suffered untold miseries—till at the breaking point he turns on his enemies, then—oh, of course—he's a vicious old critter and must be put out of the way!

Just who will undertake this job? "Lives there a man with soul so small" and heart so hard! Is there no pity, no appreciation, no mercy or justice, that such a thing can be!

BEGIN FILLING BIG CONTRACT

Standard Oil Tankers Load for Atlantic Seaboard

P. E. Extension Important Development Factor

Gain in Cotton Consumption; Business News

Loading at the rate of 15,000 barrels an hour, the Standard Oil of New Jersey's steamship M. F. Elliott began yesterday morning to ship 70,000 barrels of crude oil purchased from the California Petroleum Corporation under the contract signed recently by which the New Jersey company will receive 36,000,000 barrels of light gravity oil at the rate of 1,000,000 barrels monthly. The S. S. Wheeler will arrive in the harbor today, and load the second consignment of California oil bound for the east coast under one of the largest petroleum contracts ever signed.

The total value of the contract is expected to reach $100,000,000 on the basis of prices prevailing at Newark, N. J., and the port of New York for gasoline and fuel oil when the oil is landed.

Until the signing of the contract with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the California Petroleum Corporation had sold its oil in the field, but changing conditions in the oil industry necessitated the marketing of the company's production at more distant centers. To accomplish this end, the California Petroleum Corporation has constructed more than 100 miles of trunk pipe lines, connecting its wells in the six Southern California fields with terminal facilities at the harbor, where the company has expended a large sum of money in storage tanks and loading equipment. The former consisting of fifty 80,000-barrel steel tanks, some of which are located on a 264-acre track at the harbor.

The beginning of the movement of the California Petroleum oil is significant of the growing dominance of the Southern California oil fields in the Atlantic Coast markets. Producers in the Mid-Continent and eastern fields have been forced to offer repeated reductions in price because of the competition of the California product, and, in the opinion of leading oil men, the end of the struggle is not yet in sight.

P. E. EXTENSION

Actual work of rail laying will begin next week on the Pacific Electric two-mile extension on its Alhambra-San Gabriel line, officials of the company announced yesterday. The Pacific Electric has agreed to revise its original plans, and is lowering the tracks to provide for street paving at an additional cost of $50,000. Estimates on the extension as first contemplated placed the cost of the work at $250,000.

Grading of the road-bed has been completed for the greater part of the route, which extends from East San Gabriel, eastward on Olive street, branching to San Gabriel avenue to the new terminus at Golden West and San Gabriel avenues, where a joint freight and passenger station of modern design will be constructed. It is expected that the rails will be laid on San Gabriel avenue next week, and the remainder of the project pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

To care for the increased power demand a new substation will be installed with sufficient capacity to produce a material improvement in power conditions on the Alhambra-San Gabriel, and the Pasadena, Sierra Madre and Glendora lines.

The extension will pass through Sunnyslope Acres, Temple, and districts that been retarded in growth through lack of transportation facilities.

SOUTH AFRICAN COTTON

Cultivation of cotton in South Africa has increased in the last five years, the Department of Commerce says, from 7600 acres to over 20,000 acres, and the yield of seed cotton has advanced in that period from 796,000 pounds to about 4,000,000 pounds. The growth of the cotton acreage has provided a market for manufacturers of cotton ginning machinery, who are active at this time in demonstrating their equipment.

The Transvaal accounts for three-fourths of this season's crop, and as a result of existing prices, it is estimated that acreage throughout the belt will be materially increased for the coming cotton year.

COTTON CONSUMPTION

Consumption of cotton in the United States for the year ended July 31, 1923, totaled 6,664,710 bales, exclusive of linters, compared with 5,909,820 for the previous cotton year, the Department of Commerce states in its annual report on the supply and distribution of cotton in the United States.

Absorption of cotton in 1921 amounted to 4,892,672 bales, and in 1920 the aggregate was 6,419,734 bales. Exports of cotton during the year just finished amounted to 4,822,589 bales compared with 6,184,094 bales for 1922.

The carry-over of cotton in the United States on July 31, 1923, was 2,087,919 bales compared with 2,831,553 in the previous year. In 1921 the carry-over was 6,534,360 bales and 3,563,162 for 1920.

INDUSTRIAL EARNINGS

In its first report issued since the acquisition of the properties of the Cook Linoleum, Standard Inlaid Manufacturing Company and the Acme Cement Plaster Company last April, the Certainteed Products Corporation shows earnings available for dividends of $663,425, which compares with $256,083 for the corresponding six months' period ended June 30 in 1922. The amount available for dividends, according to the information received by Blair & Co., Inc., is 4.40 times the dividend requirements for the first preferred stock.

The balance sheet as of June 30, 1923, shows current assets of $7,768,072, and current liabilities of $2,164,685, leaving net current assets of $5,603,388. The ratio of current assets to current liabilities is over 3½ to 1.

FRUIT EARNINGS

In connection with the recent offering of the Earl Fruit Company first mortgage 6 1-2 per cent bonds of 1938, Hunter, Dullin & Co., and Bond, Goodwin & Tucker, who headed the syndicate underwriting the bonds, report that while it is too early to give final figures, indications are that the Earl Fruit Company will soon complete one of the most successful years of its history. The company is transacting its full share of the fruit business at satisfactory prices, while profits from the box works, a subsidiary, indicate net profits of $100,000 for the first five months, compared with a net figure of $75,000 for previous periods of similar duration. The recent sale of a small property for $55,000, which was listed in the appraisals at $39,000, is also pointed out as indicative of the conservative nature of the values placed on the company's properties by the investment firms who placed the bonds.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Business Review; Protecting the Investor; Credit Survey; No Cause for Pessimism

BY CHAPIN HALL

Swinging into the final week of the last full summer month, it is noteworthy that there has been little change in general conditions, either when considered from a weekly or monthly basis.

The bugaboo of "midsummer dullness" which is held over the head of trade has been less effective in this section than ever before, and in spite of seasonal trends business in the Los Angeles district, which means practically the whole of Southern California, has maintained a surprisingly high level all through the so-called dull period.

Retail sales, bank clearings, building enterprises and investment offerings have remained active, although there has been a shrinking volume in the latter department, which promises to recover its tone in the early fall. The local outlook for continued peak conditions during the balance of the year is excellent.

At large the Ruhr problem and the whole question of reparations remains acute, but the immediate effects of the European situation on business in the United States have been discounted, and the attention of merchants and manufacturers focussed on domestic conditions, especially the agricultural situation and the wholesale price of commodities. Considering the industry of the country as a whole, and making due allowance for the seasonal character of farm buying, it seems probable, according to competent authorities, that the purchasing power of the country, including the farmers, will continue during the coming months at not far from the rate which has prevailed thus far in 1923.

The fall crop movements will precipitate the period of heaviest money requirement, and in the interior will dominate the market. On the Pacific Coast the peak is less pronounced and more widely distributed, but the possibility of firmer rates is acknowledged, depending in part upon general business activity during the autumn months.

The fact that all the well-known index numbers of wholesale prices have declined during recent months has been widely noted, but in a discussion of current market conditions the New York National Bank of Commerce ventures the opinion that it is at least an open question as to whether the importance of these declines has not been seriously overestimated. Indeed, the value of index numbers of wholesale prices as indicators of the future course of business is open to doubt, unless the detailed changes which cause the alteration in the general price level are critically studied and the seasonal courses of prices considered in historical perspective as well. On the basis of prewar experience it is quite as reasonable to conclude that higher prices will follow recent recessions as to fear a general decline.

Apparently the decline in the general price level which has occurred in the last three months is in large measure the combined result of normal seasonal influences and of conditions affecting a few commodities of special importance. For such duration of time as must be reckoned with by merchants and manufacturers in their ordinary operations, each commodity is influenced primarily by supply and demand in its own and related markets. Future commitments should always be made with due consideration to all factors, but the decline in the general price level which has taken place does not warrant lack of confidence in the business outlook. It must be borne in mind that the index number is a picture of what has taken place rather than of future trends, which must necessarily be largely determined by factors other than prices.

BETTER BUSINESS

That much can be done to prevent the sale of fraudulent securities and bring their vendors to justice is being demonstrated by the better business leagues and organizations of advertisers scattered throughout the country.

An excellent start has been made in Los Angeles, where the association is proving its merit and gaining recruits and strength. The idea is firmly established in New York, where competent legal weapons have been given to the defenders of legitimate business, and promoters of honesty, truthfulness and reliability in the sale of securities and merchandise.

With the new law now in effect in California which puts teeth into the blue sky act results equally important to those achieved in the East are entirely within the range of possibility. The message of the parent organization and those which are following the lead is summed up in the simple motto, "Before you invest, investigate."

In speaking of the recent work of the bureau, H. J. Kenner, its president, said yesterday that what has been achieved in New York may be as readily accomplished elsewhere.

"What is needed," said Mr. Kenner, "is a conscientious and intelligent enforcement of the laws now on the statute books, which in the main are strong enough to correct existing evils. There is, however, other important work to be done. This is informing the public as to the basic principles governing sound investments. You cannot cut off all fraudulent securities at their source, but a persistent and intelligent campaign of education can cut off much of the supply of money now being handed to the vendors of spurious securities by uninformed citizens."

BUCK UP

That there is little foundation for the pessimism which prevails among the wheat farmers is the contention of the Manufacturers' Record. "It is largely a state of mind," says this publication, "and even though conditions are not wholly favorable for the farmers, who are not as prosperous as they should be for the best interests of the country as well as for themselves, there is no justification, speaking from a national point of view, for the spirit of pessimism which prevails to so large an extent with the incessant talk about the poverty of the wheat growers."

CREDIT SURVEY

On the Pacific Coast California is back to the high level of two and three weeks ago, according to the Credit Clearinghouse weekly report.

There has been a lull in purchasing in Washington, but throughout the country a continued increase is reported, equal to 2.4 per cent above last week. In this increase all sections and all States except seven share.

The largest increase in purchasing is in the southern agricultural section, while the South also has a very large purchasing power. The East section has a percentage increase of only 1.8, but all of the States except one of the smallest have increased over the preceding week.

Collections are good throughout the country, being best on the Pacific Coast, and slowest in the north agricultural section.

MIXED INFLUENCES IN COTTON TRADING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Cotton futures closed 1 to 8 points net higher, after a day of irregular movements within narrow confines under mixed influences. The start was slightly lower on reports of rains in Texas, but later rallied sharply, more than recovering all of its early morning losses. Buying later in the day was due to poor crop reports from the Carolinas. Firmness was well maintained through the early afternoon, but in midafternoon offerings by local commission-house traders increased and the market eased off from the high level of the day, which was about 12 to 20 points net higher. There was a return of firmness in the late dealings, but no real strength.

Spot cotton was quiet, unchanged, 2525 for middling upland.

Southern spot: Galveston, 2450, unchanged; New Orleans 2425, 25 points decline; Savannah 2425, 25 points decline; Augusta, 25, unchanged; Memphis, 2450, unchanged; Houston 2425, unchanged; Little Rock 2450, unchanged.

PROFITABLE INVESTING

Being a Brief Discussion of the Movements in the Security Markets Together With Rules and Guides For the Investor

BY HERBERT R. JACKSON

[This is the tenth of a series of articles written for The Times by Mr. Jackson. The eleventh will appear on Tuesday.—Ed.]

CHAPTER 9

Recognizing a Turning Point

The major downward movement which began in November, 1919 culminated in June 1921 and the subsequent bull market had its inception in August, 1921. Application of the principles discussed in these articles enabled the writer to correctly interpret the course of the market during the summer of 1921 and to recognize the turning point when it arrived. In substantiation, the following is reproduced from an article written for publication in August, 1921.

"The action of the stock market has often been likened to the tide of the ocean. Notice how the tide comes in, slowly at first, receding a little, coming back with renewed force until the high point is reversed. In contemplating the major swings in security prices, it is well to keep in mind the rise and ebb of the ocean.

"Frequent reference has been made to the fact that Wall street discounts the future in security prices. The trend can be observed and price fluctuations recorded by charting the averages over a period of time.

"There is a turning point every so often in the stock market, just as there is in the tide. Similarly, as the tide can be mathematically computed, certain unmistakable signs point to the turn in security prices. Between a bull and a bear market there is always a lull, when prices fluctuate between narrow limits. This is usually a trading market and activity is largely professional in character.

"In May and June of this year (1921) we had a trading market. What did it signify? Judging by all signs it marked the end of the decline which started in November, 1919. Now, judging from the scarcity of good stocks at the ridiculously low prices, advantage was taken of the lull by big interests and shrewd investors to reaccumulate securities at much lower prices than they had been sold in October and November, 1919."

In the preceding paragraph, note that this is another way of saying what Hamilton expressed more forcefully in his Stock Market Barometer, though this was published about a year earlier than Hamilton's book. Hamilton's discussion referred to the lull as a line of accumulation, expressing the identical thought, a year later, in different words.

To continue quoting from the writer's article on the turning point of 1921:

"Now that sentiment is changing, especially on the part of the public, it would seem to be time for a moderate bull market to be in evidence. Assemble the contributing factors and weight them against possible adverse factors. There has been a year and a half of depression. Last December (1920) witnessed a slaughtering of values that has since been characterized as an "orderly panic." Since May of this year (1921) the stock market falls dull on any signs of reaction, showing conclusively that there is no stock for sale at falling prices. No bad news is hanging over the market. Bank reserves are on the mend, each weekly statement showing a higher reserve ratio. Loans are being made at falling interest rates, sentiment in the iron and steel trade is brighter and high-grade dividend paying stocks are selling so low as to return 7 per cent to 9 per cent at current prices.

"Railroad earnings are improving and traffic is on the up-grade. Grain and cotton reports are optimistic. Bounteous harvests are practically assured, barring a calamity. With such conditions obtaining in June and July, the investor cannot go far wrong in accumulating securities. The major period of reaction has passed. The advance has little more than begun. The best time to have bought was when things looked worst. Now everything looks better and brighter."

BOND QUOTATIONS

Erie Liens Jump

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Strength of the Erie Railroad issues and the weakness of the French municipalities were the outstanding features of today's bond market.

The rise in Erie liens synchronized with higher stock prices, buying of both classes of securities being based on the increased benefits expected to accrue to the road by reason of a new selling arrangement for its coal in the northeastern territory. Erie 4s, series A, led the advance with a gain of 2¼ points, while prior lien 4s and 4½s and the 4s, series B and D, advanced 1 to 2 points. St. Paul convertible 4½s dropped 1, but other changes in the railroad group were largely fractional.

Weakness of the French liens was somewhat of a surprise in view of the higher exchange rates. Losses of 1 to 1½ points were registered by Bordeaux 6s, Lyons 6s, Marseilles 6s, Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s and French-American 7½s. Serbian 8s also were heavy. United States government bonds were slightly reactionary.

A drop of 2 points in Cerro de Pasco 8s was the outstanding change in the industrial list. Oil company liens continued sluggish.

Public offering of the $50,000,000 Argentine loan probably will be made early next week and several minor details must be smoothed out before the contract is signed.

NEW YORK CURB

Oils in Supply

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Confused price movements took place in today's curb market with the usual leaders showing few important changes on the day.

Oil shares were again in rather free supply, but the selling was well absorbed. Prairie Oil and Gas dropped 1 point and Ohio Oil 1⅛, while Magnolia Petroleum gained 3 and National Transit 1½, but the turnover in each case was small. Standard Oil of Indiana closed unchanged after fluctuating within a range of 1 point.

Glen Alden Coal dropped 2 points as a result of the unfavorable strike news, while Reading Coal rose a small fraction. Midvale Steel of Delaware and Gillette Safety Razor each advanced a point. Motors were slightly lower.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Following are the closing quotations and sales on the New York Curb Market. Furnished by Logan & Bryan, members of the New York Stock Exchange, 636 South Spring street.

Dehydration!
The Food Marvel of the Age!

First the horse, then the motor, then the airplane----First drying, then canning, now DEHYDRATION!

IMAGINE in your left hand a ripe, luscious, red-cheeked apple—in your right a magic wand.

You touch the apple with the wand. Slowly but steadily it begins to grow smaller, shrinking and shrinking until it is dry and wrinkled and LESS THAN ONE-SIXTH ITS NATURAL WEIGHT.

You touch it again.

Instantly it begins to expand, steadily growing larger and larger UNTIL IT IS BACK PRACTICALLY TO ITS NORMAL WEIGHT, COLOR, SIZE AND DELICIOUS FLAVOR! Cut it in half and examine it under a microscope. You will find each tiny cell unimpaired. Let a chemist test it. The same sugars, volatile oils and mineral salts—the very same food values—as were to be found in the original apple are still there in exactly the same proportions.

It's the same apple, just as you picked it from the tree!

A miracle? Yes, the miracle of DEHYDRATION.

For that is exactly what Dehydration does. Not with a magic wand, but with a thoroughly scientific process of evaporation it removes the natural water content from almost any kind of fruit or vegetable. These fruits or vegetables can then be packed in airtight cartons and left a month, six months—a year, five years—until they are wanted for use. Then, simply by being placed in water, these vitally important food products can be restored to their natural size, color, flavor and nutritive value!

The secret of Dehydration has been sought for centuries. In the present age numerous attempts have been made by various drying and evaporating methods to arrive at perfect Dehydration.

BUT ONLY ONE PROCESS, FOR WHICH THE PATENTS ARE EXCLUSIVELY OWNED BY ONE COMPANY, HAS PROVED SUCCESSFUL IN REALLY DEHYDRATING—THAT IS, EXTRACTING THE WATER FROM FRUITS AND VEGETABLES, WITHOUT ANY IMPAIRMENT OF THEIR ESSENTIAL QUALITIES.

More Food---Better Food---Cheaper Food!

What Joseph in ancient Egypt did with wheat, DEHYDRATION is doing with fruits and vegetables—conserving them when and where they are plentiful to be used when and where they are scarce.

Right here in California, no matter how big a surplus fruit crop there may be, Dehydration will make it possible to buy the entire supply at a profit to the grower, conserve them one, two or three years, and then bring them forth when that inevitable "short" season comes around.

Dehydration can equalize the world's food supply—cut down tremendously the cost of preserving and transporting fruits and vegetables—and give you, IN ANY SEASON, those delicious foods practically as fresh as though they had come straight from the orchard or garden.

Keep in mind that Dehydration is an accomplished fact. Fruits and vegetables have been processed by it for more than eight years past! Over 63,000,000 lbs. of food products have been handled and marketed during the past four years alone!

For more facts about this food wonder of the age—DEHYDRATION—together with full details of the progress actually attained and future possibilities—be sure to read the next statement in this series in the financial section of tomorrow's Times and Herald.

DAY IN REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Despite continued agitation for reduced production, supported by further cutting of both crude oil and gasoline prices, the output of petroleum shows practically no diminution. It is becoming more evident that the oil industry faces a period of low prices, especially in view of the fact that resumption of relations between the United States and Mexico is likely to increase the inflow of oil from the Southern Republic.

The daily average gross crude oil production in this country for the week ended August 18 was 2,250,450 barrels, a decrease of only 800 barrels, according to the American Petroleum Institute. This negligible reduction occurred East of the Rocky Mountains, as California's output is unchanged. Port receipts of California oil increased, while imports declined somewhat.

PULLMAN PROFITS

The heavy passenger travel of the last year will result in the Pullman Company's forthcoming annual report making the best showing in severa lyears. The fiscal year ended June 30 and the directors meet today to consider the figures which will be made public about October 1. It is understood, however, that net earnings will be equivalent to around $12 a share on the stock, or considerably above the annual dividend rate of $8. In the preceding year the company incurred a deficit after paying dividends.

Practically all of the company's profits have been derived from the operation of sleeping cars. There has been little profit in the manufacturing end of the business and advance orders are light, although the company has enough business booked to keep its plants occupied the rest of the year.

FREIGHT MOVEMENT

For the first time in a number of weeks, the railroad freight movement fell below the 1,000,000 car mark in the week ended August 11. Car loading totaled 973,165, a decrease of 59,968 cars from the preceding week, but an increase of 130,473 over the corresponding week last year.

The current decline in carloadings is not regarded as a break in the general heavy transportation movement. It was ascribed to the fact that the week marked the national observance of mourning for President Harding, including the August 10 holiday. It is believed the carloading record will go even higher when the autumn traffic movement sets in. The railroads already have 12,000,000 tons of coal in storage, which will further facilitate the peak traffic by affording the maximum amount of equipment and plenty of fuel.

The United States Treasury Department engraves Joint Stock Land Bank Bonds

They actually bear on their face the statement that they are instrumentalities of the government of the United States.

This is evidence of the extent of government supervision over the banks that issue these bonds.

G. E. Miller & Company offer a million dollar issue of the Northwest Joint Stock Land Bank bonds.

They recommend them as a security for those who wish an investment that is ultra conservative.

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Interest centered rather sharply today in the strength of the foreign exchanges. After a long period in which weakness and irregularity have been their outstanding characteristic, the sudden advance today of most of the leading exchanges was doubtless due, to large extent, to speculative rebuying, but nevertheless the improvement in the tone of these markets was very widely construed as a reflection of the confidence which obtains here, and in many financial centers abroad, that ultimately some sort of a compromise will be arranged in the reparations problem. Publication of the full terms of the French reply to Great Britain merely emphasized the fact that these two governments are very far apart in their ideas as to the reparations settlement, but, nevertheless, afternoon reports indicating that a personal meeting will probably be arranged between Premier Baldwin and Premier Poincare was construed as offering the possibility for further amicable negotiations. The advance of sterling was more than one-half cent to the pound, and francs and lire gained proportionately.

Today's stock market did not amount to much. It was featured by intermittent weakness in the oil shares offset to some extent by strength in a few specialties in which speculative operations are being carried out, but it is to be doubted if the present fluctuations are anything but minor ones, and apparently represent merely the splashing about of professional operators intent on making financial experiments on one side or the other. The impression given by the stock market to most close observers is that it is merely marking time.

There is to be taken into consideration the fact that there are several grave problems for which settlement is not in sight. One of these is the possibility of a coal strike on September 1, and today's threat of the bituminous miners to join forces with those engaged in the anthracite fields. Still another uncertainty is represented in the tardy arrival of positive fall trade indications. Reports from many centers indicate that business is still inclined to be very spotty and that in only a few exceptional cases, particularly in those lines in which materials are a long while in the process of manufacture, has there been any positive indication of just how fall trade is to turn out.

This, of course, is of more importance to the stock market than the prospective coal strike, or even the complex foreign situation. The markets just now give indications of having entered a period which might be called a "breathing spell," while positive indications of fall trade are given the opportunity to develop.

Market Marking Time

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Irregular and inconclusive price movements characterized today, stock market, with the general list displaying a heavy tone during most of the session. Except in a few issues, which were bid up or hammered down for individual reasons, professional interests showed a disposition to await further developments bearing on the economic situation before extending their commitments. Pool operations were virtually suspended in a number of issues and so-called public buying was again at low ebb.

Unfavorable coal strike and reparations news resulted in a rather large volume of overnight selling orders, which gave the market a heavy appearance at the start. These offerings were fairly well absorbed, however, although individual points of weakness continued to crop out during the day.

Gulf States Steel was again pushed up on southern buying, closing 1¼ higher at 82½. Bethlehem closed fractionally higher but the other independents showed little or no change on the day. United States Steel moved within a radius of 1 point, closing ¼ lower. Earnings of the steel companies in the first half of the third quarter are reported to compare favorably with the corresponding period of the second quarter. A slight falling off in the last half of the quarter is expected, however, as a result of the increased expense involved in the gradual elimination of the ten-hour day. E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, declared, however, that it will be three months before the effect of the change in working day on costs and price can be determined. Rail business for shipments next year is being booked at present prices.

One of the features of today's session was the heavy buying of General Motors in the last hour, several blocks of 5000 shares each changing hands at 15½, up 1-4. Mullins Body also was fairly active, closing 2½ points higher. Mack Truck showed a net gain of 2 points, but the other automotive shares showed little change.

Strength of the Erie issues was based on reports that the railroads' coal company had perfected a new selling arrangement for its coal which would bring it increased income. Erie common touched 15, closing slightly below that for a gain of 1 3-8, the first preferred advanced 2 3-8 and the second preferred 1 7-8. Recent earnings reports of the railroad also have been unusually good.

Famous Players, International Harvester, Allied Chemical and National Lead were the conspicuous weak spots, losing 1 to 2 points.

Call money held at 5 per cent all day. The time money market was dull, with occasional loans made at 5 1-4 per cent, the highest rate that brokers were willing to pay. Out-of-town banks are the principal takers of commercial paper, the ruling rate being 5 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates were firmer. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.55½, and French francs hovered around 5.59 cents.

Total stock sales, 651,300 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 92.04; net loss, .09; high 1923, 105.38; low, 86.91.

Twenty railroads averaged 78.85; net gain, .09; high 1923, 90.63; low, 76.78.

Grain Advance Strikes Snag; Corn Declines

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Buying of wheat was not of large proportions today, and while net declines for the day were small, they indicated a check to the modest bull movement in this grain, which had started in the wake of the vigorous advance recently in corn. The latter cereal was also sold freely, with commission houses furnishing enough corn to more than supply the demand.

Stop loss selling of September caused a big break in the near corn deliveries early, from which there was only a partial recovery. Oats were weak, while corn and rye on the other hand were a little steadier relatively, on rumors of export sales at the seaboard. Closing prices were ⅛@⅜ off for wheat ⅛@1⅜ down for corn, ⅜@⅝ lower for oats and unchanged to ⅜ up for rye. Lard was 2@12 up and ribs 2@5 higher. The choice cash wheat at this market is in good demand, and sales of a few cars of No. 1 hard were made at 1.09 to a milling interest, this price being nearly 9 over the September. Other grades were fairly steady.

There were charters of 350,000 bushels to Montreal, and local sales were 15,000 bushels. Receipts here were 418 cars, with primary receipts of 1,814,000 bushels. Cables from Liverpool were ⅛@⅜d off for futures and unchanged to 1d lower for spot wheat. Weather in the winter wheat belt is more favorable for threshing operations and this may tend to increase the receipts shortly. Northwest reports indicate that the next government report will show even less spring wheat than was indicated in the August report. Commission houses, some of them with eastern connections bought on the break.

Corn futures were steady, except for the September, which broke badly and only recovered part of the gains. Some of the bulls have unloaded in corn, and the present holders are largely eleventh-hour bulls, who came into the market comparatively late in the day. The cash market was active and there were sales of 380,000 bushels for shipment, while the country offerings were comparatively light. Weather conditions were more favorable, with the forecast for fair and warmer, which is the kind of weather now needed. Iowa and Illinois reports indicated that corn would need a month more of good weather to put it out of frost danger.

While there was a good demand for cash oats, and receipts here were moderate, commission houses had oats on tap on all the bulges, and the tone was heavy at the finish. Cash sales were 350,000 bushels. Receipts were 135 cars. Primary receipts were heavy at 1,267,000 bushels, against 818,000 bushels a year ago. With good weather larger receipts are looked for here.

Rye reports from the seaboard indicated a better export demand and the futures were relatively firmer than wheat. Receipts were twelve cars.

Harbor Arrest Spoils Foreign Love Romance

Immigration Inspector Gatley, on duty at Los Angeles Harbor, yesterday took into custody Bertrand Raimond, a French resident of Chile, on the charge of bringing an alien woman into the country for an immoral purpose. It is charged that he induced Mrs. Escara Silva, a comely Chilean woman, and her 9-year-old daughter to come to the United States. The woman is a native of Valparaiso.

The woman landed at Los Angeles Harbor several days ago on a steamer from South American ports and not meeting Raimond, who got in on a later boat, told her story to the local immigration authorities. It is said Raimond won her favor by telling her that he was connected with the French nobility.

She says she understood that they were to be married here but by the time she was through with her story she became convinced that Raimond was playing her false and only had her in the United States for an immoral purpose.

The woman and her daughter will be deported to Chile and Raimond will face a charge of violating the immigration laws.

Hager told the police he was at the corner of Fifty-third street and Maple avenue early yesterday, when two men attacked him and after pounding him almost into insensibility took his watch and about $20 which he had in his pockets.

EMPLOYEES ATTACH RIGGING AT OIL WELL

WAGE CLAIMS AMOUNTING TO $1500 FILED AGAINST SKINNER COMPANY

Unable to cash wage checks when they presented them for payment, employees of the Skinner Drilling Company have attached the well rigging at Signal Union Well No. 1, Long Beach, to insure payment of the wage claims. Sixteen employees and approximately $1500 are involved. Nine of the sixteen filed claims with the State Labor Bureau yesterday.

C. L. Skinner, president of the Skinner Drilling Company, was employer of the men and conducted the drilling operations at the Signal Union well. The claims are filed against him.

Mr. Skinner appeared at the Labor Bureau yesterday and offered an explanation of the situation. He told officials of the Labor Bureau that the president of the Signal Union Company had accompanied him to a bank at Long Beach and had assured Skinner and the cashier of the bank that he would deposit a check to cover Mr. Skinner's drafts, but that when the checks were presented it was found no such check had been deposited.

After his explanation Mr. Skinner told Deputy Labor Commissioner Tibbett that he is soon to receive $10,000 for another well which he has drilled. He said that he will adjust all claims against him.

Mr. Skinner was given until next Monday to settle the claims. He is to appear before the labor authorities again on that date for final adjustment.

Those who filed claims with the Labor Bureau and the amounts of the claims are: Edward Lisbon, Los Angeles, $84; H. Humbard, Los Angeles, $108.60; F. H. King, Long Beach, $80.50; Clark O. Cone, Los Angeles, $45.50; F. G. Vardy, Huntington Beach, $98; H. Hicks, Long Beach, $87.25; C. R. Gerrigan, Los Angeles, $156; J. R. Matlock, Los Angeles, $140, and R. E. Antique Collector Asks $70,000 for Contract Breach Julia Rodezno, antique collector, yesterday filed suit for $70,000 against the Curtis Studios, charging breach of contract. She asserts that she entered into a contract with the studios in June, 1922, which provided that she was to go to New York or to Europe if necessary and there purchase antiques, especially old furniture, for sale by the studios.

The contract also provided that she was to receive a percentage of the profits realized from the sale of the antiques and also a portion of the money paid for renting them by motion-picture concerns. She declares that the studios failed to observe the contract and asks $35,000 on this account. She also declares that another $35,000 is due her for services rendered to the studios.

THEATER IS EXPECTED

Rumor Says Long Beach Is To Have Orpheum House

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Aug 23.—Rumors were rife in realty circles today to the effect that officials of the Orpheum circuit of vaudeville houses are negotiating for the purchase or lease of the property at the southeast corner of First street and American avenue, and that plans are being formulated for the erection thereon of a modern vaudeville theater.

The site is now covered by a one-story garage and salesroom, occupied by the John Rankin automobile agency and owned by the Jackson Deets estate. The Rankin agency recently announced the purchase of a site at Ninteenth street and American avenue for a new sales department. It is known that the Orpheum circuit has long been desirous of securing a location for a theater in Long Beach. No one connected with the estate or the theater company could be located to verify the rumors today.

The barbecue and Spanish dinner will be followed by a program of music, dancing and various games and contests. Father Arthur J. Hutchinson is pastor of the church.

Firm, Plump Flesh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with keen admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gliding gracefully over the dance floor.

All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden—the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the swing of youth.

Not necessarily an out-of-doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth.

S. S. S., since 1826, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that flabby, ill nourished flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

Power Bureau Has to Admit Dire Straits

Into Tax Funds to Pay Its Operating Bills

cil to Guard Against More "Campaigns"

The Municipal Bureau of Power and Light yesterday, through Councilman Criswell, formally asked the Council for a loan of $500,000 from the city treasury, thus officially confirming the reports that the power bureau is "broke." The [illegible] asked Mr. Criswell [illegible] the loan would be repaid, to which Mr. Criswell, as the official [illegible] for those in charge of the municipal power department, replied that it is hoped that the taxpayers' money will be repaid on or before next June, but said that for the power bureau to do this might [illegible] permission to make "a [illegible] increase in rates." This statement of Councilman Criswell also [illegible] the reports that the measures for the financial relief of the bureau starting with a $500,000 [illegible] finally call for an increase in rates, probably of 15 per cent, [illegible] will cost power and light [illegible] over $1,000,000 a year.

Councilman Criswell's resolution [illegible] to the Council yesterday [illegible] as follows:

"Resolved, that the Treasurer [illegible] be authorized to loan [illegible] reserve fund to the bureau of power and light the sum of $500,000 to be repaid on or before June 30, 1924."

[illegible] WATCH 'EM

[illegible] Mathews, special counsel [illegible] Board of Public Service Commissioners, conferred yesterday afternoon with President [illegible] and Councilman Baker, [illegible] the majority membership of the City Council's Finance [illegible], relative to the loan. [illegible] members agreed to [illegible] to the Council that [illegible] be made from the city [illegible] upon the following terms:

[illegible] That it be repaid at the rate of $50,000 a month, beginning January 1, 1924.

[illegible] That the Board of Public Service Commissioners at its [illegible] this afternoon adopt a [illegible] formally requesting the [illegible] setting forth definitely the [illegible] for which the money was [illegible] expended, namely, additions [illegible] to the downtown distributing lines.

[illegible] That the Board of Public Service Commissioners file each [illegible] with the City Council a definite [illegible] report as to how the [illegible] is being expended.

[illegible] That in case any bond [illegible] are voted before the [illegible] repaid, the balance due [illegible] repaid at once in the [illegible] from the bond issue.

CAN'T PAY BY JULY

Under Councilman Criswell's [illegible], the $500,000 was to be [illegible] on or before June 30, next. [illegible] Special Counsel Mathews said [illegible] this could not be done, and [illegible] payments of $50,000 a month [illegible] the largest that could be [illegible] from power revenues. This [illegible] $300,000 due at the beginning of the next fiscal year, [illegible] and will extend the full [illegible] four months beyond the [illegible] set by Councilman Criswell.

MAY RAISE RATES

The Councilmen talked frankly [illegible] Special Counsel Mathews concerning the financial troubles of the Bureau of Power and Light. [illegible] suggestion was made that [illegible] Power Bureau, instead of trying to stagger along with loans [illegible] the treasury should come

SANTA FE MAY ELECTRIFY LINE

President Says Survey Has Been Made

Would Make Use of Power on Desert Roads

Discusses Rail Problems in Pasadena Speech

That a quiet survey of hydroelectric possibilities on the Colorado River has been completed by Santa Fe system engineers with a view to the possible electrification of the transcontinental lines in the desert region was admitted last night by W. B. Storey, president of the road, following an address made to the Chamber of Commerce at Pasadena.

"The officials of the Santa Fe have been following the progress of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad in electrification of their northern lines with perhaps more interest than any any other road," Mr. Storey said.

"We have, however, but limited resources for hydroelectric power, which means cheap power," he continued. "Our engineers have completed a survey of the possibilities in that direction on the Colorado River, and, while we have no definite plans at this moment concerning electrification, the question may come up in the near future."

President Storey averred that all the energies of his road at the present time were directed toward lessening traffic costs. He asks that the Federal Transportation Act of 1920 be given a fair trial by the American public before condemning it.

FAVORS SURCHARGE

Speaking of present rates, he asserted that in his opinion the advocated abolition of the Pullman surcharge would work great hardship on railroads in general and "ought" to result in higher freight rates, both on local and interstate traffic.

Regarding consolidation plans, he stated that he did not believe that advocated combinations could ever be enforced; that such a law would not stand the test of the courts.

"As far as the Santa Fe system is concerned we are but little affected," he said, "and consequently we don't care very much whether we consolidate or not."

President Storey said that at the present time the movement toward double-tracking and the construction of a new station at Pasadena would have to wait until the road was in better financial condition.

"California is growing very fast as is most every section of the country," Mr. Storey said, "and the growth demands growth on the part of the railroads. If the means of transportation do not keep up with the country, all sorts of trouble befall. You have seen some of it during the last year when a visible effect of it was the car shortage. But is was not a car shortage alone, as the public

AERIAL PATHFINDER IN PORT

Steam Yacht Frontiersman Drops in From Liverpool to Chart Course Globe Flyers to Follow

Flying at her forepeak the emblem of the Royal Mersey Yacht Club, the steam yacht Frontiersman, pathfinder for the first attempted aerial journey around the world, dropped anchor in Los Angeles Harbor yesterday.

The thirty-nine members of her crew—gentlemen adventurers all, for they serve without pay in the interests of their order, the Legion of Frontiersmen—were greeted by an official welcoming committee and apprised of plans to make their two weeks' stay a merry one.

In 1886 the Frontiersman was built at Glasgow at a cost of $400,000. She was one of the seven wonders of the shipping world, the most costly yacht ever constructed.

Year by year passed by until the outbreak of the World War; she was commandeered and placed in the naval service.

FIRST IN ACTION

And at her job of patrolling—she was a Liverpool pilot boat—she fired the first shot at a German submarine of any ship in Allied service—August 5, 1914.

In 1904 Capt. Roger Bocock organized the Legion of Frontiersmen, an organization for patriotic service. The World War over, its roster was showered with heroes who had won honors on the field.

Some one suggested the idea of a round-the-world aerial journey. The Legion seized upon it; a public subscription campaign was inaugurated. The Frontiersman was equipped to blaze the trail and her crew—every man a member of the Legion and every man a bemedaled veteran of artillery, or infantrq, or air—was selected from countless volunteers.

On May 23 the ship left Liverpool. Journeying leisurely, mapping proposed routes as they came, they got here yesterday.

TO BE FETED

To welcome them they found Mayor Cryer, Boyle Workman, president of the City Council; Dr. E. Douglas Jones, president of the Adventurers' Club, whose guests the party will be during their stay; DeWitt L. Reaburn, vice-president of the club and Arnold Kruckman, chairman of its historical committee; Capt. J. W. Roulac, Capt. C. A. Mayer, John W. Kemp, Vice-Commodore Herbert L. Cornish of the California Yacht Club, Dr. John T. Thompson, American representative of the flight and a score of others.

This committee and others will be present at a dinner to be given by the Adventurers' at the Johnathan Club next Tuesday, at which only products of the West will be served.

Capt. Bocock, founder of the Legion, is in charge of the expedi-

ALLEY FEELS WATER CUT

Nuys Paper Says Lack of Irrigation May Seriously Damage Crops

In showing the cost to the people of Los Angeles due to [illegible] of the city's water supply by the Power Bureau to operate the [illegible] plants during the winter when water might have been stored [illegible] not been for the power plant requirements, the Van Nuys News [illegible] the following article in its current issue:

"[illegible] there should be considerable [illegible] reduction of demand for domestic water in Los Angeles, there [illegible] be a big curtailment of fall [illegible] grown in the San Fernando [illegible] this season.

"[illegible] to the shortage of water [illegible] irrigation use at this time, the [illegible] water department has given [illegible] to the valley farmers that all [illegible] of new crops where flooding [illegible] must be suspended, [illegible] all available water will be reserved to protect the crops already [illegible].

"[illegible] water is now being distributed with care among those of the [illegible] growers in need of soil moisture [illegible] round out their crops. This [illegible] the effort is being made to [illegible] of the alfalfa growers, [illegible] of whom state that they have [illegible] waiting their turn for some [illegible].

"[illegible] fear is felt is in the fall [illegible] and lettuce crops. The [illegible] of these vegetables cannot be made until the soil has been [illegible] ready through liberal application of water.

"[illegible] E. Dellinger, in charge of the [illegible] office of the water department, stated several days ago that [illegible] the passing of the peak of [illegible] demand, which occurs during the final bean irrigations, water would be available for other crops. Outside of this let-up, there seems to be no other relief in sight. The amount of water in the city aqueducts is limited and the consumption by domestic consumers is constant enough to indicate that there can be no let-up of the domestic demand to favor the irrigation use.

"The delay experienced by one alfalfa grower who applied for water last week and was informed that the water would be available for his use ten days from that date, would cause no inconvenience to other ranchers, they state, if the assurance was given that the water would at some time, not too greatly delayed, be available.

"In addition to the fall crops the irrigation needs of the orchardists are to be considered. The fruit season in peaches will shortly be over. The Farm Bureau and other agricultural organizations have yearly advised a heavy application of water shortly after the removal of the crop. Only in this way, the farm experts state, can a large and successful crop be secured in the following year. The fruit crop will be off the trees some months before the fall or winter rains begin, and the orchardists are of the opinion that the shortage of water, if it prevents this irrigation of the trees, will seriously affect next year's crop.

"The condition, caused by the limited storage capacity of the reservoirs and the big drain on the system by the unprecedented growth of the city, is so acute that the Board of Public Service will present a resolution to the Council this week requesting that no

URGE SALE AT ONCE OF PORT BONDS

Harbor Commission Will Ask City Council to Make Money Available

The Harbor Commission will ask the City Council at once to place on sale the first $5,000,000 of the $15,000,000 of harbor bonds recently voted by the city for the port's improvement. This decision was taken at the California Yacht Club yesterday, when the three commissioners met, dined and talked things over in a manner more harmoniously than the commission has done for many months. Whatever friction has been charged to the old board, the present one admits cordiality, teamwork, and hopes it is "batting around the 1000 mark," as President McKee put it.

The $5,000,000 is immediately essential if construction is even to approach the demand for space from the shipping industry, the commissioners assert. They will meet this noon and make their formal request upon the Council.

Among other work outlined are seven dredging jobs, requiring seven or more dredges, which will get under way in the next thirty to sixty days. Each will cost $100,000 or more. They are the government dredge to dig out a triangle near Dead Man's Island, the San Francisco dredge, excavating in front of Berth 232 for the government; one at Berth 230; one in front of the Hammond Lumber Company at Terminal Island; one north of Hammonds and two dredging jobs in West Basin.

HUGE CAMP MEETING OPENS

Seventh-Day Adventists in Conference Here Have Acres of Tents; Stores on Grounds

What was heralded as the largest camp meeting ever to be conducted by a religious denomination in the United States was opened at 7.45 p.m. yesterday by the Southern California Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists, with approximately 400 tents pitched, at the intersection of Florence and Vermont avenues. Rev. A. G. Daniels, general field secretary, was the speaker at the opening services attended by 1500 persons. The meeting will continue for ten days.

The camp grounds have been orderly and neatly divided into streets with numbers and names. Row on row of neatly and orderly pitched tents divide the grounds into a miniature town. In fact, one is struck most by the orderliness and quietness of the arrangement of the hundreds of small tents around the main auditorium tent, seating about 4000 persons.

ACRES OF TENTS

In all, the main tents and attendant commissary, cafeteria and delicatessen and nursery tents cover an area of several acres. One wonders that this huge camp has been arranged so completely in detail and yet there is no undue noise, nothing but the low murmur of voices in gentle discussion and a homelike air that pervades the place.

At the present time the Southern California conference has a membership of about 4000, and is constantly growing. A few years ago the conference became so large that a division was necessary, and so now, south of the Los Angeles county line to San Diego makes up a new conference, known as the

Officer's Ruse Nets Suspects in Bunko Game

A ruse by Investigator Riemer of the District Attorney's staff resulted yesterday in the arrest of George Ball and F. T. McCormick, asserted bunko men. They are held for investigation.

"Don't you remember me in Denver?" said Riemer, using a set of words which he declares are a sign of recognition between bunko men. This introduction, according to Riemer, caused Ball to become chummy and Riemer was introduced to McCormick. The officer declared that both suspects told him of the inside affairs of various bunko mobs operating in Los Angeles. Then Riemer revealed himself and with the assistance of Detective Lieutenants Reed and Shaffer placed the two men under arrest.

VERDICT IN HEATH CASE POSTPONED

Conference of Cryer, De Coo and De La Monte Fails to Settle Issue

A conference between Mayor Cryer and Police Commissioners De Coo and De La Monte yesterday noon in the Mayor's office failed to result in the verdict in the Heath case, as was anticipated as the result of previous conferences.

Police Commissioner De La Monte was forced to leave the conference in order to catch a train. He will not return to the city for several days.

Mayor Cryer made no statement when he left his office in company with Commissioner De Coo. He admitted the Heath case was under consideration but said there was nothing to be given out at this time.

Police Commissioner De Coo indicated that the matter would not reach a decision for several days. This may mean that the discussion will be reopened upon the return to Los Angeles of Commissioner De La Monte and that the verdict of the commission may not be made public until some time next week.

The commission must decide whether the charges of insubordination and political activity, made against Capt. R. Lee Heath by former Chief of Police Oaks have been sustained by the evidence introduced at the hearings and whether or not Capt. Heath is a fit and proper person to be restored to his position in the police department.

CAR CRASH AT CANYON PERILS SIX

Occupants Thrown From Auto When Heavy Machine Goes Over Bank

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 23.—Six persons riding in a heavy touring car experienced a remarkable escape from death or serious injury this morning when the machine went over a twenty-five foot enbankment in Topanga Canyon, near Cooper's Ranch. The car turned over twice in its descent, the occupants being thrown out of their seats.

Relatively slight injuries were suffered by Earl Williams of 2721 Third street, Ocean Park, who was driving the car and Miss G. E. Barnett of 133 Fraser avenue, Santa Monica. Williams suffered a wrenched back and Miss Barnett is suffering from a fractured wrist and ankle. Both were taken to Martin's Sanatorium.

The other members of the party were bruised and shaken up. They are Miss Myrtle Hensley of Ocean Park; Miss Winifred Pridy of Los Angeles; Keller De Camp of Ocean Park and C. L. Chapman.

Jury in Attack Case Disagrees; Is Discharged

The jury in the case of Elmer Sylvis, on trial before Judge Monroe of the Superior Court on a charge of attacking Mrs. Lillian Chort, disagreed last night after several hours' deliberation and was dismissed. The jury received its instructions at 2 p.m.

It was charged that Sylvis met Mrs. Chort while she was on her way to her mother's house on the night of June 6, last, and invited her into his automobile. Then he is asserted to have taken her to the Union Pacific Manor, a subdivision, and there attacked her at the point of a gun. He was arrested three days later.

THINKS HER SON WAS TORTURED

Federal and County Officers Investigate Case

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Aug. 23.—Clarence Hale, 19-year-old Long Beach messenger boy, who, after endeavoring to enlist in the Marine Corps was returned to his home before daylight Monday morning by unknown persons a mental and physical wreck, was taken to the Los Angeles General Hospital today for treatment. His condition is said by physicians to be grave.

In the meantime county and Federal authorities are endeavoring to fix the responsibility for the boy's pitiful condition. His movements from the time he was tentatively accepted as a recruit at the Los Angeles Recruiting Station of the Marine Corps and sent to San Diego until the hour when, a physical wreck, he was dumped out of an automobile onto the porch of his father's home at 2498 Glendale avenue, this city, are being carefully traced by investigators from the District Attorney's office.

MOTHER GRIEF STRICKEN

His mother, Mrs. Henry Hale, cannot be persuaded from the belief that the boy was brutally and almost murderously hazed at San Diego where he stayed for a few days pending his final examination for enlistment into the Marine Corps.

"Clarence has told us enough during lucid moments to convince us that he was the victim of hazing at San Diego," Mrs. Hale, grief-stricken, declared today. "He believes he is bleeding to death and talks about the big knives they cut him with. I think those responsible for the hazing showed the boy these knives and after blindfolding him made believe they were cutting him by putting something cold against his flesh.

"I think they frightened him out of his senses with their threats and tortures. I will never stop until the whole thing is cleared up and the guilty parties are made to suffer for what they did to my boy.

MOVEMENTS MYSTERY

"I sent him away happy and smiling with what he thought was a rosy future in the service of Uncle Sam ahead of him. They brought him back to me in the night, broken in mind and body. We don't know whether he will live or not."

The boy, who was formerly in the employ of the Western Union as a messenger, went to Los Angeles about ten days ago to enlist in the Federal service. After being tentitively accepted at the Los Angeles recruiting station he was sent to San Diego for final examination. There he was rejected because of an old injury to his arm.

That was the last heard of the boy until he appeared at his home here Monday morning at 2 o'clock in a state of collapse. His clothing was cut to ribbons, his back showed evidence of a severe beating and his ears and mouth appeared to have been burned as though acid or hot liquid had been poured into them.

Since he returned to his home he has been delirious virtually all the time, physicians in charge of the case stated today, and has been unable to give even a disconnected story of his experiences.

CHARTER CHANGES ARGUED

City Attorney Stephens Suggests Government by Mayor, Council and Single Commissioners

A city government administered by a Mayor, a Council and one commission or director for each of the principal departments of municipal enterprise, the commissioners to be appointed by the Mayor subject to confirmation by the Council, was suggested to the Board of Freeholders last night by City Attorney Stephens for incorporation into the proposed new Los Angeles city charter.

The proposal of Mr. Stephens, which, he said, contemplated centralization of responsibility and authority and the elimination of duplication of effort and conflict now existing in city affairs, occasioned considerable alarm to Dr. John R. Haynes, freeholder and member of the Board of Public Service, who experienced the keenest forebodings and who pictured a veritable municipal nightmare, with various "selfish interest" paying $500,000 to elect a Mayor and $2,000,000 to elect a City Council and indulging in various other forms of bribery, extortion, corruption, oppression, intimidation and exploitation.

"It would pay them to do it," asserted the doctor, who had in mind only the purported designs of these "interests" on the department of which he is at present one of the commissioners.

REASSURES HEARERS

Mr. Stephen sought to reassure the perturbed official by asserting his confidence in the people of Los Angeles to make intelligent choice of candidates for public office, but the doctor gave every appearance of a man whose evening was completely ruined and cited various terrifying examples of other cities where dire results have followed one-man authority over certain departments.

During the course of general comment on municipal government and the need for a modern charter in Los Angeles, Mr. Stephens said that the present charter is not sufficiently explicit in its terms, with a consequent confusion of authority and responsibility. He said the new charter should effect a complete revision of the terms of office of all officials and boards and indicated that a four-year term for elective and appointive officials,

UNIT SALE WARRANTS OUT

Arrest Ordered in Opening of War on Illegal Oil Stock Deals in Long Beach Field

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Aug. 23.—In the first gun of the State Corporation Commissioner's local campaign to squelch illegal oil stock promoters, warrants were issued today by Justice Cook for the arrest of M. B. Martin, Signal Hill operator, who is accused in four separate complaints of selling interests in his M. B. Martin Special No. 1 well here without first having secured a permit from the Corporation Commissioner. Martin is alleged to have sold approximately $2000 worth of units in the well to four Long Beach residents who appear as the complainants.

The complaints were laid before Justice Cook by Deputy Corporation Commissioner Heffner. Martin, it was learned following the issuance of the warrants, no longer resides in Long Beach and it was said here today that he has moved to Glendale, where deputy sheriffs were hunting for him this afternoon.

According to Deputy Commissioner Heffner, Martin sold three-hundredths of the production of his well to L. F. Johnson, 417 East Seaside Boulevard, for $200, an equal amount for a similar sum to V. K. Agal, 753 West Seaside Boulevard; twelve three-hundredths for $400 to Harry F. Fink of 117 West Third street, and thirty three-hundredths to A. H. Smart, 37 South Daisy avenue, for a sum said to be approximately $1000.

In his assignment of interest to the purchasers, Martin set forth in the documents that the lease on which he bases his operations is owned by himself and wife.

Last June Martin reported to the authorities that an entire drilling rig, derrick and all had been stolen from his lease and asked that it be recovered for him. So far as could be learned today the authorities have so far been unable to recover the property valued at $7000.

Wife Disavows Infatuation for Minister

Denies Saying Pastor Has Beautiful Eyes

Husband Replies Again With Fifth Document

The interchange of legal communiques between Mrs. Addie May Converse and her husband, Linton K. Converse, which has been under way for several months pending trial of the wife's suit for divorce, was resumed yesterday.

Mrs. Converse, taking objection to her husband's answer, in which he charged that she was more or less infatuated with Rev. Warren C. McIntyre, pastor of a Santa Monica church, filed an answer to his answer in which she vigorously denies being anything more than friendly with the minister.

DENIES MATE'S CHARGES

She denies ever telling her husband that the minister had "beautiful eyes," or that he was her "ideal man," as asserted by the husband in his cross-complaint for divorce. She declares she never made invidious comparisons between the two men, as her husband further charges, and asserts that she insisted on naming their son Warren not because the minister bore that name, but because she wanted the boy to follow in the footsteps of the late President Harding. Mrs. Converse denies all other charges made against her by her husband.

The suit for divorce was filed by the wife some months ago. She charged extreme cruelty. Mr. Converse retaliated by filing a cross-complaint in which he charged that his wife made him wait for her at the church door for long periods every Sunday while she conversed with the minister in his study.

He declared that she constantly compared him to the divine, the comparisons being not at all flattering to him. He also asserted that she insisted on naming their son after the minister and in many ways showed too much interest in the clergyman.

Mrs. Converse filed an answer to the cross-complaint and her husband filed another answer, amplifying his charges. Yesterday brought the total number of documents filed to five.

OESTERREICH BOND HEARING DELAYED

Because of the reported illness of Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, accused of the murder of her husband, Fred W. Oesterreich, time for hearing arguments on a motion to admit her to bail was continued yesterday by Judge Reeve until the 30th inst. Frank Domingues and Woolwine and Geisler, defense counsel, said Mrs. Oesterreich's health is being impaired by her imprisonment. The court announced an intention to appoint a physician to examine the defendant to determine her exact physical condition. It was said she will be given an early trial.

GIRL HELD AS BANDIT QUEEN

Testimony Says Drink Transformed Her From "Nice Girl" and Made Her Rob Home of Hostess

A few drinks from the flask of a boy friend transformed Margaret Lee, a house guest at the home of Mrs. Gene Clark, 1294 Winfield street, from a "nice girl" into a bandit queen, according to testimony yesterday in Justice Hanby's court. The girl was held to answer under $2000 bail.

Shortly after imbibing the terrific concoction offered her, according to testimony, the girl and her three boy friends proceeded to ransack the Clark home, obtaining $400 in cash and $800 in checks. However, the girl received nothing for her work, witnesses said, the money going to Charles Wood, who, with Clarence French, another asserted member of the youthful burglar gang, was turned over to juvenile authorities for proper action.

Lesley Wells, asserted third member of the "baby" band, also was held to answer by Justice Hanby under $2000 bail. It was brought out during the hearing that Miss Lee came to stay with Mrs. Clark some time ago as her guest. Mr. Clark was away. One afternoon the three boys are said to have called on Miss Lee and offered her a drink. She accepted, according to witnesses, and the robbery of the house followed.

TRUCKING DECISION DELAYED

Final Action on Bekins Application to be Taken in Three Weeks

Final action on the application of the Bekins Storage Company for permission to operate an automobile truck service between Los Angeles, Fresno, Oakland and San Francisco will not be taken by the State Railroad Commission for about three weeks.

This became apparent yesterday when the three-day hearing on the application conducted by Commissioner Brundige, in which the complaint of the California Highway Express against the company also was heard, was closed and the attorneys instructed to file briefs. The applicant was granted fifteen days for filing and five days for reply. Oral argument will be heard after the briefs are in, when the matter will be finally decided.

During the hearing yesterday, Attorney Libby, representing the highway express, demanded that a peremptory order be issued to compel the storage company to cease operations at once. The demand was refused.

The highway express maintains that the storage company has been operating illegally and as the storage company's application and the complaint against it dovetailed they were heard together. The storage company has assets of $1,800,000 and operates warehouses in this city, San Francisco and Fresno, it was shown during the hearing.

only came to know it, but it was a shortage of locomotives, round houses, side tracks, second and third tracks and, in fact, everything that goes to make up a railroad.

"All these things require an enormous amount of new money. Making my estimate for the amount expended by the Santa Fe in the past twenty years, one and one half billion dollars should be expended yearly by the railroads of this country for the next three years to place them where they should be with relation to the business of the country, and after that at least one billion a year.

MONEY LIMITED

"Many seem to think a railroad is an institution with an unlimited supply of money at its command, and that it should use this money not only to keep its tracks in order and to render services to the people who are willing to buy what it has to sell, which is transportation, but that it should beautify cities, erect wonderful union stations, contribute to parks, and do anything and everything for a city that requires money and for which no other source of revenue can be found. The railroad cannot spend money unless it can obtain it, and it has only the same way of obtaining it that you have, that is, by earning it. There is, of course, the method by stock sales or by borrowing but in both of these dividends must be paid on stock and interest on borrowings or the source of supply will fail.

"The railroads of the country at present are in hard straits as regards earnings. I speak of the railroads as a whole. Last year they earned somewhat over 4 per cent and this year thus far have earned at the rate of nearly 6 per cent. The Santa Fe has not paid dividends larger than 6 per cent at any time.

"We are just about earning our requirements by handling the heaviest business that ever came to us. The Santa Fe, however, has authorized an expenditure of nearly $60,000,000 this year for equipment and added facilities. We will not get it all spent this year but we will manage to put over $40,000,000, and in doing this we have cut expenditures for track elevation, for stations and similar objects to a minimum and are taking only the things that are needed to take care of business.

NEED FAIR RETURN

"The Interstate Commerce Commission is charged by the Transportation Act of 1920 with so fixing rates that a fair return will come to the roads, but thus far a fair return has not come, and as a consequence the credit of the roads has not been restored. Until it is we cannot do all the things we ought to do, to say nothing of the things we would like to do."

Mr. Storey took occasion to explain to his audience the growth in taxation, which he said had been growing by leaps and bounds over the entire country, but more in California than elsewhere.

"The Santa Fe paid in taxes last year," he stated, "the sum of $18,400,000, and it only paid its stockholders $19,800,000 in dividends. Of this sum paid in taxes and allotting to California its proportion of Federal taxes on the basis of its gross earnings in this State, we paid 68 per cent of our net earnings in taxes, while for the system as a whole we paid only 30 per cent. If we are to expand in California, how can we do it under such taxation as this? You can help correct the situation if you will, and it is to your interest that it should be corrected."

Rushes Sick Cat to Doctor; Gets in Police Court

Mrs. Frances Howe, 27 years of age, of 426 South Alexandria avenue, was in such a hurry to take a sick cat to a cat hospital that she drove recklessly, she told Police Judge Richardson yesterday.

Judge Richardson suspended a sentence of ninety days in jail on condition that she doesn't violate any more traffic regulations in the next two years. Police told Judge Richardson that her husband was in the car, as well as the cat, and that he had been arrested for intoxication and had paid a $5 fine.

Sentence of thirty days in jail was imposed on James Clay of 1177 Norton avenue, found guilty of reckless driving. It was testified he drove his car into the automobile of S. A. McAllister, injuring Mrs. A. K. King of 209 South Harvard Boulevard. Clay gave notice of appeal and bail was set at $1000.

BURGLARS IN HOME

A mink cape valued at several hundred dollars, a large amount of silverware and a traveling bag were stolen from the home of H. C. Brayton at 1312½ Formosa avenue, Hollywood, by burglars who forced their way in through a side window, police were told yesterday.

TAYLOR MAY ESCAPE TRIAL

Although Bandit Faces New Charges, He May be Sent to Prison to Serve Former Sentence

Whether Jesse Taylor, notorious "slicker" bandit, will be taken back immediately to Folsom prison, where he was serving a term of from one year to life for robbery, was unsettled yesterday when two new complaints, charging robbery, were issued against him by the District Attorney's office.

Judge Reeve rescinded an order he had issued for Sheriff Traeger to bring Taylor here as a defense witness in the trial of John Giannello, accused of robbing Orrin N. Clark February 5, last. The court ordered Taylor returned to Folsom prison.

After Taylor escaped on the train at Madera, while being brought here, he is said to have committed several robberies. In a complaint issued by Dep. Dist.-Atty. McClelland yesterday, Taylor was accused of robbing officials of the California Branch Bank at Fifty-seventh street and Central avenue on the 13th inst., of $4200, and in a complaint issued by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Burton he was accused of robbing an official of the Jersey Farm Dairy Company on Slauson avenue of $1595 on the same day.

Immediately after Taylor's capture by Deputy Sheriffs Dewar and Modie on Wednesday, Chief Deputy Sheriff Wright checked up the number of the revolver found on Taylor and discovered it was the same weapon stolen from the California Branch Bank during the robbery. Taylor was almost positively identified as having robbed the dairy official.

BRITISH YACHT ARRIVES HERE

tion while Capt. Robt. L. Spaulding is master of the boat. In charge of the actual mapping for the flight are seven ex-aces of the Royal Flying Corps. Fifteen other members of the crew are engaged in scientific work in connection with the expedition.

TO PATROL SEAS

The pilots on the proposed flight will be Capts. Norman MacMillan and G. H. Malins of the Royal Flying Corps.

It is expected that the proposed flight will follow roughly the route laid out by Arnold Bruckman in 1915. At least it has been decided that the Bering Sea will be the crossing point from the American continent to Siberia.

The expedition, while in Los Angeles, will purchase all the supplies needed for the aviators while on their journey north and west of Vancouver, load them and distribute them in the Far North.

While the flight is in progress the Frontiersman will patrol the Bering Sea to aid in case of accident. After the airmen are again flying over land, the party will return to Liverpool.

CITY CHARTER CHANGE ARGUED

with the exception of members of the city council, is desirable.

In all cases of municipal boards composed of several members, he said, provision should be made to permit an overlapping of the terms of office in order that a number of experienced members may be always available.

He suggested the possible advisability of adopting a borough form of government; favored the adoption of a plan for granting indeterminate franchises for public utilities; recommended that the fiscal year be changed to conform with the calendar year in order to facilitate the collection and disbursement of public funds; suggested that the duties of the City Council should be confined to legislative matters, although advocating that the Council retain the power of confirming or rejecting appointments by the Mayor. Following his remarks he was asked by the board to submit his comment in writing.

OTHER PROVISIONS

A committee representing the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando Valley, B. R. Hollaway, George E. Hume and Bert Woodward, waited upon the freeholders and suggested certain proposed provisions for the new charter, among them a proposal by Mr. Hume that the matter of district representation be given consideration and a proposal by Mr. Woodward that the borough system should be fully investigated and, if found feasible, be submitted to the people.

Adoption of a borough form of government for the city of Los Angeles, Mr. Woodward said, doubtless would result in a decision by many outlying communities to seek annexation to Los Angeles.

"No charter can be successfully drawn," asserted Mr. Woodward, who is a former city attorney of Glendale, "unless it contemplates the future annexation of surrounding communities to this city." Arthur Doucette, representing the Los Angeles Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, submitted a recommendation that the new charter carry specific provision for financial aid for the work of the humane organization.

SAFETY COMMISSION

A communication from the Los Angeles Safety Council was received and ordered referred to committee in which the recommendation is made that the office of Commission of Safety be created by the new charter.

In addition to providing for a Commissioner of Safety, with authority over a bureau "composed of not less than one member of the police force for every 25,000 of the population as shown by the most recent census by the United States government.," the proposed charter amendment recommended by the Safety Council sets forth:

"The work of the Bureau of Safety shall be to ascertain the cause of accidents within the city, and if it shall appear that a crime has been committed, to furnish the information obtained to the officials whose duty it shall be to prosecute the guilty party; and to instruct the people individually, or in groups, on the causes and percentage of accidents."

WILL RAISE FUNDS TO ENFORCE STATE LAW

Lack of State funds with which to enforce the State optometry law brought forth a special call last night for a meeting to be held in San Francisco today and tomorrow by members of the California State Society of Optometrists to provide ways and means of gaining a fund for that purpose. Dr. Russell E. Simpson, president of the organization, issued the call.

ASK TRAFFIC RULE

The business men of Los Angeles Harbor yesterday appealed to the City Council to limit parking of automobiles on Sixth street during the day to one hour. The petition averred that some such action will be necessary to remedy traffic congestion.

southeast conference. This is the annual camp meeting which has been conducted for the last thirty-five years in this community.

STORES ON GROUND

There is a huge cafeteria on the grounds, operated by the conference. There is a delicatessen store and a grocery store, and a fresh fruit store for those who care to prepare their meals in their tents. There is a large tent for the care of children and small babies while services are in progress or mothers are indisposed. There is an emergency hospital for the treatment of those on the grounds if necessary. No detail of comfort has been neglecte, and modern drinking fountains, ice cooled, have been placed.

Among the notables who have gathered for the meeting are Rev. W. M. Adams, president of the conference; Rev. G. W. Reeser, business manager of the conference; Rev. G. A. Snyder, religious liberty secretary; Rev. A. G. Daniels, general field secretary; Dean A. Lower, secretary and treasurer of the book department; Rev. R. D. Quinn, evangelist, and Rev. J. L. McElhany, president of the Pacific Union conference.

Those in charge yesterday estimated that between 4000 and 5000 would be present by Saturday, including the Los Angeles visitors.

VALLEY FEELS CUT IN WATER

further annexations of outside territory be made for the present.

The resolution will be prepared by R. F. Del Valle, president of the commission, and the commission may adopt the resolution today or next Friday.

"The demands made upon our department for water service are so great," said Mr. Del Valle, "that we should temporarily halt any more annexations until we have been able to digest what we have and take care of the existing city. Annexations now should be only to round out the corners of the city.

"The tremendous rapid growth of Los Angeles in population, industries, opening of new tracts practically in every section of the city, with and all these new tracts demanding water service, makes it imperative that we stop for the time being taking in large areas."

President Del Valle has taken the matter up verbally with members of the commission and the latter's engineers, and with Councilman Criswell, who will lay the facts before the legislative body at the proper time.

In order to find out exactly where they stand, a delegation of valley farmers will confer with the Public Service Board this week at which time it is hoped that a policy may be adopted that will not seriously cripple the agricultural industries of the valley.

In support of his application for an injunction restraining the Board of Public Service from wasting aqueduct water by using it to run the municipal power plants and then letting it escape into the sea, Volney Craig, general manager of the Ford-Craig Ranch Company, with large properties in the San Fernando Valley, yesterday made affidavit in the Superior Court setting forth the present shortage of water for irrigation purposes in the valley. He renewed his plea that the commissioners be prohibited from such waste of aqueduct water in the future.

The temporary restraining order was refused under a stipulation that there shall be no further waste of water pending the hearing of the injunction suit. This has been set for November 17.

BORROWS MERE HALF MILLION

before the public frankly and ask for a raise in rates. Mr. Mathews said that it may be necessary to do this.

By requiring a monthly report as to how the $500,000 is being expended the Council will keep a check on the administration of the board and will be able to prevent the Power Bureau spending its money for donations to political ownership associations, propaganda, gifts, engineering experiments, the payment of some of the stack of unpaid bills, "jazz" bands and marcel waves.

In informally urging members of the Council to vote for the officials of the Bureau of Power and Light say that the downtown distribution lines of the city system, which were taken over from the Southern California Edison Company, are overloaded and that there is danger of fire and explosion if these lines are not repaired and strengthened. Electrical engineers interviewed yesterday declared that these lines were profitably and safely operated by the Southern California Edison Company, which in addition turned over to the city as a depreciation fund for repairs to the lines $750,000 which the city Bureau of Power and Light is supposed to have spent on repairing and strengthening the lines.

STUDIO CRICKET TRIES HIS CHIRP

Solo of Scientific Interest Starts Early Program

Pianos and Violins Alternate at Evening Affair

Chief August Vollmer Talks on "Criminology"

BY BEN A MARKSON

Popular science note of no particular interest: At 12:01 a.m., [illegible], the KHJ operator broadcast a solo by a saltatorial [illegible] orthopterous insect. The [illegible], entitled "Chirping," was [illegible] on the rough basal part [illegible] forewings. Uncle John had [illegible] instructions that the singing [illegible] particular cricket which [illegible] The Times station, was to [be] broadcast at the first opportunity. Five listeners-in telephoned [that] they heard and recognized [the] tune of the cricket.

The scheduled programs were of [a] more serious nature, much more [illegible].

[illegible] the first intermission August Vollmer, Chief of Police, [illegible] on "Criminology." He meant [illegible].

[illegible] Page's lovely lyric voice [was] heard in charming compositions by Liza Lehmann, Clarke, [illegible] and Tipton. She is a genuine young singer with promise of [illegible]. "Little Rose of May," "No One Ever Marries Me," [illegible] Moon," and "A Spirit Flower" were among her offerings.

Kenneth Rundquist, a fine baritone, favored with "On the Road to Mandalay," by Oley Speaks, [illegible]" by Huhn; "Three for [illegible]" by Squire, and other excellent numbers.

Helen Hauser, soprano, and Mr. [illegible] pleased with two duets, "Desert Love Song," by Curran, and "Little Grey Home in the [illegible]" by Lohr. We have had [illegible] Hauser as a soloist on previous programs. A charming [illegible]. The accompanist for the [illegible] was Reta Mitchell, whose [illegible] is to be commended.

Bernadette Grant gave delightful readings, choosing from the [illegible] of Frieda Peycke.

The two violinists, Laura Griffing, 11 years of age, and Ella Hubert, are pupils of Leon Goldwasser. In addition to attractive [illegible] they rendered two Godard [illegible], "Cradle Song" and "Mid-[illegible].

The Alhambra section of the program was arranged in connection with the Carnival and Industrial Exposition which opens tomorrow. It is the yearly festival of the Alhambra Business Men's Association.

Chuck Erbe and his Alhambra orchestra instituted the jazz program with "Havana," followed with "Who's Sorry Now?" and "When Will I Know?" [illegible] leaving the studio the orchestra played "Farewell Blues." [illegible] of lively syncopators.

C. J. Burns, accompanied by [the] orchestra, sang "Alhambra, the Town of My Golden Dreams," his own composition which is to be sung during the exposition. Ben Hamilton favored with "Song of My Dreams," with orchestra accompaniment.

Chamber music of artistic quality was given by the Cecilian Trio during the noon and matinee programs. The trio is composed of Eva May Decker, pianist; Helen Rundle, 'cellist, and Viola Alfonte, violinist.

Their ensemble bears a bright and colorful harmony. One concedes their gift for music after hearing "Polanaise Militaire" by Chopin, or "Whispering Flowers," by Von Blon. Serenades, dances, concert scores and popular numbers were interspersed, making their two concerts varied to the taste of all hearers.

TRIO'S WORK SPLENDID

Sincere beauty was attained in the trio renditions of "Le Seigneur Arlequin" from "Carnival Venitian," by Burgmein, preceded by "Colombine," "Marche Mignonne," by Poldini; two Offenbach selections, and "Adagio Cantabile" from the B Minor Sonata by Strauss. "Pale Moon" was given as specially arranged by the trio.

Viola Alfonte's violin solos, "Souvenir," by Drdla, and 'Liebesfreud," by Kreisler, with accompaniment by Eva May Decker, were rich and warm in tone. It was a pleasure to hear Nevin's "Mighty Lak' a Rose," as played on the 'cello by Helen Rundle.

The bocal soloist on these two programs was Constance Miller Silverton, soprano. Accompanied at the Knabe by Mrs. De Palma Marks, the singer won her audience with the dulcet, sympathetic quality of her voice. Two of her offerings were "Sweetest Flower That Blows," by Hawley, and "All For You," by Brown.

Josephine Elizabeth Gratz, known as "Little Miss Liberty," pleased Radioland Junior with songs and readings on the children's program. She sang popular numbers and gave readings entitled "Mr. Robinson" and "Little Orphan Annie." Mary Elizabeth Hughes, 12 years of age, and Helen Edwina Hughes, 9 years of age, sang sweetly for the lads and lassies.

Nature and Concrete

Nature and Concrete have contributed more towards the reputation California has established throughout the World, than any other factor. For next to the natural advantages that the State offers, the great paved highway system has done more than any one feature to attract attention to the Golden State.

Today, thousands of tons of Concrete are being used to extend this great boulevard system, providing not only access to the beauties of out-of-the-way spots, but also a means of bringing the rich harvests of orchards, vineyards, gardens and farms into the cities.

California recognized the superiority of the concrete road for smoothness, appearance and durability. It early took the lead in miles constructed. It has demonstrated to this country that the Concrete road is supreme.

Another foreign loan comes to our doors. Norway will accept $20,000,000 of our gold and will be glad to pay 6 per cent interest on the same. Norway is mighty good at paying her debts, and we can have all the herring in the North Sea for additional security.

Now suspicious souls are charging that even the arithmetics in use in some of the schools of the nation are used to insidiously convey political or Socialistic propaganda. If anybody can twist the multiplication table into an argument for the division of private property let him go to it.

MEN OF MARS

We are assured by an astronomer that the canals in Mars have been somewhat changed since the last stellar maps were taken. Possibly they have been deepened and widened to care for fresh and increasing traffic. Wonder what the men of Mars think of our Panama Canal as far as they have got. They may believe we are pikers.

A WORD TO THE WISE

Under the new law which governs the work and operations of realtors in this State it is a crime to misrepresent our land offerings. The truth should be enough to complete any transaction, but it must be admitted that at times some of our overzealous agents have added a few cubits to the rainbow or given a fresh touch to the lily. Now they may have to hold themselves in leash.

BACK TO THE LAND

There is a general movement in Great Britain to transfer the unemployed of the cities to some of the colonies of the empire. The idle London artisan is being induced to settle on a farm in British Columbia or Australia. It is a way to independence and possible prosperity, but pioneering is not popular. The jobless man of the city hesitates at approaching the great wide spaces except as he finds them in the movies. Often he prefers to wait and waste in idleness.

CREATION BY PROXY

Between spirits Sir Oliver Lodge is speculating on the genesis of matter and the origin of motion. He stresses the possibility of some scientist creating or rounding up some billions of organic molecules and resolving them into human life. There is nothing inconceivable in this to him. He says that life originated somehow and if we can experiment and get to know anything about its basic impulse the effort is legitimate. He insists that mind dominates matter and that the mind of man is not of a vastly different order than the mind of the Creator. Anybody wishing to build a Venus out of a nest of organic molecules may go ahead with the hearty approval of Sir Oliver.

CANDY FOR MEN

Nowadays the men are using almost as much candy as our fair ones. Confectionery sales in the Los Angeles district last month amounted to more than $600,000 in real money. Of this a heavy proportion was bought by and for men. A woman who has grown rich making candy for men says that they like the buttery, salty and chewy kinds or those having strong flavors. They like their peppermint and wintergreen of full strength and they like caramels, butterscotch and taffy. Even during their business hours they like to sink their physical teeth into some firm but conquerable confection while at the same time biting into some mental business problem of the day. Edison is a free consumer of candies and the late President Harding ate unashamed of his favorite nut caramels. It may not be wise for men to eat liberal quantities of candy, but they are doing it.

TAMING THE TIGER

Georges Clemenceau, the war Premier of France, is a man of many parts. He has written a musical comedy, but is having some trouble in breaking into the movies. He sought to film his book, "Les Plus Forts," and went at it man fashion. He wrote the scenario and also undertook some of the direction. At least he was reported as being on location during the taking of some of the scenes. It is possible that he also took a part in the picture. But when the film was completed it was condemned by the court as being dangerous to public order and the morality and tranquillity of the people of the department or province in which it was shown. This is the department of the Var, which once elected "The Tiger" as a Senator of France, and for that reason was chosen for his debut as a movie magnate. He may still try his picture in some other section of France, but he is not likely to fare much better. Maybe the film should have been used as a part of the invasion of the Ruhr. Let it be tried on the Germans by all means.

MOORS ON THE WARPATH

The latest dispatches from Melilla, the scene of the fighting in North Africa between the Moors and the Spaniards, infer a temporary success for the arms of Spain. At any rate, the Spanish forces have been able to relieve the beleaguered garrison of Tifaruin, which a few days ago seemed almost at the mercy of the Moroccan rebels. This at least will afford Spain temporary breathing respite in what for months has been an apparently hopeless struggle.

One satisfactory result of this belated victory is the determination of Madrid not to intrust the Moroccan campaign to that ancient martinet, Gen. Don Valeria Weyler.

Twenty-five years ago the name of "Butcher" Weyler, the man who persecuted the Cubans without mercy in the bloody years he governed the island, was a byword on American lips. His policy of cruelty and suppression of native freedom finally brought about the intervention of the United States and the loss to Spain of her overseas colonies.

Old-timers in Spain, who remember the fatal consequences of Gen. Weyler's brutality in dealing with the Cubans and the Filipinos, will be glad to hear that their government does not intend to employ him against the warlike Moors. The "butcher" is now 80 years old—far beyond the years when even a great military genius should manage an active campaign. And Gen. Weyler has never demonstrated that he was in the Napoleon, Grant or Foch class.

In spite of this last reverse the Moors are in fighting fettle. They are well supplied with modern military equipment. The burning African heat, poison to the European, is food to the children of the desert. And the Moor is inspired by the tradition and inheritance of a race of warriors that have never been enervated by luxury or easy living.

If the old tyrant of Cuba had the energy of his younger days and the will power to repeat the experiment of 1898 his temporary success would be worse for Spain and for the world than a swift decisive Moorish victory in the fighting around Tifaruin.

Had Gen. Weyler been given a free hand to treat the Moors as he treated the Cubans such persecution would in all probability have united the Moslems and Moors and Arabs in a combined revolt against European influence on the whole Mediterranean coast of North Africa; and where such a revolt would end it would take a bold man to prophesy.

The Moorish adventure has been dangerous for Spain. It may prove serious to all European nations having interests in Northern Africa. A revolution in Spain is one of the least harmful probabilities of a Moorish victory. Indirectly, such a success would encourage the opposition already developing among the natives to the French control of large slices of the Sahara. It would jeopardize the Italians at Tripoli and might even inaugurate the long-threatened jehad or Holy War.

Desultory fighting has been in progress for some time now between native Africans and invading Europeans, with success alternating between the combatants. At Melilla the Moorish camp is receiving daily large numbers of recruits from the interior. The Moors are in their own country and have little trouble in supporting their armies in the field. Should the Spanish eventually re-establish their authority over the tribesmen in revolt it will be at the price of merciless conscription and ruinous taxes.

And then in all the industrial districts in Spain the specter of Socialism would rise up to greet the Pyrrhic victors.

Indeed, the time seems to be approaching when the Moors and Arabs and other natives may combine on a sort of Monroe Doctrine for North Africa. A few more abortive campaigns, such as Spain is half-heartedly engaged in at Melilla, would provide the flip needed to enable North Africa to shake itself free of Southern Europe.

Of course, such a result would be a check to the spread of white civilization—possibly a setback for the cause of Christianity. Yet in the long run it might teach Europe the needed lesson, that Christianity and civilization are not most worthily advanced by the employment of such agents as the barbed-wire entanglement and Gen. Weyler.

GOVERNMENT IN EUROPE

What Europe seems to need most at the moment is government. It needs a first-class federated government with a large enveloping policy of co-operation. It needs to abolish the interstate bickering and jealousies, just as America needed a first-class central government before it could become the great, influential, prosperous United States. It needs it as Australia needed it, as South Africa needed it, even as the Federated Malay States needed it.

In this connection it is interesting to note that several authoritative students of inter-European affairs have come to the same conclusion. These writers show a marked disposition to regard Europe as a single entity. They appreciate the vast array of petty racial differences, but decline to regard them as any more impossible of unity than were the jealousies and competition that obtained between the States in this country or between the factions in South Africa between Briton and Boer.

It would seem that the real underlying trouble with the twenty-five nations that make up Europe, excepting Russia and England, is this extravagance of nationalistic hatreds. And there doesn't seem any obvious way out of the chaos, which inevitably ends in useless war, other than unity.

So long as these several nations live in water-tight compartments, utterly self-centered, with no machinery for consultation and adjustment of their common affairs, continual suspicion, jealousies and the old hatreds are bound to rule. European countries must learn to understand and be friendly with one another before any world league can become effective for world problems.

Difficult as any such scheme must prove, it is not impossible. Nations with age-old hatreds can become friends. Strained as the Entente Cordiale between France and England is today it has at least proved for twenty years that traditional enmity could become friendship. King Edward achieved that during one short reign. And the entente had none of the ties of federation. Briton and Boer achieved it in the Union of South Africa, after years of bitter enmity. We have achieved it with Canada as a shining example. The French and English achieved it in Canada over violent bitterness. And English and Turk are achieving it again now since Lausanne.

Hence the idea is by no means as fantastic as might first appear. It is in times of chaos and danger that men realize the need of unity—just as England rushed into coalition to win the war, as Germany accepts coalition to escape debacle. Moreover, in spite of the loud quarreling which seems to dominate the situation, there is some tendency to unity, to co-operation, to bury old differences in many human phases.

One marked example is that of the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Episcopalian English bishops being invited to address the Weslyan Methodist conference just concluded in Bristol, Eng. Both Weslyans and Episcopalians talked of nothing but Christian unity. We have had similar religious examples in this country.

We even see the spirit working in the Irish elections, where speakers on both sides are urging Ulster to forego her old prejudices and join the Free State.

There is no suggestion that a Napoleon should govern Europe. No suggestion that a strong nation should take the reins from the weaker ones. The proposal is strictly one of co-operation, federation, a duly-elected central government with an inclusive and all-enveloping policy for the greatest good to the greatest number. Just the same sort of brotherhood that is being urged for Christianity, just the same sort of brotherhood that exists between the United States of America.

It may not come in the present generation, but the youth of the world has received this inspiration, and the youth of the world gives marked evidence that it is against war. And just as the spirit of bitter rivalry is being gradually abolished from our colleges and schools, so is it being abolished from European colleges and schools. The trend is world-wide. And so it is and must be between nations, specifically those twenty-five violently nationalistic European nations.

VEGETARIAN OR CARNIVOROUS?

Kern county rejoices in a series of rabbit drives through which, it is asserted, they have wiped out 40 per cent of the bunny life and so saved the agriculturists of the county $400,000. Poison grain was extensively employed, in some cases the cost of applying it running to 12 cents an acre. The one idea was to get rid of the rabbits by the quickest means available in the interest of the farmers.

To the grower of grasses and grains and vegetables the drives were a complete success. Thousands of rabbits put out of commission; more crops to market; money going into the pockets of the farmer instead of into the stomachs of rodents.

So Kern county agriculture benefits by the destruction of its enemies. Yet there is another side to the picture. For the cottontail is a very agreeable form of nourishment.

When the World War cut down the meat supply of the fighting Briton to meager proportions there was a big demand for canned Australian rabbit and the shipments from the Antipodes brought large profits to the canners. For years Australia had attempted—even as Kern county is attempting—to exterminate the pest. There are some Australians today who are glad the efforts were only partially successful.

Those thousands of California rabbits, removed from the farms of Kern in the interest of economy and preserved in convenient containers, might have helped ease empty stomachs among the half-fed hordes of the Near East or provided tit-bits for dainty suppers in distant American homes.

Fewer rabbits mean more abundant crops. Kern county estimates a saving of $400,000. Whether the outsider is pleased at the removal of the cottontail from his former California preserves depends to a great extent whether his taste is vegetarian or carnivorous.

COLD STEEL

We are importing 1,000,000 tons of iron ore from Chile this year. This should come in handy in making chilled steel.

RIPPLING RHYMES

RETROSPECT

As I sit before my shack, old and jaded, gray and bent, I am always looking back to the years unwisely spent; and I view my winding track, seeing things that I lament. Could I live my life again, all vain follies I'd eschew; and I would not swipe a hen or compound illicit brew; ah, the grief of ancient men when their sinful past they view! All the wrangles and the fights of my dark and stormy past, all the tricks on other wights, all the methods loose and fast come to torture me o' nights and to make me stand aghast. Oft I strive to recollect noble actions I have done, actions wise and circumspect, actions shining like the sun, and it sprains me to detect and to round up even one. For my recollection sticks to the things I would forget, to the dark and sinful tricks that an old gent must regret, and my care-worn conscience kicks till it's reeking with its sweat. Happy is the gray-haired guy who can sit before his door, looking with a placid eye on the well-spent days of yore, all unable to descry deeds that make his spirit sore. WALT MASON.

HOW IT STARTED

BY JEAN NEWTON

"Tantalize"

Investigation into the origin of this word reveals an interesting page in the book of mythology. For "tantalize" is derived from Tantalus, the mythological character who was condemned by Jupiter, as the legend tells us, to the infernal regions to do penance for his sins in a way that is unique in the annals of punishment.

Tantalus was compelled to stand in a pool of water, parched with thirst, his chin level with the water, without being able to drink a drop. For as soon as he bowed his head eager to quaff the water flowed off, leaving the ground at his feet.

Below his chin was the water he could not drink, and above his head stooped trees, heavily laden with fruit—pears, pomegranates, apples and luscious fruit. The fruit reached almost to his mouth; but when he tried to grasp it winds whirled it high above his head.

It is safe to say that no one familiar with the story of Tantalus will deny the appropriateness of the derivative "tantalize" to describe subjecting some one to extreme annoyance.

SING, O MUSE!

Sing, O Muse! the story of Miss Monica Mousseau, drug clerk, of Ottawa, Can., and of Eudore Gubord, also drug clerk, of Ottawa, Can. Sing their innocent flirtations as they ladled out the ice cream and shot the fizz into sodas. Sing Eudore's manly indignation when a customer got fresh with Monica. Sing their day off, when, forgetting soda and ice cream, they went riding in the street cars or walking in the park. Then, O Muse, tune thy lyre, tighten up every loose string and furnish adequate accompaniment for the news, arriving like a bomb in this Arcadian atmosphere, that Monica has received an inheritance of one and one-half million dollars. Sing of the joy of Monica, of the misgivings, the hesitation of Eudore. And, finally, O Muse, with a great whing-whanging of chords, terminating in the strains of one or more of the standard wedding marches, record the triumph of young love over affluence as over poverty. Tell the cynical world that Monica, who might have had a baronet, chose instead to marry Eudore.—[Robert L. Duffus in New York Herald.

FUNDAMENTALS

The right to work, the right to trade, the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness have not yet been passed over to anybody to exercise arbitrarily over anybody else. These things are fundamental and the so-called leaders of any movement, whether it be of labor or of capital or of reform, might just as well recognize these fundamental things first as last.—[Springfield Evening Union.

PEN POINTS

By the Staff

The new President has a Moses—the Senator from New Hampshire.

The obsequies are over and the party lines are snapping back into place again. We are a great people.

It certainly pays to advertise. The Marion Star, that was originally purchased for $300, sold for $500,000.

But it must be said that the average man can raise a crop of whiskers without any aid from the government.

The Coolidges have for the first time occupied the White House. We understand the lease runs until March 4, 1929.

The end of the vacation season is in sight. No more postal cards running thus: "Having a fine time, wish you were here."

About the only time we have frost in Southern California is when the week-end guest concludes to remain over another week.

Uncle Sam will not rush refunding the war debts of foreign nations. Canny Andy Mellon has been abroad and he says we'll bide a 'wee.

In his reply to Premier Baldwin as to German reparations we understand that Poincare is willing to come out of the Ruhr, provided he gets his money. That sounds reasonable.

"Poor Ireland" has become a misnomer. No foreign loan is needed or desired. The Free State banks have something like $250,000,000 in gold. With disorder ended progress is sure to come to Ireland.

The scene is shifting in the Senate, with the farm bloc. Senator Capper, head of the organization in the upper house, says that the farmers of the West do not demand a special session of Congress because they are not looking for "impossible legislation" from that body. What do the farmers of Minnesota, who elected Magnus Johnson to the Senate, think of that?

Since Henry Sullivan has swum across the English Channel a score of swimmers are preparing to attempt the feat. But none of them is in the Leander class, who swum the Hellespont nightly to court Hero, his lady love, on the other side. And Byron, crippled of feet, also swum the Hellespont. But Leander and Byron will keep enjoying publicity centuries hence, while the stars of today will have faded out of the firmament.

THIS IS THE DAY

Foundation of the central structure of the present Capitol at Washington was finished in the year 1818. The old structure was destroyed by the British in the War of 1812. Congress in 1817 voted to restore the wings and build the new central structure. The present dome was completed in 1864. The statue of the Goddess of Freedom, which rests upon the dome, was designed by Thomas Crawford, father of the novelist, in 1855. The cost of the present Capitol was approximately $16,000,000. Architects in general pronounce it the noblest building in the world.

FUR-BEARING SEALS AND FO

BY RANSOME SUTTON

Among seals it is far better to be born a female than an ordinary male; for only the extraordinary males, the champion fighters, have any domestic happiness or social position at all. Seals are fiercely polygamous; the big bulls are permitted, in all decency, to round up and mate with as many females as they can defend. Less fortunate males must herd by themselves; they are not even allowed to come near the harems. If an ambitious bachelor wants a harem of his own he gets it not through wooing ways, but by dethroning some established sultan. Then his troubles begin; for he must oblige the obedience of his wives and protect the honor of his household against intruding bachelors.

The bachelors are not only outcasts among seals, but they are hunted down and killed for their furs by expert killers in the employ of the United States government. It is, of course, fortunate that the government has monopolized the sealing business, since otherwise the whole race of seals would have been exterminated long ago. The heads of families and all the females are spared, but the bachelors are ruthlessly slaughtered.

The killing takes place at St. George and St. Paul of the Pribeloff group of islands. The bachelors are rounded up and driven ashore, then left to rest in peace for about twenty-four hours. If they were killed immediately after the drive the skins would be inferior—the kind that shed their hair soon after being purchased. According to Mr. O'Neil, chief engineer of the naval vessel Ortlan (now exploring in Aleutian waters,) superior skins are obtained only from victims which, at the time of the killing, are laboring under no excitement. After a quiet rest on the rocks they are given the "long rest" with clubs in the hands of experts, the deadly work creating lit-

AN INDUSTRIAL OLIGARCHY

BY JAMES MAIN DIXON

The seemingly imminent collapse of Germany is not because industrial leaders like Stinnes have been remarkably active and apparently successful during the past few years, but because the very seat of authority is lacking in what was an empire. The power to tax and to keep up financial and official strength is a first requisite in any government; and the present rulers in Berlin lack this essential qualification. Nor are the banks helping the government. Stinnes has been using them, as well as foreign banks and foreign currencies, to steal capital from his own people; and when this stored-up capital is gone Stinnes and his crowd will also lose their means of money-making. The whole mushroom industrial activity is the work of industrial gamblers; and good business is not built on gambling. They are not oligarchs or wielders of national power in any real sense, but shortsighted spendthrifts. If the ex-Kaiser had listened to such born leaders as Ballin of Hamburg and trusted to the builders of fine industries like his great shipping company, rather than to a military junta who thought they had the cinch on Europe, then an industrial oligarchy might have begun to run things in Germany.

Forty years ago Japan decided to take the German Empire for its general model in readjusting its national life; but it did not go to Berlin for its banking system. Rather, it chose Brussels as the home of a national bank that was worth copying. The Japanese Empire had one great element of national strength that was lacking in Germany; it had an imperial house that had been from time immemorial the custodian of the ideals of the Japanese people. Japanese patriotism cannot be detached from loyalty to the hereditary house; and what is undignified for an individual to do or be seems to them much more undignified in the case of a nation. Just forty-two years ago the Japanese paper currency was at an alarming discount and nearly touched the 50-per-cent limit. The government took the matter seriously in hand as reflecting on its honor and called in the fiat paper. Since then its paper has been as good as gold. Then it ceased to be dependent on any foreign currency and issued a fine silver and gold currency. Also when silver began to lose its old 16-to-1 value it accepted the 32-to-1 standard before the close of the century. The national banks, with other well-organized banks like the Yokohama Specie Bank, acted in concert with great shipping companies like the Nippon Yusen Kaisha to build up a great mercantile marine. And now there are great industrial leaders in Japan on whom the imperial government relies.

Consequently in Japan there is present the danger of an industrial oligarchy, which will mold laws and press too much in its own interests and forget the claims of Japanese working men and women. Such great industrial and shipping centers as Kobe, Osaka and Tokio are cursed today with worse slums than are to be found anywhere else in the world. Two of the chief weaknesses of the regime of an industrial oligarchy are a bullying attitude to neighboring nations and excessive luxury of the rich flaunting side by side with depressing poverty. And these are both marked in the Japan of today. She seems to be cordially hated by her neighbors and to have a restless labor party.

Now China and the Philippines are weak where Japan is strong. Practically industrial and commercial life in China do not connect with Peking. What banks and industries flourish are purely local; and warriors who do not profess to be patriots dictate to the central government. Again, in the Philippine Islands the leaders are pure politicians, who work for their partisans. The government bank which

EAST FOCUSES ON CALIFORNIA

Espee Official Relates How Area Looks Longingly

Advantages of Southland are Recognized by All

Travel West Expected to be Heavier Than Ever

"Everybody is talking about the Pacific Coast and especially California. They have caught the 'fever' and are anxious to come here," stated Charles S. Fee, passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific Company, who arrived in Los Angeles yesterday on his return from a tour of eastern States, where he was making a study of traffic conditions.

EAST ENTHUSIASTIC

"Never has the East shown the enthusiasm for California as is now expressed throughout all sections which I visited," said Fee. "As soon as one is known to be a Californian, he is barraged with a multitude of questions. Generally the first question asked is, 'what are the chances for a man out there?' Investors and mechanics wish particularly to know what are the business prospects. It seems once they acquire the desire to see California, they are never satisfied until they come and see for themselves.

"The work of advertising California, which is being carried on by the All-Year Club and other organizations is just commencing to bear fruit. During the next three years California will witness an unprecedented growth in population and expansion of business. During this same period I predict, California, more than ever before to be one great attraction to Easterners. This year's exceptionally heavy travel is only an indication of what may be expected within the next few years.

BUSINESS FAVORABLE

"Reports about business conditions, throughout the East are most favorable for a year of prosperity," continued Fee. "Having come in contact with many heads of different businesses I was given an excellent opportunity to gather opinions. The consensus is that production during the next year will be greater than any period since the war. California will be on the receiving end of this wave of prosperity and with her resources will be busier during the coming year than ever."

LAND DEALS CHECKED BY TAXING UNIT

Drive on Amended Returns for Federal Income Brings Additional Revenue

Hundreds of amended income tax returns are being filed with U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue Goodcell by taxpayers who had failed to include profits realized from the sale of real estate in their income-tax returns for 1920, 1921 and 1922. Field deputies have about completed a transcript of all real estate transfers and the checking of income returns against these transfers will be started at once.

When this audit is completed, an intensive drive will be inaugurated to round up those who have failed to make a return of their real-estate profits.

Where the taxpayer does not voluntarily disclose items of income that were omitted, the policy of the government is to assess full penalties, but where the taxpayer voluntarily files an amended return and reports the omitted items, heavy penalties are not imposed. When the drive starts full penalties will be assessed in all cases run down by field deputies.

FINED FOR CAUSING QUADRUPLE WRECK

For driving while intoxicated and causing a wreck of four automobiles, Irwin Melicharech was fined $500 yesterday by Judge Reeve. It was charged by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Kline that on Sunday evening, June 10, the defendant ran into one car, swerved across the road on Washington Boulevard, near the Green Mill, and crashed into two other cars. Traffic was tied up for hours as a result, it was stated. The defendant made arrangements to pay the fine.

FEEDING THE CHILD THE FIRST YEAR

Directions for the Diet from 6 to 12 Months—Paper II

[Note—For the next four or five Fridays, I am going to give you a series of articles on diet for the normal child for the last half of the first year. If your baby is artificially fed or is malnourished, he should be under the care of a specialist, either in the baby welfare stations or in private practice. If this is impossible for you, I will give you a list of books on the subject if you will send a self-addressed stamped envelope to me in care of this paper. This series of articles will not be available for distribution after its publication here, except in book form, so save them if you need them.]

Important! Important! Remember the principle of adding new foods to baby's diet, mothers. It is to begin with very small amounts and increase the amounts very gradually so that baby's digestive powers which are latent will gradually develop and will not be overtaxed. Feed the baby very regularly every four hours, at 6-10-2-6 and 10 o'clock. You can omit the 10 p.m. feeding at the tenth or eleventh month. Give nothing between meals but water or orange juice.

Bread—By the seventh month begin to give the baby a piece of bread, about one-third of a slice, at the 2 p.m. feeding. By the eighth month he can have a piece at the 6 p.m. feeding also. Fine whole wheat bread which is twenty-four hours old and toasted in the oven so that it is dried throughout is best. You can give zweiback or the hard educator crackers instead, for a change.

Let baby hold it himself. You can tie it with a piece of strong white thread or a clean string to his wrist so he won't drop it. Never give a child anything to eat that has dropped on the floor unless it is something that can be washed thoroughly. Think what you step on in the streets and track into the house, and you will see the reason for this.

Give the bread before the nursing or bottle. Only the small amount that the baby's saliva will soften will be nibbled off, but it is given to develop the jaws and teeth as well as for its food values. When broths are given, some of the toast can be crushed in them.

Butter—Add butter to the toast by the baby's ninth month, beginning with just a little scraping and gradually increasing the amount to a third of a level teaspoonful on one-third slice of bread. Butter, you remember, is rich in the growth vitamins as well as being a valuable energy food. The margarines made of vegetable oils are not. They are all right for adults, but not for the children.

Cereals—Cereals the first year should be strained. Any well-cooked cereal can be used. Oatmeal, cream of wheat and farina are usually recommended for the first cereals. Oatmeal, because it is highest in protein and iron, should be given three or four times a week. Toward the end of the year the other whole-grain cereals should be used on account of the mineral elements and vitamins in the bran and germ. All cereals should be very thoroughly cooked—two or three hours if in a double boiler. Best cook them the night before and reheat. If soaked overnight you can cook them over an asbestos mat—for thirty minutes at least.

Begin the cereals about the sixth month at the 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. feedings. Begin with one-half a level teaspoonful and increase the same amount every other day until three tablespoonfuls at a meal are being taken by the end of the seventh month. A larger amount—up to a half cup—can be given by the end of the year. This amount will depend upon the size and the activity of the child.

When a new type of cereal or fruit pulp or vegetables is given, give about half as much as the baby was getting before until the effects are noted. Feed the cereals from a spoon without milk or sugar at first. Later, when milk is being given, then baby can have some on its cereal. Use no sugar. It is never necessary nor desirable on cereals. A small amount of salt can be cooked with the cereals.

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer, please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose 4 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 250 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s. a. s. e. if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

WED AFTER WAR INTERFERENCE

Ceremony Follows School-Day Romance

Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Liggett

Harry B. Liggett, Los Angeles attorney, and Miss Freda Stoller were wedded yesterday noon at the home of the groom's mother, 337 North Rampart Boulevard with only a few intimate friends present.

The romance had its beginning when the couple were classmates in the Freeport (Ill.) High School, and it was then planned for them to be married as soon as the bridegroom could finish his law course in the University of Southern California. The World War, in which he won honors as California's most noted hero, winning the Distinguished Service Cross, the French Croix de Guerre and numerous citations for bravery, interfered. After being repaired at the hospitals, he finished his law course, having graduated recently, and is ready to take up the practice of his profession here. Mr. Liggett enlisted as a private in Los Angeles the day after the United States declared war on Germany and returned home after the armistice was signed with his breast covered with decorations and the rank of first lieutenant.

Judge Doran, a fraternity brother of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony. Miss Hazel Liggett, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and Maj. Walter Smith, war buddie, was best man, with Harrison Cassell, fellow-attorney of the groom, sponsoring the entire proceeding.

After a wedding luncheon the couple started on their honeymoon trip and announce that they will be at home to friends at their new home in the Burlington Apartments, corner Ninth street and Burlington avenue after September 15.

CHILDREN AND WORDS

"This isn't my head," said 5-year-old Betty, curls as she spoke. "It's my bean. Georgie says so."
insisted on calling it for several days, notwithstanding explanations and orders issued against the new word.

The same afternoon she strolled into the house brow languidly against my shoulder.

"It's so hot," she said, "I'd like to go up stree-ut and get some ice cre-um."

"Betty," I asked severely, "why do you say 'stree-ut' and 'cre-um'? You know better."

"Georgie says them that way," Betty explained.

Georgie was a new playmate, 5-year-old son of a new neighbor. He was a bright little lad, but his speech was appalling. He had in it's worst form the habit that prevails among certain New Englanders of making a two-syllabled word out of certain words of one syllable, and Betty imitated him like a little parrot. Thus road became ro-ud; Jean—Betty's pet doll—became Je-un. Betty's speech, which up to now had been singulary distinct and clear cut, became as offensive to the ear as Georgie's. To banish Georgie as a playmate seemed impossible. To make Georgie's parents correct Georgie's speech was equally impossible, as it was from them he caught it.

Also, from some unknown source Georgie accumulated a choice selection of slang. Betty's references to her "bean" were followed by references to her "lid"—meaning her hat. Other children became "kids." Betty learned to "beat it," and to "make a sneak" and to have "eats" between meals. The family was in despair. One short week with Georgie had about ruined Betty's vocabulary.

Then a plan came to me and I took the situation in hand.

WORDS AS LIVING THINGS

"Betty," I said, "did you know that little words are live things? They are almost as much alive as birds and flowers."

Betty was interested. This was a new idea. With interested eyes on my face she waited for details.

"When you

Betty knew that

Steamed Clams: Wash the clams well, then place them in a large pot which contains only one or two cupfuls of cold water. Cover the pot closely, and let the water come to a boil, then continue to boil till the clamshells open widely. The clams will then be cooked and ready to serve.

Meat Balls with White Sauce: "One pound of chopped beef, one egg, two thick slices of stale bread, a pinch of nutmeg, one-half teaspoon of salt. Soak the bread in water, then press dry. Now mix the moistened bread thoroughly with the chopped meat, add the slightly-beaten egg, and form this mixture into balls the size of an egg. Drop the balls in boiling salted water and cook for 20 minutes. Then lift the balls out and pour over them an ordinary white sauce." (Contributed by A. A. S.)

Never-fail Pie Crust: "Mix together until creamy, with a silver fork, one-half cup of vegetable cooking oil and one-fourth cup of boiling water. Sift together one and three-fourths cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt and one-fourth teaspoon of baking powder. Combine the two mixtures, turn out onto a floured board, roll thin and cut into two circular pieces large enough to cover a pie tin." To make an apple pie with this crust, place one of the circular rolled pastry-discs in the bottom of a pie-pan, slice four large raw apples upon it (the apples must be cored and pared) sprinkle one-half cup of granulated sugar over the apples, season with a dash or two of ground cinnamon, then place the other circular piece of pastry over the top, pressing the edges well together and jabbing a knife several times into the upper crust. (Pie-crust recipe contributed by F. B.)

Mock Macaroons: "Two and one-half cups of dry rolled oats, one-half cup of flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, one-half cup of butter, two eggs, one-half cup of either chopped walnut-meats or cocoanut, one and one-half cups of granulated sugar and one-half teaspoon of pistachio flavoring. Mix these ingredients well together, then drop the batter by teaspoonfulls onto a buttered pan. Bake a delicate brown in a moderate oven (about 12 minutes). These oatmeal cookies are delicious and very similar to macaroons." (Contributed by Mrs. G. L. Y.)

ALL NATIONS
Marching to ARMAGEDDON

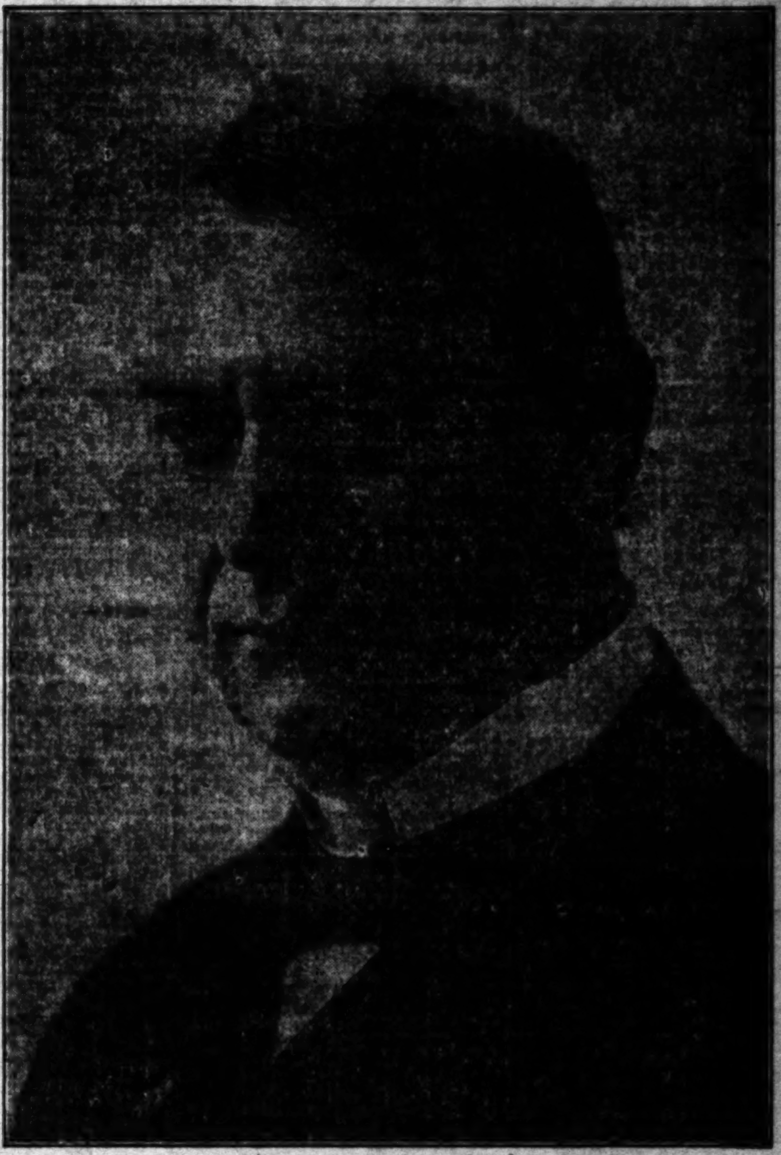
But----"millions now living will never die"

In a FREE LECTURE at the Coliseum, Sunday, Aug. 26

Judge Rutherford will prove by prophecy fulfilled and in course of fulfillment, that the greatest crisis of the ages is upon the world; that all nations are mustering their forces for the great battle of Armageddon foretold by the prophet of God; that the Lord will cut short the terrible conflict and millions now living will never die.



A FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

President of the International Bible Students' Association and People's Pulpit Association, religious organizations serving the people without money and without price

JUDGE RUTHERFORD SAYS:

"THE WORLD faces a condition never before experienced. Fear has taken hold upon all classes of people because they see in a measure the things coming upon the earth. The nations are in distress and perplexity.

"THE WAR did not make the world safe for democracy. The very foundations of civilization are now shaken by revolution, labor strikes, official lawlessness, profiteers, Bolshevism and anarchy. Both capital and labor are resorting to extreme measures. The common people have lost confidence in their leaders. The clergy have abandoned the Word of God and joined hands with big business and big politicians in an attempt to control the world, and these are opposed by radical forces.

"EUROPE is completely bankrupt, with her restless host of unemployed and discontents hourly increasing. Belligerent organizations are rapidly numbering their men and taking account of their strength. All contending forces are hastening to the great battle of Armageddon. [Revelation 16:16.] The disaster resulting is beyond the description of human words.

"BUT let the people take heart. The Lord will cut short the trouble, bring order out of chaos, establish peace and righteousness; and millions of people now living will become obedient to His order of righteousness and will live on the earth forever in peace and happiness."

BANDIT IDEA IS USED BY CHILD

Nine-Year-Old Boy Gives Police Busy Time

Afternoon's Work Includes Money and Automobile

"Crime" is Ended in Session on Parental Knee

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Aug. 23.—Whether he was emulating the exploits of the "slicker bandit" or just varying the monotony of a hot summer afternoon, is not disclosed, but at any rate a 9-year-old boy this afternoon furnished the police with plenty of work and seriously disturbed the peace of mind of sundry individuals.

The boy was at the city park plunge when he got the big idea. Through a clever ruse he learned the number of the locker being used by Mrs. T. M. Graham, 2516 Baltimore avenue, Monterey Park, and asked the attendant for the key, explaining that his "mother" had sent him. He opened Mrs. Graham's locker and took her purse containing a bank book, a $20 bill, about $3 in change and her automobile keys, including the key to the theft lock. Then Burton vanished.

YOUNGSTER MISSING

There followed several hours of investigation by the police and frantic efforts on the part of Mrs. Graham to move her car. Suspicion fell on the boy but he was missing.

Finally a little boy was sighted by the officers driving a car at Wilson and Main. He was so little that his eyes looked out from under the wheel. He was stopped and explained that he was taking the car to his father. Just then Harry C. Hudson, of 510 Rollin street, South Pasadena, appeared on the scene and told the police that the car had been stolen from him.

SPANKING ENDS IT

The boy was taken back to the park plunge where he showed where he had thrown Mrs. Graham's purse in an empty locker. The $20 bill and the keys were still there. The $3 Burton had spent, among his purchases being three cakes of soap, six packages of gum and a safety razor. The officers are inclined to think the latter was in line with his suddenly adopted grown-up career as a "bandit."

A sojourn over a parental knee wound up the youngster's strenuous afternoon.

Early Estimate of Lovell Peach Crop Exceeded

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ONTARIO, Aug. 23.—That the early estimate of 2000 tons of Lovell peaches to be canned this season by the Ontario plant of the California Growers' Association will be considerably exceeded, and that something in excess of 2500 tons will have been canned by this one concern before it starts on the Phillips clings run September 1, was the declaration today of Clyde H. Sheets, superintendent.

With a force of 600 men and women on the job the work of cleaning up the Lovell crop to make ready for the Phillips clings is being rushed, and the big plant is expected to run continuously throughout September on the latter.

The 2000-ton estimate was made at the close of the run on Tucson clings early in the season.

The Ontario cannery is one of the few plants of its kind in California to operate during the entire peach season on account of an unusually light crop and uncertain market.

BANDIT CAR SOUGHT

Police Believe Number Reported That of Robber's Auto

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Aug. 23.—Officers were today taking steps to trace an automobile, Arizona license number 174-77, which it is believed is the registration number of the bandit car which early yesterday morning held up the Shell Oil Company station at Garey and Holt avenues. Hampe, and took him to a lonely spot between San Dimas and Covina, where they slowed down and let him out of the car.

The number was reported today to the local police department by Dr. C. H. Alter of this city, who saw the machine bearing that license near Puente. He believes that they would have robbed a filling station at Puente had it not been for the fact that it was well protected and carefully watched.

HELPS WHITTIER COLLEGE

Capitalist Presents Institution With $100,000 As Evidence of His Good Opinion

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

WHITTIER, Aug. 23.—A. Wardman, capitalist, and for twenty years a resident of Whittier, today handed his check for $100,000 to Dr. Walter F. Dexter, the new president of Whittier College, the gift to be used for the benefit of the college as the Board of Trustees may see fit, Mr. Wardman is a member of the board.

This is the largest individual gift which the college has as yet received, and the college folk are greatly elated, for the money will permit them to go ahead with their cherished hopes of improvements for the campus.

In speaking of his gift Mr. Wardman said: "Whittier College is a distinct benefit to the entire city of Whittier as well as to the young men and young women attending the school. Gifts to the college now mean much, and I cannot but feel that there is a duty imposed on Whittier people to help maintain so valuable an asset to our community. No college receives sufficient support from its student body and an endowment fund is necessary."

Mr. Wardman has been manager of the Home Telephone Company for a number of years, and practically installed the system. He has always been keenly active in civic affairs and plans for business betterment. He was one of the first local men to see the possibilities of the Santa Fe Springs oil fields and when oil was found he invested heavily in land at the springs, and is now the owner of many producing wells.

STREET WORK HALTED

Fresno Improvements Conflict With Bond-Issue Provisions

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

The commission action was taken at the suggestion of the City Attorney and attorneys for those who proposed to bid. Proceedings which have reached the stage of award of contracts are not affected. [EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, Aug. 23.—An inquest today into the death of Charles Black, this city, who committed suicide at his home on Orange street, Wednesday afternoon, developed no reason for the act other than he had been sick and had failed to find relief from pain.

MYSTERY IN MOTOR CAR DEATH CASE

Los Angeles Woman Dies; Companion Held in Jail by Whittier Officers

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WHITTIER, Aug. 23.—Ben Dingaman, an oil worker, is held in the City Jail here on a suspicion of felony charge and Mrs. E. Black, 34 years of age, is dead as the result of an unexplained accident on Telegraph Road near Santa Fe Springs tonight.

Mrs. Black, who resided with her husband, an employee of the Pacific Electric, at 612 East Fifty-seventh street, Los Angeles, died at the Santa Fe Emergency Hospital of a fractured skull. She had either fallen or been flung from a touring car driven by Dingaman, striking the pavement head first.

Shortly after the accident an investigation was started by Constable Wade of Whittier which ended in Dingaman's arrest. Constable Wade declared that Dingaman had been drinking. No liquor was found in the machine. Dingaman resides at 602 Fifty-seventh street, Maywood, and will be held in jail until an inquest into the woman's death is completed by the Coroner.

Witnesses to the accident said they had seen Dingaman's car proceeding down Telegraph Road in a very erratic manner although no other machines were on the road at the time. They stated that the car frequently turned off the road and veered about as if the driver had almost lost control. Then the body of the woman was seen to hurtle from the machine. She was picked up and hurried to the hospital, where she died about ten minutes after the accident without regaining consciousness.

Two Are Held by Dry Squad at Pasadena

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Aug. 23.—The bachelor apartments of Charles Rhodes, 463 Oak Knoll avenue, were raided by the Pasadena police early today and several cases of liquor were confiscated. Rhodes was arrested and is being held on a charge of violating the Wright Act. Orville Hearn of Los Angeles also was arrested by the dry squad at a separate place. He is held on a similar charge.

Complaints from neighbors led to the raid of the apartments, which are in an exclusive residential district. The liquor was found hidden in various parts of the house, the police declare.

At an early hour this morning the police were notified that a man was driving an automobile in a circle about the intersection of Raymond avenue and Mountain street. The man gave his name as Orville Hearn and declared that he was dazed by the heavy fog. Several cases of liquor were said to have been found in his car. Bail was fixed at $500 in each case.

Martin Yrebarren is owner and John Ponti lessee of the Santa Fe Bar. Rose and Ernest Junquan, minors, are owners of the Liberty premises. Mike Perrino is named as proprietor of the bar there. The injunctions do not require closing of the premises but forbide their further use for liquor sales under penalty of contempt of court proceedings.

POSES AS GARDENER; MAKES LIQUOR HAUL

POLICEMAN GETS JOB, THEN SEIZES HOME OWNER AND WHISKY

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Aug. 23.—Assuming the role of an humble gardener with only a smattering of English, Detective Sergeant Imbros of the local police liquor squad seized twelve gallons of moonshine whisky, confiscated an automobile and arrested Roy Bradley of 840 Newport avenue on a charge of violating the Wright Act.

Imbros applied at the Bradley home yesterday in response to an advertisement for a job as gardener and caretaker. Imbros could speak but little English, he told Bradley, Polish being his native tongue, but as a gardener he was good, he told his prospective employer. Bradley hired him on the spot. Instead of gardening, however, Imbros began sleuthing as soon as he had obtained the run of the Bradley menage. There was liquor everywhere, Imbros discovered, even in Bradley's automobile. It was just about then that Imbros quit his gardener job and placed Bradley under arrest. Bradley is being held pending a hearing.

Oil Worker Hit Over Head With Golf Club

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TAFT, Aug. 23.—Thomas Dorsew a former West Side oil worker but now of Los Angeles and Long Beach, lies at a local hospital with a serious fracture of skull as the result of being accidentally struck on the head with a golf club in the hands of E. J. Ramsey, a stepson.

Dorsey, Ramsey and two other men were seated on the porch at the Ramsey home when Dorsey asked to see one of the clubs. Dorsey was given the driver and decided he could knock the ball over a near-by hill if he had a chance. The party repaired to the yard, where Dorsey took three wild swings and missed. He then asked his stepson to show him how the trick was accomplished. Ramsey took the club and prepared to strike the ball, and as he did so Dorsey moved his position, unknown to Ramsey, and was struck on the temple as the latter completed the swing.

FARMERS LEAD POLICE PARADE

Roll Includes ex-Organist, ex-Clerk, ex-Cowboy

Aspirants to Force Present Variety of Ambitions

Head, Feet, Height, Width All Figure in Test

Los Angeles is a lair of lures. Motion-picture studios lure the pretty country girls. Climate lures everybody. Chief Vollmer's police department lures farmers.

A study of the timber from which the police force is drawn is to be found in the questions and answers on the applications of those who aspire to become cops. Size, strength and a bulldog jaw alone do not make a policeman, the records of the Civil Service Commission show. A smattering of intelligence is also necessary.

"I want to be a cop," a husky individual announces between spasms of breathing after he has climbed five flights of stairs in the old Bullard Block.

The applicant generally is a new arrival from the farm. Others come from almost all trades and professions. A perusal of applications yesterday told of an organist from a Chicago theater, a grain broker from Montana, a hodcarrier from St. Louis, a drygoods clerk from New York, a cowpuncher from Texas—all who want to be cops. But most of the applicants were farmers.

IMPULSES VARY

They are weighed and measured. They must not be less than five feet and nine inches in height. They must weigh not less than 150 pounds, and they must be between 23 and 35 years of age. A physician examines them. Many are dropped from the race, and the survivors are submitted to a written examination.

"Why do you want to be a policeman?" they are sometimes asked.

"I'm an outdoor man. I like exercise."

"I'm a heavyweight prize fighter. I think the force needs me."

"When I was a kid I wanted to be a cop or a President. I flunked my chances at the other job."

These were a few of the answers:

The applicant's knowledge of first aid is tested.

"Suppose a man was pointed out to you as having smallpox. What would you do?"

One said he would run. Another replied he would ask questions to ascertain the extent of the victim's affliction and then take him home. The majority concluded they would take the man to the Receiving Hospital. All their answers were wrong. The interrogator did not know the correct answer.

"Suppose you arrest an intoxicated man with a half-filled bottle of whisky in his possession. What charge would you prefer against him?"

Several applicants replied they would arrest him for violation of "The Right Act."

Other specimen questions, all of which were included in the last examination for policemen, were as follows:

"What is the duty of an officer with regard to lost children?

QUESTIONS SEARCHING

"Under what circumstances would you use your club?

"Who makes city ordinances? Where would you go to get a complaint for violation of an ordinance.

"Suppose you are on a street car which collides with an automobile, injuring its driver seriously. What steps would you take in order to perform your duty?

"Name all the streets within the district bounded by Temple street on the north, Ninth street on the south, Los Angeles street on the east, and Figueroa street on the west.

"A citizen injures his leg so that it bleeds badly. How would you know whether an artery or a vein had been severed? How would you attempt to stop the bleeding from either source?

"When can you make an arrest on suspicion without a warrant?

"If you were given a search warrant to serve and you were denied admittance to the premises, what would you do?

"While walking your beat a speeding automobile passes by. Is there anything you can do to stop it?

"You see a woman on your beat at night whom you suspect of soliciting. Can you arrest her on suspicion?"

The applicant is also submitted to one of two memory tests. For one test applicants are lined along a wall. A stranger enters and passes through the room. The applicant is told to write on his examination paper everything he remembers of the stranger. In the other the applicant is given a telegram to read. It requests the arrest of a suspect and a complete description. The applicant writes everything he remembers having read from the telegram.

TARGET RANGE VISITED

A visit to the revolver target range is next in order. The man who wants to be a cop is told to fire five shots at a target on a range of fifty feet. He misses more often than he hits it. He is tested in running and jumping and his strength is tested with a dynamometer.

They are told to correct the following words:

Ambalunce, traffick, uneform, riport, exident, automobile, korner, button, hospitle, direct, station, offlce, jaler, prisoner, feloney, misdemeanor, lutenant, capitan, sargent and cheaf.

Some do and some do not.

Their knowledge of figures is proved by a few simple problems in arithmetic. Some of these questions are as follows:

"If your beat is 1760 yards long and 864 yards wide, how long will it take you to walk around it if you walk forty-one yards per minute?

"If your salary is $1680 per year and you save $37.50 per month, how much will you save in one year and three months?

"If cartridges cost $2.88 per hundred, how much will it cost for 423 men to shoot at targets, each man shooting five shots?"

Answer all these questions correctly and—if you are tall enough, wide enough, can run fast enough, jump high enough and look handsome enough in brass buttons—you can become a cop.

RECOGNITION IS ASSURED

Chamber Receives Notice from Washington That Action Will be Taken on Mexico Within Month

The Chamber of Commerce announces receipt of information from Washington to the effect that recognition of Mexico will be accomplished within thirty days, which means that the chamber's trade excursion to Mexico will be made in a happy time. Local bankers and business men are urged to make the trip. The reservations for the special train already number 150. The train leaves here September 6, returning within sixteen days after visiting Mexico City and Guadalajara and cities en route through the El Paso and Laredo lines of the National Railways.

In a letter addressed yesterday to members of the chamber, Secretary Wiggins says:

"Our information from Washington is that recognition of Mexico will become an accomplished fact within thirty days. This means that it will come just before our excursion goes to Mexico, or while we are down there.

"Do you realize what recognition means to Los Angeles? It means the opening of an empire at our very doors, and there will be tremendous things doing down there in the next year.

"Los Angeles, with its population of nearly a million, is the great American city, more than any other, to which Mexico turns. Recognition means more to Los Angeles than to any other part of the United States. Los Angeles business men should take the leadership in the development of, and the trading with, Mexico made possible by recognition.

"The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce excursion has been timed so as to be coincident with recognition as nearly as possible. The biggest business men we have should be interested in capitalizing the opportunity which this excursion offers in connection with recognition, not only to look up trade and investment possibilities, but also to cement the ties of friendship between the leading men of Mexico and those of Los Angeles.

"Every bank doing a foreign business should be represented on this excursion, and every house in any way interested in Mexican trade should also make an effort to have such representation.

"Only a short time remains in which to close up our reservations for this excursion. If you are at all interested—and you should be—please let us hear from you as soon as possible, relative to a reservation."

Only members of the chamber are permitted to take the tour, the second trade excursion to Mexico City. This year women members may go.

URGES COMPETING 'PHONES

Councilman Criswell Suggests Return to Two-System Plan; Asks Legal Opinion

As a first step by the City Council to improve telephone service in Los Angeles, the Council yesterday instructed Jess E. Stephens, City Attorney, to report whether any legal difficulty stood in the way of the City's offering for sale a franchise to a competing company.

The action was taken on the motion of Councilman Criswell, who described the present system's service as "atrocious," and said that something must be done at once to improve it.

Mr. Criswell's suggestion of a possible competing company came as a complete surprise to the other councilmen, who had not entertained such an idea. He explained that he had no definite proposal to make, and that no company had yet suggested instituting competing service in Los Angeles, but that in case there was no legal barrier, the Council might compel better service by offering another franchise for sale.

Councilmen indicated that the present state of affairs is partially due to delayed action by the State Railroad Commission. The city carried thousands of complaints to the commission several months ago, petitioning that body to make rates commensurate with service rendered. The State Commission has failed to act.

"Since that time," said Mr. Criswell, "the service has become worse. The recent change in thousands of numbers has almost paralyzed the system. If the State Commission does not act soon, the Council may be compelled to do something independently. My suggestion today is to prepare the way for such a contingency."

The city attorney's office promised a report on the legal phase of the matter within a few days.

If a competing telephone company were admitted to Los Angeles, it would restore the condition which prevailed several years ago, before the consolidation into the present system. At that time there was so much dissatisfaction with the service that the city decided to compel the competing companies to merge, thus also relieving many business men of the expense of maintaining two telephones.

RAIL BUILDER BUYING HERE

J. H. Maxey Purchasing Steam Shovels for Use on Mexican Line; Tells of Plans

J. H. Maxey, railroad builder of Yuma, Ariz., is in Los Angeles, shopping about for a pair of steam shovels. Later he plans to purchase a third one.

Last Friday Mr. Maxey signed a contract with the Mexican government for the construction of thirty-five miles of railroad from Mexicali to San Felipe Bay, on the West Coast of the Gulf of California. The thirty-five miles are the first of a larger task. By the time Mr. Maxey has completed the thirty-five miles, engineering stakes will be set for the remainder of the work, which is 120 miles, and he expects to proceed immediately with the construction of the railroad that will link Imperial Valley with the Gulf.

When the railroad is completed, Mr. Maxey says, Los Angeles will be brought closer by seventy-two hours to the West Coast of Mexico. Winter vegetables and other freight, he declares, will be shipped by water from Guaymas and other West Coast points to San Felipe and thence by rail direct to Los Angeles. Los Angeles exports to Mexico will move over the same route.

The expenditure of approximately $350,000 is anticipated in the construction of the roadbed for the first thirty-five miles. Much of it from Mexicali to Cerro Major is through hard rock. It is estimated that two years will be required to complete the entire job of 155 miles.

Mr. Maxey built the Fernley-Lassen branch of the Southern Pacific, the Calabasas cut-off in Arizona, and the Tucson, Cornelia and Gila Bend railroad. J. J. Waddell and C. L. Patterson, vice-president of the First National Bank of Yuma, are registered with Mr. Maxey at the Rosslyn Hotel.

NEW RAILROAD ERA IS HERE

Baltimore and Ohio Official Tells How Personal Contact Policy is to Rule Business

"With the release of the railroads from governmental control and the wide agitation of the doctrines of La Follette and Brookhart, railroad management has entered upon a new era founded on human contact between its executives and its shippers and passengers," says Judson G. Fry, Southwestern freight agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, who is registered at the Stowell Hotel. For the adoption of this policy, Mr. Fry gives credit to Daniel Willard, president of the road.

At a meeting of executives in New York last month, according to Mr. Fry, it was unanimously agreed that this personal contact was the essential thing to convince those served by the railroads that their executives are sincerely anxious to meet their needs and remedy their shipping or traveling troubles. Pursuant to this policy, Mr. Fry says, he has personally interviewed more than fifty of his road's customers in this city and learned at first hand exactly what they desire and what they have to complain of, and so far as is humanly possible these things will be supplied or remedied. He plans to visit the coast three times a year for that particular purpose.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Prospects were never brighter than now, in Mr. Fry's opinion. It is true that rates are high, but with a continuance of present conditions, reductions that are anticipated will be fully justified. This year, for the first time in six years, he stated, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was able to pay a dividend. Recently the road voluntarily increased the wage scale of its clerical employees, but executives believe that the scale for the various mechanical trades has already reached a maximum. The Baltimore and Ohio, within a year, according to Mr. Fry, has reduced its percentage of equipment in bad order from 46 per cent to 5 per cent. New equipment includes 3000 refrigerator cars, and there has been little trouble this year because of car shortage.

DOUBTS AMALGAMATION

He believes the amalgamation of the roads into a few immense systems is still a long way in the future. No doubt there will be some amalgamation where it is plainly advantageous in the comparatively near future, but no executive, in his opinion, could intelligently grasp such problems as would result from combining all the roads of the country into a dozen or eighteen great systems.

Tourist travel to California and particularly to Los Angeles is constantly increasing and when Mr. Fry looked over the city and the surrounding country he found the reasons perfectly plain. He finds the streets of New York and Chicago no busier, more crowded or more interesting than the principal streets of this city.

Wife Says She Didn't Know It When Married

So many cocktails preceded the marriage of Bea Wyche Terry and George P. Terry at San Diego, November 3, 1922, that she did not really understand she was being married, Mrs. Terry testified yesterday in Judge Walton Wood's court. She was granted an annulment.

Mrs. Terry said she was a widow and met Terry at a party here; he joked her into an elopement and they started for Crystal Pier, but found themselves in San Juan Capistrano instead and then went on to San Diego. They separated five hours after the ceremony, according to Mrs. Terry.

ALL POLICEMEN TO BE MOUNTED

Autos, Cycles and Horses Are Added to Department

Distance Patrolled Requires Change in Methods

Signalling to Officers With Lights Tried Out

The approaching motorization of the Los Angeles police department was announced by Chief Vollmer yesterday. He declared the movement to put all the police awheel would continue, if he remained in charge, until there was hardly a foot patrolman left. In pursuance of this policy, he said, he had added fifty-three new automobiles, sixty motorcycles and twenty horses to the department's equipment.

"On account of the great distances that have to be patrolled in Los Angeles," he said, "speed is the prime requisite. It is impossible for policemen on foot to work efficiently. I am motorizing the department to speed it up."

SIGNALS PLANNED

The Chief is experimenting with two different sign systems—one a method of blinking the municipal street lights according to a code, the other of using searchlights. The street-light signals were tried out Wednesday night in the University division and worked very well, the Chief said. Within ten minutes after the signal was given every officer out of the station had been heard from by telephone, and some of them were a mile or more from the nearest telephone when the signal was given.

"This system has some drawbacks," the Chief said. "Turning the lights on and off has a tendency to burn them out. As a signal system, however, it seems to work perfectly."

The searchlight system also seems to work very well, the Chief said.

"By the use of these signals," said the Chief, "we will be able to concentrate a large number of men in any given district in case of a major crime, and make the escape of the criminals that much more difficult."

The searchlights will be played on the sky according to a code, also. Which system will be adopted permanently, the Chief, said, depends on the tests. It might be that both will be used.

HELD FOR DEATH OF SELF-STYLED BAD MAN

Arilo Ramos was held to answer by Justice Forbes yesterday on a charge of voluntary manslaughter, growing out of the death of Thomas Estrada, self-styled bad man, on the 19th inst. Bail was fixed at $10,000. The killing is said to have followed a fist fight between the two men. Before this Estrada is said to have declared he had killed several men and showed notches on the handle of the revolver he carried to back up the statement. Ramos, it is charged, stabbed Estrada to death. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Hammer prosecuted the case and Deputy Sheriff Catlin was the principal witness.

DRY CHIEF TO SURVEY SOUTHLAND

Rutter and Dolley Arrive in City; Expected to Introduce Innovations

State Director Rutter of the Federal prohibition forces, and H. H. Dolley, chief enforcement officer, came to Los Angeles yesterday with the expectation of remaining for several days, during which time they intend making a survey of the field and instituting a number of innovations in enforcement work.

A conference with U. S. Atty. Burke was held, when a number of questions in regard to prosecution of liquor-law offenders were taken up.

Director Rutter has scheduled conferences with retail and wholesale druggists while he is here.

"The druggists are legally in the business of selling liquor," said Mr. Rutter, "and they are co-operating with us in the fight against the bootlegger. Their aid is valued very highly."

It is expected that within a short time a number of new agents will be assigned to the Los Angeles office, despite the fact that the Federal prohibition department has been hampered by lack of funds.

"Los Angeles is fortunate to have August Vollmer as Chief of Police," said Director Rutter, "and if he makes this city as dry as he did Berkeley the bootleggers will have to move out."

TINY CRAFT DUE HERE ON WORLD TRIP

Twenty-two-Foot Lifeboat Leaves Gulfport for Jaunt Around Globe

In a sloop-rigged, twenty-two-foot steel lifeboat, Herman Ewert, artist and soldier of fortune, sailed yesterday from Gulfport, Miss., for Los Angeles Harbor, on the first leg of a trip on which he hopes to circumnavigate the globe in twenty years. Mr. Ewert is accompanied only by his son. Their boat, the Sea Foam, has no motive power other than the tiny canvas triangles of her jib and mainsail.

Mr. Ewert a year ago returned to the United States after a leisurely trip about the world, requiring twenty-three years, on which he secured his subsistence by painting pictures of the spots he visited. On the present trip the Ewerts expect to reach this port about January 1, 1924.

The expedition is the second of the sort attempted, with this port as one of the objectives, in two years. On July 25, 1921, three Nova Scotia fishermen, Capt. J. T. Day, Harry Inglis and J. H. Morrison, put off from Halifax for Vancouver in a fifteen-foot fishing dory. Their craft carried a jib and a mainsail, and was also equipped with oars.

They expected to follow the coast line and pass through the Panama Canal, but their tiny craft was wrecked in a storm off the New England coast.

AUTO DEALER IS DEAD

Eugene Guasti Succumbs After Appendicitis Operation

Eugene Guasti, 33 years of age, resident of Los Angeles for more than twenty years and a member of the firm of Basso & Guasti, automobile distributors, died at a local hospital yesterday morning. Mr. Guasti was ill only a short time, death following an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. Guasti was a member of a pioneer family of Los Angeles and was a nephew of Mrs. Secondo Guasti. Although born in Italy, he came to the United States when a boy and took up his residence in Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow morning at 9:20 o'clock from St. Vincent's Church. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Guasti was unmarried. He leaves a mother, Mrs. Caroline Guasti, and a sister, Mrs. A. Casaretto, both of Los Angeles.

RECORD SET BY REHABILITATION

Veterans Well Taken Care of in Southland

Increased Earning Power is Result of Training

State Educational System Peer of Nation

That Los Angeles is well in the van in rehabilitation work, that California leads the nation in education, that it costs less to rehabilitate a handicapped person than the cost for one student for one year in high school, that the earnings of applicants are increased 235 per cent immediately after rehabilitation and that the process costs the community less than half a year of support, were among the statements made yesterday by William M. Coman, supervisor of the State Rehabilitation Division. Mr. Coman has figures to support his statements.

Another statement by Mr. Coman was that the theory that a person who is over 25 years of age, cannot be taught new studies and activities, is entirely erroneous. Figures of his division show that results hinge upon mental attitude and not on age. This is proved in the fact that the average age of those rehabilitated in California is 36.7 years, while there have been instances of persons beyond 60 years of age, being trained successfully.

Analytical figures produced by Supervisor Coman show that of the first 130 applicants rehabilitated, sixty-three were through the Los Angeles office, a third more than any other district of the State. Mr. Coman states that these figures will carry through for the entire work.

PRAISES SYSTEM

Another group of figures reflects greatly to the credit of the educational system of California. These figures show that of 1109 registered with the rehabilitation division prior to July 1 this year more than 73 per cent had better than a sixth-grade education and the majority of the other 27 per cent were "imports." Educators declare that these figures cannot be approached by any other State.

The analytical survey shows that at the time of application to the division the average weekly earnings of applicants has been $8.24. The average weekly wage immediately following rehabilitation is $27.62, exclusive of those who have gone into business for themselves. This is an increase of 235 per cent in earning capacity.

That wage is only $4.14 less than the average wage of $31.76 earned by all persons in all industries who received injuries during 1922. The latter figure is of persons largely engaged in hazardous employment, where wages are high.

INCREASE EARNINGS

Since the average earnings of applicants is based upon the period immediately following rehabilitation, it is reasonable to accept the fact, Mr. Coman states, that within two or three years the average rehabilitated person will be earning much more than the average wage earner above the laboring class.

An example of the increase to be expected is pointed to in a Los Angeles trainee who lost his left arm at the shoulder and was receiving $3.75 a week public aid. At the close of his training period under the rehabilitation division he earned $24 a week, while he now holds a responsible position which carries a salary of $250 a month. this increase was accomplished within one year.

The figures of the division show that it costs the State an average of less than $140 for each rehabilitated person. Through increased earning capacity this amount is covered in less than two months, while there is no longer need of community support. The average dependent person has a family, and it costs the community more for six months' support than the cost of rehabilitation.

AT SMALL COST

The $140 cost of rehabilitation is less than the average cost per year for a high-school student, according to statistics. And the return to the community runs into high figures, considering the increased earning power and the fact that the average producing life of rehabilitated persons is twenty years.

Mr. Coman stated that he found conditions in his division in Los Angeles to be excellent. He has found certain features here which he proposes to adopt in other sections.

ELECTRIC PLANT PLANNED

Boulder Dam Power Possibilities Lure Eastern Firm to Seek Site for Assembly Building Here

With the announcement yesterday that the General Electric Company was seeking suitable acreage on which to erect a new building that may later be the nucleus of a large assembling plant, keen observers of the industrial situation here predicted unprecedented activities by the various electric companies which, it was pointed out, will seek to anticipate the completion of the Boulder Canyon power project.

While unwilling to commit himself on its plans, A. S. Moody, district manager of the General Electric Company, admitted yesterday that it was in the market for a tract of land and that it was quite possible that within the next two years the warehouse that it is proposed to erect might be used as a part of an assembling plant. The present headquarters of the General Electric Company is at Schenectady, N. Y., where about 25,000 men are employed.

Mr. Moody also admitted that the cheap power that the Boulder dam would furnish would undoubtedly be a magnet that would draw electrical companies here. At present the General Electric Company has only a suite of offices here and some stock rooms. The rush of business has necessitated larger room for the stock, according to Mr. Moody. The new building, it is expected, will have a floor space of more than 70,000 feet and be built along the most modern plans.

PLAN HOPED FOR

Optimism that the next Congress will devise a plan that will be acceptable to all of the States interested in the Boulder Canyon power project, and that the work will be rushed to completion within a few years, was expressed by officials of electric companies here. While they were unwilling to give out any plans for future operations, they admitted that they were keenly interested in the Boulder dam and intimated that large expansions in their industry here might be expected.

Search for Mrs. MacKenzie and Son Without Result

Police yesterday found no trace of Mrs. Linna MacKenzie, pretty 27-year-old Los Angeles woman, and her 7-year-old son, John, who mysteriously disappeared together July 27, last. R. A. MacKenzie, former cashier of the Commonwealth Trust Company, and husband of the woman, Wednesday appealed to the police for aid after he had conducted a futile search for nearly a month with the aid of private agencies.

Mrs. MacKenzie, who before marriage was Miss Linna Garner, a member of a prominent Dallas (Tex.) family, is described as 5 feet 8 inches in height, and weighing 150 pounds. She has blue eyes and light brown hair.

POLA NEGRI TRAVELS

BACK FROM GRAND CANYON; ON TO CATALINA

By Grace Kingsley

The wanderlust is strong on Pola Negri these days. Not even the gorgeous and impressive scenery of the Grand Canyon has appeased her desire for new scenes, it seems. At any rate, Miss Negri, who returned from visiting the Grand Canyon a few days ago, whence she traveled several weeks ago with Kathlyn Williams, is going to set out again today.

This time Miss Negri will go to Catalina for a week's rest before beginning work on her next picture, which is from a French story and is entitled "My Man." Herbert Brennon, who has gone back to New York to attend his niece's wedding, will be back in course of a fortnight, and will at once begin work. Charles De Roche will have the leading male role in the picture.

Miss Negri reports having had a delightful time on her trip, where she and Miss Williams took some of those thrilling jaunts on little burros, up and down the dangerous trails. Miss Negri characterizes the animals as "cute, but verree daring!"

It just so interestingly happens that Charlie Chaplin is at present vacationing in Catalina, also working on his next story. Whether his reflections will be disturbed by the near proximity of the beautiful Pola now remains to be seen.

Violet Clark Home

Violet Clark, well-known scenario writer, who has been spending the last year in London, where she went on her honeymoon trip with her husband, Robert Freeman, has returned, and is dusting up the old Underwood preparatory to going to work again.

Ruth Roland in Vandeville

Just by way of artistic variety, Ruth Roland, serial queen, is going in for vaudeville, according to word just received from that lively young actress. If you want to talk to Ruth nowadays you will have to page her long-distance in Winnipeg, Can. She is on her way up there now to start a tour of the Orpheum circuit in a singing act.

Miss Roland is to play Winnipeg, Vancouver, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and then our local Orpheum.

Lenore Ulric Leaves

Lenore Ulric, the Belasco star, plans to leave for New York next Sunday, following the completion of her role in the Warner Brothers's picturization of David Belasco's play, "Tiger Rose," directed by Sidney Franklin.

Miss Ulric's departure has been made urgent in order to fulfill her theatrical engagement in New York the latter part of next month in "Kiki."

Miss Rambeau's New One

Although "The Goldfish" is getting along so swimmingly that it doesn't seem as though it would ever quit, down there at the Majestic, still its star, Marjorie Rambeau, has another world beater up her sleeve. In this she will appear at the Majestic later, according to present plans.

The new play is called "The Road Together," is by George Middleton, and is to be used by Miss Rambeau in New York next season, with Los Angeles being permitted a preview of the piece. The author himself is now on the way West to oversee production.

Chaplin's Picture at Kinema

Those picture fans who love luxury along with their pictures have got something to look forward to now. When the Kinema reopens in October they won't know the old place. It will not only be called the Criterion, but it will be all fitted up with the most luxurious lounges—lounges from which no pictures could possibly be bad to look upon.

But the best of it is that they won't have to look at any bad pictures. Only the best are to be booked, and just by way of proving it, the initial picture will be Charlie Chaplin's "The Woman of Paris," starring Edna Purviance, which the comedian directed, and to the appearance of which all the critics and fans are eagerly looking forward.

Honeymoon Bulletin No. 5

The honeymoon of Eddie Sutherland and Marjorie Daw is off. Just when Marjorie had her trunk packed and Eddie was about to go on a two weeks' vacation from the Chaplin studio, the fates again intervened.

Warner Brothers wanted Mr. Sutherland to assist Jack Conway in the direction of "Lucretia Lombard," the Kathleen Norris novel; Charlie Chaplin said "okeh," and so Eddie kicked a hole in his new straw hat and went to work.

"Perhaps when we're both old and bent with age, and useless to the world, we shall be able to get away on our honeymoon," said Miss Daw plaintively, as she began unpacking her trunk for the fifth time, following the shattering of her honeymoon trip plans.

Margaret Illington Here

Edward Bowes, vice-president of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, and Mrs. Bowes, who is known professionally as Margaret Illington, beloved by Los Angeles audiences, arrived in town yesterday.

The Goldwyn official is here to confer with Abraham Lehr, vice-president in charge of production, regarding general policy and forthcoming productions. Final details for the production of "Ben Hur" will be settled during Mr. Bows's visit. He went into conference with Mr. Lehr and June Mathis, editorial director, and it was announced that a definite statement regarding the director and the cast will be given out soon.

Discussing the general motion-picture situation, Mr. Bowes said: "The film industry is in a very interesting position just now. The public is showing a continuously increasing interest in pictures, and there has been a notable advance, I believe, in the type of photoplays which have been produced—a far greater advance than in any other branch of artistic endeavor."

De Mille's Daughter Travels

Cecilia De Mille, daughter of Cecil B. De Mille, has left Los Angeles with Mrs. Cecil B. De Mille and Miss Margaret Connable of New York, for a tour of the various horse shows now being held on the Pacific coast.

Miss De Mille will exhibit her two prize-winning blacks, Midnight Rex and Blackball, which were presented to her recently by her father. The two horses were brought from the Long View Farm at Kansas City, Mo., at a cost of $1500 each, and were used to draw the chariot of Pharaoh Rameses II. in the Biblical prologue of Mr. De Mille's "Ten Commandments." Both horses have won many blue ribbons.

The first show visited will be at Stockton, Cal. The party will be away until the middle of September.

Lois Weber Heard From

Even if Lois Weber, the world's most famous woman picture director, isn't wielding a megaphone right now, that's no sign she has lost interest in the art of motion-pictures. Indeed right at the present moment she is writing some stories.

Miss Weber writes me from Evergreen, Colo., that she is right in the atmosphere of literature, as she is visiting Margaretta Tuttle, well-known novelist, at the latter's summer home in the Rocky Mountains.

"I am up here in the most gorgeous of the Rocky Mountains," writes Miss Weber. "I thought it might interest you to know that Mrs. Tuttle is coming to Hollywood as my guest next month, and that she has been commissioned to write about several subjects of importance to the motion-picture industry."

GRAUMAN WILL STAGE PIONEER DAY MONDAY

Elaborate preparations are being made by the pioneers societies of Los Angeles and Southern California for the celebration Monday evening of "Pioneer Night" at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater. It is being staged in compliment to the hundreds of pioneers here in Southern California, who suffered the same hardships in reaching the Golden State in the early days as did the wagon trains in Emerson Hough's "The Covered Wagon," which this coming Monday attains its majority with twenty-one weeks of consecutive showings.

The Pioneer Society, the Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, the Adventurers' Club, of which the late Emerson Hough was a member, have all been invited to be present and to send representatives to tell experiences of pioneer days in crossing the plains.

It will be a gala night at Grauman's Hollywood with an all-pioneer orchestra playing in the lobby, reviving the melodies of the early days and the spirit will be that of the days of '49.

FINISH CUTTING AND TITLING OF "BAD MAN"

"The Bad Man" is through.

That doesn't mean that a notorious character has reformed, but that Edwin Carewe has completed the editing and titling of "The Bad Man."

Just as soon as the art titles are inserted, Carewe will give a private preview at the United Studios for his friends and members of the press. "The Bad Man" is to be released in October.

DANCED WITH TRIXIE

Melissa Ten Eyck and Max Weily, dancing on the Orpheum bill this week, were last here with Trixie Friganza, when one of Max's duties was to lift the heavy-weight comedienne and spin around with her in a dance. It does not seem possible, but Max did it. However, in his earlier days, Max was a blacksmith, and thus developed a strong sinewy arm that stood him in good during that famed engagement. Now, he tosses Melissa about like a leaf.

UNIVERSAL STARTS ON NEW SERIAL

Rising Young Player Makes Debut as Star in "Ghost City"

The first shot was filmed—not fired—in the starting of a new serial at Universal City this week. And one little actress is thrilled with the opening up of the road to success.

Well might she be, for Margaret Morris, who has been less than a year in pictures, will be co-starred in "The Ghost City" with Pete Morrison of western fame, and the opportunity is one the like of which few girls have ever had. Jay Marchant, maker of many western plays, is directing.

Miss Morris was in filmland three months, then a stock company in Minneapolis for three months, and now she has been back in pictures for a like period. Her beauty and her willingness to undergo risks in playing in dangerous scenes have won her the admiration of directors.

An explosion scene of perilous nature was filmed the first day—a splendid way to start a new chapter play by getting players into the thrill "stride" right off the bat.

ELABORATE MUSICAL PROGRAM FOR LOEW'S

Music will charm with double vigor from the stage of Loew's State Theater this coming week. For in addition to the program to be played by the concert orchestra under Renee Williams, a fantasie in three scenes has been arranged to precede the showing of Constance Talmadge in "Dulcy."

The orchestral program consists of the overture "Mignon," by Thomas, and the popular ballad is "Swinging Down the Lane."

The musical fantasie represents the three ages of art. It will be enacted by a company of singers and dancers and the second period, which is called "Operatic Age" will be performed by Harold Stanton, tenor, Miss Zella Simpson, soprano, Mrs. Vera La Marr, contralto, and Sterry Bean, baritone.

"SAFETY LAST" TO END RUN TONIGHT

Through a slight change in plans, Harold Lloyd's "Safety Last" will close tonight to make way for the opening tomorrow at the Miller Theater of another print of "The Spoilers."

The Rex Beach story will play at both the California and Miller Theaters next week, starting tomorrow instead of Sunday, as originally planned.

NEW EMPLOYEE DIES UNDER FIRM'S TRUCK

George Hill of 1223 West Eighty-eighth street, a new employee of the Globe Milling Company, fell from the trailer of one of the company's trucks yesterday and was crushed to death beneath its wheels. The accident took place on Compton avenue, near Watts. Hill started to work for the company only yesterday.

Symphony Will Show Curwood Picture Next

"Jacqueline," or "Blazing Barriers," James Oliver Curwood's epic of the flaming forest, will have its Los Angeles premiere at the Symphony starting Sunday.

The picture was directed by Dell Henderson, who got many a thrill in the making of it, especially during the forest-fire scene which plays so important a part in the production. It is interesting to note that the fire scenes were taken just at a time when forest fires were threatening life and property in the Maine woods to an alarming extent.

Director Henderson and his company were busily engaged at this time in making scenes for "Jacqueline" and were thus enabled to secure some magnificent effects which would have been extremely difficult and hazardous for the hand of man to duplicate.

Six cameramen worked from platforms built in the bay just a few feet from the blazing inferno, and so intense was the heat that one cameraman was compelled to jump overboard just an instant before his platform went up in flames, destroying, when it did so, a costly motion-picture camera as well as many feet of negative.

Lew Cody heads the cast in "Jacqueline," which includes Marguerite Courtot, Sheldon Lewis, Edmund Breese, Effie Shannon, Paul Panzer, Charlie Fang and others.

Baggot Acts and Dentist Alone Profits

King Baggot was a great actor before he became a great director and King Baggot has a strong right arm. Virgil Miller, cameraman, can prove it. So can Virgil's dentist.

King acted for the first time in years in "The Extra Man," Hoot Gibson's new production at Universal City, when he portrayed himself directing. He was supposed to be directing a sensational scene with Norman Kerry and Mary Philbin, which Hoot, as a green extra was supposed to walk into.

"Register superlative enthusiasm!" suggested Ed Sedgwick, the director.

King did.

"Yeow!" he yelled—and slapped the cameraman a mighty wallop on the back.

"Glug!" said the cameraman. His face purpled.

For he'd swallowed his false teeth!

Miller's dentist says he'll make him a new set for $50—and King insists he can't pay the damages. "I only drew $3 as an extra for the Sedgwick picture," he explains.

The old teeth were abstracted from the vicinity of Virgil's medulla oblongata at the Universal City Hospital—but they're all bent. That was a mighty yallop.

"But it made a great close-up!" says Sedgwick. "I should worry about a few cameraman's teeth when I am making a fine picture."

DANISH TENOR SUNDAY

Povi Bjornskjold Will Be Featured On Grauman Program

Povi Bjornskjold, Danish dramatic tenor, late with the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, will be a featured attraction of Grauman's "discovery" concert Sunday. He will sing Sigmund's Love Song from Wagner's "Die Walkure," and Caruso's composition, "Dreams of Long Ago."

Mr. Bjernskjold's voice possesses color and warmth, great volume and roundness of tone that is remarkable, and his Wagnerian roles have met with the highest praise.

Others to appear on the program will be Lucy Merz, coloratura soprano, with flute obbligato by Jeannette Rogers; Vincent Spollidoro, harpist; Lorraine Lee, soprano, and Doris Whitney, contralto, in duet; Peter Lewine, xylophone; Charles Musgrave, 'cello, and Charles Schmaltz, tenor, and Arthur Clayton, baritone, in duet.

NEWSPAPER HERO

Thrills and Romance Found in "Beyond the Veil"

One of the favorite hero characters of our fiction and screen tales is the newspaper reporter, primarily because he actually participates in so many heroic measures that usually go unsung. Mozumdar, the Hindu metaphysician who is now producing "Beyond the Veil," has recognized this fact and has made the hero of his story a young newspaper man. The youthful reporter "bucks the dope ring" in his city, with immediate penalty of losing his job, but finally he exposes "the man higher up" and wins the hand of the heroine, portrayed by Kathryn McGuir.

William Boyd plays this role of Frank Adams in "Beyond the Veil." Boyd recently completed a three-year contract with the Lasky company. His best-known picture there was "Nice People;" other recent engagements include featured roles in "Michael O'Halloran," Gene Stratton Porter's independent production, and "The Temple of Venus," a Fox special.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Evelyn Brent had recovered from her recent illness to such an extent that she gave a party last night celebrating the anniversary of her return to America following her English movie engagement.

Maurice Tourneur is well again, following an attack of ptomaine poisoning.

Maurice Frances Dana is on the highway to recover from a slight illness which has kept her out of pictures for the past week.

PERRY WITH LUBITSCH

Paul Perry has replaced Homer Scott as first cameraman for the Ernest Lubitsch production, "The Marriage Circle," being made at the Warner Brothers Studios. The leading feminine roles are being played by Florence Vidor and Marie Prevost.

PRAISES CHRIST PLAY

"'The Pilgrimage Play' has given me a new conception of the reality of the Man of Nazareth," was the tribute paid the Hollywood spectacle by Rev. Dr. M. Howard Fagan, pastor of the Wilshire Christian Church.

$35,000 $35,000 NEW WINDSOR SQUARE'S BEST BUY.

On today's market, when values in homes are steadily rising and material and vacant lot prices continue to climb, it is hard for the conservative buyer to find a home in the right location at anything like a right price. By a course of elimination I have gotten just the home for you at what I know you will consider the right price.

A charming ten-room home of English design of brick and stucco construction on a beautiful east-front lot in the center of New Windsor Square. Center hall plan with immense living room and terrace on south side. Beautiful breakfast room; large, airy dining-room; pass pantry, convenient kitchen; maid's room and bath and servants' staircase on north side.

A winding wrought-iron staircase, with diamond pane windows lighting the center hall upstairs. The bedrooms are arranged en suite. Four bedrooms, two tile baths, cabinet shower and dressing room complete the upstairs arrangement. All decorations are in oil on canvas and all woodwork on lower floor is mahogany.

Let me show you what I consider the very best buy in the square. Call MR. GILL.

SOME sixty days ago a discovery was made which assures a million dollars yearly profits. The advertiser needs financial help for his ground floor syndicate. The following facts can be substantiated. The element of gambling is eliminated. This is not a hole in the ground which may prove dry. Raw material is on the surface and can be seen, no mining. It has the contents, any one can get it. Take it, test it. It can be worked and is being worked. The products have easy market and can be sold. The profit is upward of $10 per ton and costs to handle $2.30 per ton. This is not the usual bunk, but a rare opportunity. Investigation welcomed. Further particulars mailed or interview arranged. Address N, box 274, TIMES OFFICE.

"Sour Paper"

CHAPTER V

[All rights reserved.]

Bad checks—the police call them "sour paper"—defraud bankers, merchants, saloon keepers and individuals out of thousands of dollars annually.

The toll of the sour paper crook is almost inestimable. Bankers associations continually issue bulletins warning institutions not to accept checks without proper identification. The police ask the storekeeper and the banker not to trust strangers.

But there seems to be a human element here that cannot be combatted. A suave, likely appearing fellow with an industrial check, neatly stamped with a protectograph and bearing a firm name, can get it cashed most anywhere by making a small purchase. Even the banks will take a chance on him if he "looks honest."

There are "expert paperhangers" and the "greenhorns." The experts generally are jailbirds who have studied the game carefully, while the "greenhorn" is the imbecile who just writes out a check because he happens to have a blank and tries to cash it at the nearest saloon or store.

There is not much to be said for the "greenhorn" except that he "lasts quick" and seldom makes good on probation. The reason for this is that a man with an intellect so weak does not fully appreciate the difference between right and wrong, he does not understand that society is a great machine that has been built up by man for his own protection. He thinks that the world owes him a living.

The expert, also, inevitably runs afoul the law, but sometimes only after a long and varied career.

A good many different schemes are resorted to by the "sour paper" gentry.

In one case a youth who had been staying at a rooming-house gave the landlady $5 and asked her to write him out a check for $5 so that he could send it to him mother. He raised the check to $50 and got the money.

Another "paperhanger," dressed up like a country jake, walked into a rural store, presented a business card which he had stolen from the proprietor of a mountain tavern and ordered two barrels of soap sent to the resort. He tendered a check for considerably more than $100. The check came back and the tavern proprietor notified the storekeeper that he hadn't ordered the soap.

The industrial check is a favorite with the crook. Hundreds of shipyard workers during the war were pair off in checks. The bad check artist had duplicates of these printed, worked a protectograph on them and then cashed them by the score on Saturday nights and holidays.

Another "paperhanger," dressed so successfully that a big iron works quit paying their men in checks altogether, but gave them cash. Two men worked together. A laborer would turn his check over to his pal. Then he would report it as lost. The pal would sign the check and cash it. Then the two would split fifty-fifty. The worker would declare that the signature on the back of the check was not his, would demand another check and get it. This practice spread all over the plant. Every week the iron works lost hundreds of dollars in this way. Finally gold, silver and currency were taken to the plant on payday and the check system abolished.

The professional check man, like the embezzler, forger and bunco artist, dresses well, puts on a "big front," studies business methods and banking and keeps away from the "lowbrow" types. Sometimes he will operate with a woman confederate, but not often. In a great many cases, however, the money which he steals in this way goes to some girl.

These check thieves frequently also are good forgers. They become expert at duplicating signatures through long experience. A favorite stunt with them is to watch a man in a bank make out his deposit slip. Then they go over to the desk where he has been writing and note his signature written upside down on the blotting paper. This they learn to imitate easily. Of course, it is comparatifely easy for them to pass such a check, even on the bank itself.

DANCING MASTERS ELECT

New Officers, Ohioan Being President, to be Installed Today; Annual Cotillion Tonight

The American National Association of Masters of Dancing anticipates the time when the Federal government will require a Federal license for the teaching of dancing, according to O. F. C. Heinemann of Boston, retiring president of that organization.

O. F. C. Heinemann

Some 250 dancing masters from all parts of the United States and Canada are in convention in Los Angeles this week, and are meeting at the Ernest E. Ryan School of Dancing, 1500 South Figueroa street.

New officers for the coming year, who were elected yesterday and will be installed this morning are: Fenton Bott of Dayton, Ohio, president. Mr. Bott has previously served in the same capacity, and is chairman of the national dance reform committee. First vice-president, Mrs. Montie Beach, Houston, Tex.; second vice-president, Ernest E. Ryan, Los Angeles; third vice-president, Earl Wallace, Los Angeles; fourth vice-president, Della Maher, Flint, Mich.; secretary, George Walters of Waltham, Mass., who now commences his eighth consecutive term in that office; treasurer, Walter Soby of Hartford, Ct.; trustee, Harry Robb, Pittsburg, Pa. The advisory board for the coming year will consist of Ivan Berry of Newark, N. J.; C. Harry Mills, Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. Alice Wells Anderson, Milwaukee.

Two members of the board of directors of the Normal School Dancing Association, which also had its election prior to that of the masters, will be Mrs. J. H. Meyer of Dallas, Tex., and F. A. Jackson of Salt Lake City.

There has been keen competition between the delegates from Chicago and New York for the honor of the 1924 convention city, with Chicago winning out on the final vote.

Following a busy day today in installation of new officers and routine business, the association will tonight conduct its annual cotillion in the ballroom of the Ryan School.

Expert teachers from all over the country are giving the masters lessons in the various steps between business sessions.

Among the teachers of the ballet, whose work attracted attention at the session was Miss Jean Barry, formerly of Memphis, Tenn., but who is now in Los Angeles. She is a graduate of Stefano Mascagno, principal of the normal school of the American National Association Masters of Dancing.

DIVORCE FROM AGED HUSBAND IS DENIED

Before their marriage Henry L. Miller told his wife that he wanted her to be the best-dressed woman in Glendale, but afterward he refused to give her money enough to dress decently, Mrs. Mary J. Miller testified in Judge Wood's court. She was denied a divorce. Mrs. Miller is 38 years of age, and her husband is 72. She said at the time of her marriage she was operating a small business which she gave up. Her husband developed an irritable strain after marriage, she said, told her repeatedly that she had married him for his money, and caused her to lose eighteen pounds in a short period.

LONG LINES GET GAS AT LOW PRICE

Six-Cent, Nine-Cent Fuel Station's Sales Tripled in Four Days

Six-cent gasoline is still a reality at the filling station operated by Roy Gehr, One Hundred and Eighth and South Main streets. Sales have more than tripled in the last four days. Two cars a minute is the station's record for rapid service. And last night when the traffic was heavy in that vicinity long lines of cars awaited to have their tanks filled.

Resulting congestion of traffic has led the county motorcycle squad to consider placing an officer there to keep the machines in line and the road open. Wednesday night the jam was so bad that the first suggestion of the need of a traffic officer was made. Last night the condition was worse.

Fourteen men are kept busy supplying the needs of the motorists. The station is open for business twenty-four hours a day, and where the facilities of the station now include five gasoline pumps, Gehr plans to install four more. Likewise, the present storage capacity of 9000 gallons must be materially increased if the public's demand is to be met, Gehr states. It is possible he will add several thousand gallons more to the present capacity.

Gehr sells his gasoline, refined at the Sterling Refining Company's refinery at Santa Fe Springs, at 6 cents a gallon only at certain portions of the day. When he made his original price 9 cents a gallon, a competitor near-by declared he would undersell Gehr by 1 cent no matter what price that might be. Consequently, he painted his 8-cent signs in conspicuous places. Gehr promptly turned his own signs upside down, making them read 6 cents. At various times during the day, and especially when traffic is heavy, he sells at the lower price. During the middle of the day and late at night his regular price, 9 cents, is in effect.

When long lines of cars await an opportunity to take advantage of the low rate and it comes time to turn back to the regular price, 6-cent checks are passed out to those already in line, so that when the autoists come along in turn, they still may fill their tanks at 6 cents a gallon.

Monday Gehr first put the 6-cent rate into effect. That day he sold 4000 gallons, Tuesday he sold 6000, Wednesday 12,000, and yesterday approximately 15,000. Five trucks are kept busy hauling gasoline from the Sterling company's refinery at Santa Fe Springs to the service station. At the refinery it is planned to increase production by 100 per cent.

The company, of which Gehr is an official, has a new patented process for the refining of gasoline, which, Gehr says, may revolutionize the industry. Even at his low price of 6 cents a gallon he contends he is making a slight profit.
